Secretary, in Talk, Hits Red Charges Of 'Imperialist' Aim In Program for Aid

Post Reporter

Secretary Marshall yesterday gave an indirect but sharp rebuke to Russia for attacking American motives in the economic reconstruction of Europe.

The Secretary branded as "fantastic misrepresentation" and "malicious distortion of truth" the charges, spread by Communist propaganda throughout the world, that the United States was seeking "imperialist" domination of the countries it was trying to help.

He spoke at a luncheon of the Women's National Press Club, reading from a carefully prepared manuscript and timing his words to coincide with the meeting of the Foreign Ministers in Paris.

Without mentioning Russia or her tactics in eastern Europe, the Secretary reminded foreign peoples that the United States had no "subservient" political parties to attempt the conquest of foreign countries from within.

'No Agents,' He says

He said the United States had planted no agents to dominate the police systems of foreign countries, and forced no "joint American-European companies" upon reluctant governments."

Having drawn this contrast, he reminded the Foreign Ministers at Paris that the United States would insist on the fulfillment of at least four conditions before making further contributions to world recovery.

These conditions were as follows:

1. Any American contribution "shall be effectively used for the purpose for which it was intended;
2. "It should not be expended to serve selfish economic or political interests;"
3. "It should be employed specifically to assist in economic rehabilitation;" and
4. "It should serve a great purpose in restoring hope and confidence among the people concerned that the world will know peace and security in the future."

Implicit In Harvard Talk

Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Bidault of France have already given evidence that they understand these conditions and accept them unreservedly. They were implicit in Secretary Marshall's now-famous speech at Harvard on June 5, in which he first outlined a joint program for European reconstruction.

But during the discussions in Paris Foreign Minister Molotov is reported to have insisted on unconditional American aid. The Secretary's speech, therefore, was taken here as notice to Molotov that any scheme of unconditional help would not have the slightest chance of acceptance by the Administration or Congress.

5 Bull Dogs Chew Boy, 11, to Death

New York, July 1 (AP).—An 11-year-old Bronx boy was chewed and clawed to death today by five bull dogs, one of which apparently had gone mad, police reported.

A patrolman, investigating the incident, also was attacked.

Another boy, Joseph Sherer, 15, first saw five dogs running around and chewing on an object. Coming closer he saw Stanley Balabana's bare feet, chewed to the bone.

Sherer called police. When Patrolman Louis Rissone, 31, approached, one of the dogs lunged and threw him to the ground. Two other policemen shot the dog dead.

Balabana died of loss of blood. Rissone, hospitalized, was not in critical condition.

Police said owner of the dogs was Swin Sandgren, 52, who breeds the dogs, which he described as American bull dogs. He was held for questioning. The dogs were rounded up.

French Offer Delays Close Of Aid Parley

Molotov Takes Day To Study Proposal For Marshall Plan

By Joseph E. Dynan

Paris, July 1 (AP).—France gave the three-power foreign ministers' conference a 24-hour reprieve late today by offering a last-minute compromise proposal on European recovery which averted for the moment, at least, a collapse of the conversations.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said the new offer represented France's final position in the three-power efforts to implement the aid-Europe plan of United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Both Bidault and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin pressed for a prompt answer from Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov—French quarters reported—and put the French propositions up to Molotov on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

Appeals to Molotov

Bidault advanced his proposals as a compromise measure designed to meet Russian objections against "interference" in national internal affairs, and appealed to Molotov for conciliation to salvage the aid-Europe conference.

British and French sources said Molotov insisted on a full day's recess to permit him to study the French propositions. Bidault at first demanded a decision today, but Molotov said the usual practice was to allow time for study. The ministers agreed to meet Wednesday afternoon, but there was no promise that the deadlock might be broken.

Bevin was said by British and

VA Seeking 43 Millions in Overpayments

By The Associated Press

The Veterans Administration reported yesterday it is trying to get back for the government 43 million dollars in benefit overpayments to veterans under the GI Bill of Rights.

A VA official emphasized that these particular overpayments "were due to administrative error and not to fraud."

He said about 200,000 other cases of suspected fraud and involving an unestimated amount of money, have been referred to United States district attorneys throughout the country.

During May the agency received $8,395,000 from World War II veterans who returned subsistence payments above the amount to which they were entitled. It also collected $426,000 in overpayment of pensions.

Despite the collections, the agency said, additional overpayments for the month kept the total outstanding at 43 million dollars. The figure at which it has remained for several months.

The official told a reporter that most of the subsistence overpayments resulted from a time lag in reports to regional offices from schools and places of training. He added the overpayments usually arise when a student leaves school or training without giving prompt notification.

The VA said it is attempting to collect the overpayments without undue hardship to the veterans, particularly when there has been no negligence on their part.

Md. Complains As Sales Tax Goes in Effect

'Have You a Penny?' Greets Customers At Gas Stations, Too

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Without doubt the most repeated question in Maryland yesterday was, "Do you have a penny?"

Thousands of Free State residents, only vaguely aware of the new sales tax previously, were brought face to face with its reality as the sales clerk asked for an additional copper.

The burden seemed doubly heavy for Maryland motorists, who pulled in at their usual gas station and found, to their chagrin, that the price had jumped a penny because of an increase in the State gasoline tax, effective yesterday.

The new tax program became effective at 12:01 a. m. yesterday amidst confusion, complaint and controversy.

Most Prince Georges and Montgomery County gasoline dealers immediately upped their gasoline price 1 cent, declaring that they could not absorb the increased State tax.

2 Witnesses Called to Testify Against Perlman Indorse Him

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Indorsement of Philip B. Perlman of Baltimore for Solicitor General came yesterday from two witnesses called by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee to oppose his nomination.

Theodore R. McKeldin, former Republican Mayor of Baltimore, and Simon E. Sobeloff, Baltimore city solicitor and also a Republican, waited two hours to testify, while the subcommittee was in executive session with the nominee.

Questioned about a telegram he had sent to Governor Lane of Maryland recently criticizing Perlman's appearance before a legislative committee in behalf of the Baltimore Transit Co. after he had been nominated for Solicitor General, McKeldin said he had not changed his opinion. Perlman's action, however, he characterized as the result of "bad judgment" in a "very capable and very honest man."

At the conclusion of his testimony, McKeldin was asked by Senator Tydings (D., Md.), who attended the hearing intermittently as a sort of voluntary defense attorney, if he considered Perlman "a fit man to be Solicitor General of the United States."

"I consider him a man of integrity and high character," McKeldin said. "I think he would make a competent Solicitor General."

In reply to the same question from Tydings, Sobeloff said he had told "an FBI man" before Perlman's nomination that he considered him "a competent man and a good lawyer."

"Our relations have not always been harmonious," Sobeloff said, "because Mr. Perlman in the heat of a court case sometimes makes acrimonious remarks. But I could not say otherwise than that I consider him a man of good repute and high standing in his profession and I hope he is confirmed."

Rumors Rife As Coal Men, Lewis Talk

Northern Mines Expected to Meet Offer by U. S. Steel; Taft Urges Speed

Hartley Plans New Bill

Head Conciliator Quits

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Negotiations between John L. Lewis and various representatives of Northern coal mine operators took place yesterday, with indications that definite developments might be expected soon.

No official word was available on results of the meetings, but rumors were prevalent that the operators were seeking to achieve a contract with the United Mine Workers by meeting a large number of union demands.

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach is believed to have been taking an active, although undercover, part in the conferences.

May Match Offer

Speculation centered on the possibility of many of the Northern operators going along with a reported offer by United States Steel Corp. and the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. to meet Lewis' 35-cents-an-hour wage increase demand. Other points at issue, including Lewis' call for a 10-cents-a-ton royalty payment to a miners' welfare fund, were apparently still unsettled.

Yesterday's meetings were high-powered, with the first teams on the field. Lewis was accompanied by his lieutenants. On the operators' side were Ezra Van Horn and Charles O'Neil, veteran chief negotiators for the Northern owners. Harry Moses, of the United States Steel Corp. coal interests, was present, as well as John D. Stevens, "Big Steel's" vice president in charge of industrial relations.

There were reports that United States Steel's president, Benjamin Fairless, attended the negotiations. Retired Admiral Ben Morsell, now president of Jones & Laughlin Steel, turned up to be briefed by his colleagues on developments. Representatives of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. were also in the negotiations.

Meantime, Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) of the Senate Labor Committee called on both union and operators to seek a contract as soon as possible. At the same time Chairman Hartley (R., N. J.) of the House Labor Committee threatened to introduce new legislation aimed at preventing a coal strike.

Taft's appeal came in the course of a statement he issued defending the new labor law which bears his and Hartley's name.

Aimed at "Racketeering"

He said that the act did not, and was not intended to, outlaw strikes for wages, hours and working conditions. It was designed only to stop "racketeering" strikes of the jurisdictional and secondary boycott variety.

He admitted that "the situation regarding the coal miners is unique." There is no existing contract between companies and unions, he pointed out, since the Government has just handed the mines back to their owners.

"It is incumbent on both sides to make every effort to reach an agreement promptly," he said.

He added that he did not know

More Towns Evacuated

Heavy Midwest Rains Give Added Impetus to Flood

St. Louis, July 1 (AP).—The surging Mississippi River, concentrating its flood waters now on Missouri and Illinois lowlands, burst through four more levees today with the added impetus of a 12-inch rise from torrential local rains and forced evacuation of the towns of Dupo and East Carondelet, Ill., by their combined populace of 3100.

Mayor Delmar Valine of Dupo said 90 per cent of the women and children and 50 per cent of the men had left.

The towns are across the river from the old Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Army post immediately south of St. Louis.

The rising waters went over the Prairie Du Pont levee along the Illinois Central railroad tracks and by-passed the Missouri Pacific railroad embankment which staved off the 1944 flood.

Army engineers said they might have won the four-day fight to bolster the weakened barricade but the overnight rain measured two and one-half inches, most of which came in less than a two-hour period.

In St. Louis lightning struck a streetcar and a residence and the temperature dropped 22 degrees in an hour during the rainstorm.

Across the river a few miles from downtown St. Louis the Mississippi washed out the Chouteau-Nameoki-Venice, Ill., levee, causing immediate evacuation orders to all families still in the area.

Engineers were confident the East Side levee, last barrier holding the river back from the business sections of Venice, Madison and Granite City, Ill., would stand.

Below Dupo the north flank of the Harrisonville Levee gave way, flooding 27,800 acres, and farther downstream near Chester, Ill., the Degognia Levee went out. Water cut off the communities of Grand Tower and Gorham, Ill., from highway travel.

The Mississippi at St. Louis stood for several hours at 40.1 feet but the Weather Bureau predicted a crest of 40.5 feet before the fall starts. That would be .80 of a foot under the high recorded in 1844.

Record Corn Price Laid to Flood Loss

Crop destruction by floods in the Midwest sent corn futures to a new all-time high on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. July contract corn sold for $2.04, half a cent above the previous high established June 26.

The Weather Bureau said prospects for the corn crop brightened during the past few days with better weather in the Midwest. The Bureau said cultivation had advanced in Iowa and the Great Lakes region and that Missouri uplands had become dry enough for replanting.

Police Are Ordered To Stop 'Pocketing' Of Crime Complaints

Truscott's Order to Halt 'Pocketing' of Complaints

Inspector Truscott's order requiring detectives to report all criminal cases that come to their attention is as follows:

July 1, 1947

BUREAU ORDER NO. 1

TO: All members of the Detective Bureau.

SUBJ.: All criminal cases to be recorded on precinct records and reported over the teletype system to headquarters.

Effective at once all criminal cases or complaints of a criminal nature coming to the attention of any member of the Detective Bureau, or of members of the department detailed to the Detective Bureau for duty, shall be promptly recorded on the proper record book of the precinct in which such criminal violation, or alleged violation, is reported to have occurred, in order that such report may be transmitted on the teletype system to headquarters, as well as to the various precincts and bureaus, to the end that every member of the force will be cognizant of same and can exert every effort toward the solution of the crime or alleged criminal violation.

There will be no exceptions to the rule cited above, except by express permission of the undersigned, or the acting commanding officer of the Detective Bureau in my absence, and no exceptions will be made unless it is manifestly in the best interests of public service to temporarily withhold such report in order to comply with the order of a superior officer or higher official of the District or Federal Government where the circumstances of revealing such case to the force at large would materially affect or delay the arrest of the alleged perpetrator.

Detective Chief Truscott Acts After The Post Reveals Extent of Practice

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

"Pocketing" of crime complaints was ordered abolished last night as a result of The Washington Post expose.

Order No. 1 of Detective Chief Floyd A. Truscott directed that all crime complaints be recorded in precinct station books and reported on the police teletype.

It was issued a few hours after Truscott took office and less than 30 minutes after Robert J. Barrett, newly sworn as police superintendent, tossed into his lap entire responsibility for investigating the hidden crime complaints.

About an hour later, Superintendent Barrett announced he would issue a similar order this morning to the entire Police Department. He also said he already had ordered officials to stop the practice.

Credits Post Expose

Barrett conceded "abuses" within the Police Department were exposed by The Post, which discovered more than 600 robbery cases had not been included in official crime reports during the period of July 1, 1946, to May 31, 1947. Barrett was chief of detectives then.

"I want to start with a clean slate," Barrett said.

"I admit that there have been abuses and I am happy that they were exposed before I took office this morning (as superintendent of police)," he said.

He made this statement after he was shown eight additional cases which had not been reported on the police teletype network, but had been held at the Detective Bureau in a secret file. They had never been included in crime statistics.

Last Sunday he accused The Post of dealing in "generalities" in its account of the investigation. He also declared The Post figures were "inaccurate" and arrived at "by erroneous calculation and widespread duplication."

"Pocket" Cases Investigated

Yesterday, in conceding the existence of crime reporting "abuses," the new police chief declared:

"I have ordered all police officials verbally to stop this practice of holding cases immediately, unless there are extraordinary circumstances. I will put this order out in writing through regular channels at 10 o'clock in the morning."

Detective Chief Truscott was given complete charge of the investigation into pocketed cases. Two detective sergeants, John Layton and Louis M. Snyder, were assigned to examine precinct volumes and records at the Detective Bureau.

They will interview each detective who ordered cases "pocketed" to find out why that was done. Upon conclusion of the investigation, statistics of crime in Wash-

Money Bills for U. S. Agencies Again Deadlock House, Senate

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

With nearly all Government agencies out of ready cash, the House and Senate yesterday again deadlocked on emergency funds to carry them into the new fiscal year.

A congressional money bill blockade, just beginning to crumble, left all but two departments with authority to incur obligations but no power to pay out a cent.

Rejecting a limited House move to span the two-to-three-week gap, until log-jammed appropriations are cleared, the Senate insisted on blanket authority for all agencies to carry on at budget levels.

The row apparently will go to conference today when the House again insists on spot treatment authority to meet specific emergencies.

Following a huddle with Senate Appropriations Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), House chairman, predicted all of the piled-up money bills (except the District's) will be law by July 15, in time to meet all departmental payrolls.

He said he wouldn't accept the Senate's blanket continuing resolution, however, because it would mean more spending at the old levels.

'Let Them All Squeal'

"Let them all squeal," he told newsmen. "That's the only way we have of knowing we are doing a job."

President Truman meanwhile signed into law the only appropriation bill enacted to date—the $12,402,485 Treasury - Postoffice measure—with a statement sharply criticizing cuts in tax-collecting machinery.

He said the 20-million-dollar reduction in Internal Revenue appropriations will cost the Treasury at least 400 million dollars in tax collections this year.

Mr. Truman estimated between 4000 and 5000 employes must be dropped and said this couldn't be done "without weakening the en-

House Group Approves D. C. Funds Measure

Full Committee To Act Tuesday on Bill for 96 Million

By Edward F. Ryan

A $95,930,310 District money bill for the new fiscal year was approved by the House District Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday.

The total divided into $81,218,410 for the city general fund, $9,145,900 for the highway fund, and $5,566,000 for the water fund.

Tax Rate Set at $2 Per $100 Assessed Value

The District Commissioners yesterday set the tax rate on real and tangible property at $2 per $100 assessed value. Details on Page B-1.

Subcommittee Chairman Walt Horan (R., Wash.) said details of the funds for separate agencies would be withheld pending action on the bill by the full House Appropriations Committee.

Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) said the full committee will act on the District money bill next Tuesday, and House action will be sought the next day.

At the same time Taber predicted the District appropriation bill will probably be the last to

Three Area Apartment Groups Ask 15% Voluntary Rent Raises

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Three major Greater Washington apartment developments are asking their tenants to accept a "voluntary" 15 per cent rent hike. Two of the three reported a large favorable response.

The 15 per cent "voluntary" rent raise is no issue in the District, which operates under a separate rent control law and is unaffected by the revised rent and housing controls, effective yesterday. One large D. C. landlord petitioned the rent control commissioner for an 8 per cent rent increase.

Under provisions of the new national controls, rent ceilings continue until March 1, 1948. However, between July 1 and that date landlords may negotiate "voluntary" rent hikes up to 15 per cent on the basis of leases running to December 31, 1948.

The management of Falkland Apartments, at the end of 16th st. nw., in Silver Spring, disclosed yesterday that half of the 484 tenants have replied affirmatively to a questionnaire asking if they'd accept the "voluntary" raise and lease. Similar, favorable replies are reported at Buckingham Community, North Glebe rd., Arlington, with 1800 tenants. The rent raises and leases will go into effect August 1 at both developments.

A poll to determine the attitude of 400 familes living at Bradley Boulevard Apartments, Hillandale rd., Bethesda-Chevy Chase, is still being conducted.

Admiral Adolphus Staton who runs the Falkland Apartments said yesterday that the 15 per cent raise was imperative, what with operating costs up 59 per cent since before the war and Montgomery County levying $17,600 in increased real estate taxes.

Edmund D. Campbell, attorney for the owners of the Skyland development, 2500 block Good Hope rd. se., applied for an average eight per cent rent increase for 222 units. A public hearing has been set for the morning of July 17.

Post's Expose Seen As Public Service

Senator John Sherman Cooper (R., Ky.), a member of the District Committee, told The Post its "investigators are performing a public service in bringing this matter to public attention.

"It is obvious that the people of any governmental subdivision cannot know the extent of crime and judge the efficiency of the police without accurate statistical information.

"More important, if all reports of crimes and actions taken are not filed with a central agency where they can be examined and checked by responsible police officials and the public, there is always the possibility that crimes may be concealed and certain individuals protected.

"Of course, I have no information that this has been done, but full publicity is always the best deterrent against official delinquency."

GOP Leaders Meet On New Tax Cut Bill

Over Dooley

That Texas Feud Stalls Senate Again

The Senate, in the throes of a pre-adjournment rush of work, yesterday had to take time out to consider the patronage feud between Texas' two Senators.

Before the chamber was the question of confirming the Federal judgeship nomination of Joe B. Dooley of Amarillo, backed by Senator Tom Conally nad bitterly opposed by Senator W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel, both Democrats.

O'Daniel said it would take him "hours" to present his objections to the nominee, whom he termed "personally obnoxious to me." He declared Dooley's nomination was "a diabolical plot of the New Deal gang to try to purge me." He pictured his opponents in Texas as saying, if Dooley is confirmed, that O'Daniel "is just a weak sister up there. He has no power or influence."

When the Senate finally put the issue aside to take up other business, it agreed that O'Daniel could have the floor again today.

While O'Daniel spoke yesterday, Senator Connally sat silent, leaving it to Chairman Wiley of the Judiciary Committee to carry on the fight for Dooley's confirmation. Wiley's committee had voted 8 to 4 for approval of the nominee.

Wiley told the Senate he regretted having to take the Senates' time in such a matter, and added:

"It just goes to show that all men, at times are little boys."

Strength to Beat Second Veto Seen Deciding Program

A House leadership proposal to proceed forthwith to pass the new Knutson January tax reduction bill through the House, whether or not the Senate votes this year, touched off these developments yesterday:

1. House and Senate Republican taxmakers convened hurriedly in mittee room. The outlook for over the House Ways and Means comriding a second veto was reviewed from every angle, but no decision reached.

2. Senate Republican Steersman Robert A. Taft (Ohio) told newsmen Senate representatives generally opposed bringing tax reduction up again unless both Houses passed the bill, and had the votes to over-ride a second veto.

3. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (Mass.), said he personally "liked the idea" of quick House action on the bill, whether or not the Senate decides to take it up. Martin said the House now has the two-thirds vote needed to override another veto. Whether or not the Senate can over-ride, he said, depends on how many Democrats join in support of the bill there.

Await Parley Today

Tax conferees agreed to delay any decision until House and Senate Republican leaders hold a session's-end program conference today.

Senate leaders, headed by Taft, and House leaders, captained by Martin, will meet at 3:30 p. m. to budget what bills will be handled on both sides of the Capitol before adjournment, now slated for July 26.

Tax reduction is only one of the many program dilemmas awaiting a decision today. The group must also decide what to do about housing, minimum wage legislation, universal training, Federal aid to education, anti-pool tax legislation, and other unpassed bills.

As reintroduced by House Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), the new tax cut measure makes only one small change in the bill vetoed by the President. It moves up the effective date of the law from July, 1947, to January 1, 1948. The 10½ to 30 per cent income tax cuts would be the same.

Five Change Views

Republican sentiment for a second go at cutting taxes rose sharply when a Senate canvass by Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and others turned up at least five Senate Democrats who previously voted against the bill, or opposed overriding the President, who now would go along. But some tied conditions to their vote. Roughly, it assured Senate Republicans of 61 Senate votes to override a second veto.

To provide an iron-clad guarantee of a Senate over-rider, 64 votes would be needed. To see if three mor vots could be turned up in a pinch, continuing polls were in progress yesterday on both sides of the Capitol. Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) is expected to report the results of his own findings before House-Senate program conferees convene today.

Main Arguments

Here are some of the arguments privately advanced by party leaders last night for and against independent House action:

If the House passed the second bill, without assurance of Senate action, it would leave Senate Republicans "on the spot," particularly if they adjourned without action.

But if the Senate acted also, without actually counting enough votes to over-ride another veto, Republicans might take their second bad licking of the session at President Truman's hands.

Those who favor expeditious House action argue it might "put on enough heat" to swing the two or three additional Senate votes needed to over-ride a veto.

In any event, they contend it would be good politics to have a GOP bill through the House, and on the way to final passage, just in case the President recommends tax reduction in his next state of the union message.

Girl, 16, Bequeaths Baby-Sitting Jobs, Then Kills Herself

Pittsburgh, July 1 (U.P.).—The note ended: "P. S.—You never get mad at Don—only me. Give all my baby-sitting jobs to Naomi and Shirley." After writing those words last night, 16-year-old Doris June Kirsop tripped the trigger of a .22 rifle with a coathanger and sent a bullet crashing into her head. She died in Mercy Hospital.

Doris had wanted to go to an amusement park, but had been told by her parents to stay home.

She left this note addressed to her parents and brother:

"Dear Mom and Dad and Don: I am sorry for what has happened before but this is the only way out. I couldn't stand you and Dad giving me those hurt looks anymore. Sorry it ended this way. Your loving daughter, JUNE."

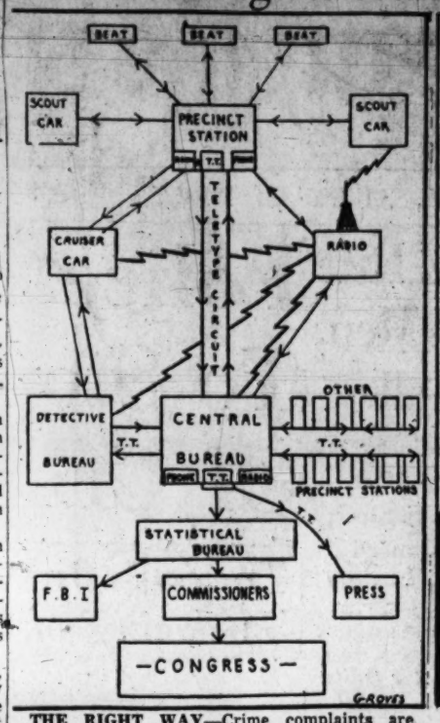
On the other side was written: "I just wanted to go up the street. Every time I go out all you tell me is that I go out to see the boys, and it isn't true. Love, JUNE."

Then followed the postscript, bequeathing her baby-sitting jobs to Shirley Smith, her cousin, and Naomi Kohlmeyer, a friend.

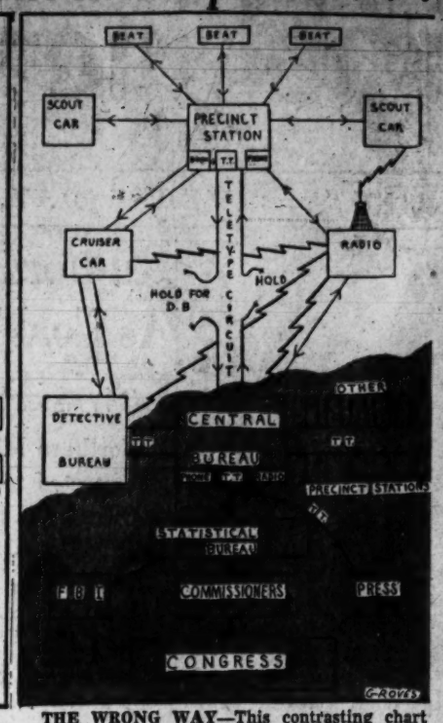
Cities Tackle Housing

Chicago (U.P.).—Several major cities are creating new full-time jobs in their governments to help cope with their housing shortages, the National Association of Housing Officials reports.

How Washington Crimes Are Reported . . .



THE RIGHT WAY—Crime complaints are entered on the precinct books and reported from the precincts on the teletype to the central bureau, as indicated on this chart. Crimes are reported by detective bureau's cruisers in the vicinity to the nearest precinct as well as by the precinct's own scout cars. All reports should be sent over the teletype network, from which crime statistics are gathered



THE WRONG WAY—This contrasting chart shows what happens when detective bureau men "pocket" crime complaints and hide them in secret files or have them marked "hold" in the precincts. $n neither case are they reported on the police teletype network, which, in theory, is cut by this malpractice. Departments and bureaus (shaded) never learn of the "hold" cases. When cases are hidden in secret detective bureau files, the precinct where the crime originates also may be in the dark about the cases

Police Are Ordered to Stop 'Pocketing' Crime Complaints

ington will be corrected to present a true picture, Barrett said.

Truscott's order No. 1 pointed out to the Detective Bureau that failure to report crimes through the teletype had hampered crime detection because not all police were notified.

Accurate Statistics Vital

The only exception to be permitted are those cases in which a solution might be hampered by revealing it to the entire force. The delay is to be a temporary one, however. Others may be temporarily withheld, he said, on orders of "higher officials of the District or Federal Government" for the same reason.

Truscott declared that accurate statistics and records of the Police Department "are of vital importance to the Police Department, the public, FBI, Criminal Justice Association and courts.

"I also feel they are of vital importance to those committees of Congress concerned with affairs of the District of Columbia as an indice of both legislation and appropriations."

Both Barrett and Truscott were sworn in on their new posts yesterday morning in the office of District Commissioner John Russell Young.

Surrounded by family, friends and just plain handshakers, the two solemnly said "I do" to the oath given by Geoffrey Thornett, board secretary.

Barrett donned his uniform for the first time in many years. As chief of detectives he could wear civilian clothing. Truscott doffed his uniform, required while he was captain at the Thirteenth Precinct, and wore cool civilian clothes. Conspicuous on Truscott's lapel was the insignia of discharge from the Navy, in which he served for four years as a commander in Naval Intelligence.

Just before the ceremony, Barrett joshed with an official who was congratulating him. "I feel sort of strange in uniform," said Barrett. The official replied: "I believe this is the first time I've ever seen you in uniform."

Flowers dominated the ceremonies at the District Building and at Police Headquarters.

A second ceremony was held at the Detective Bureau's "Line-Up" room where suspects are paraded before victims for identification.

"I have my weaknesses," said Barrett to the jammed headquarters audience. "I didn't get much education in schools. What little I know came from the University of Hard Knocks.

"What little I know of police work came from pounding the bricks and alleys. My knowledge didn't come from books.

"The door of my office will always be open to anyone with suggestions to better the administration of the Police Department."

The keynote of his administration, Barrett said, would be "courtesy and respect" for law-abiding citizens.

Flowers Sent to Callahan

Afterwards, he and Mrs. Truscott sent their largest basket of flowers to the home of Maj. Harvey G. Callahan, whose illness forced his retirement as police superintendent. The other baskets were distributed to hospitals.

The Post investigation, extending over almost two weeks, disclosed that more than 600 cases of robberies alone had not been included in police reports of complaints received. This was in addition to the 761 cases officially reported for the 11 months of 1946 surveyed.

Of the 600, more than 300 were found on precinct books marked "hold" at the request of Detective Bureau sergeants. They had never been reported to the statistical branch or on the teletype.

More than 300 others were found in secret "C" and "M" files of the Detective Bureau's robbery squad. They had never been entered in precinct records as required by police regulations, they had never been made known to the public, they had never been sent on the teletype.

The executive board of the Washington Criminal Justice Association is scheduled to meet this afternoon to discuss what action it should take in the light of The Post disclosures. The meeting, of prominent local citizens, is scheduled at the office of the association president, John A. Remon, 725 13th st. nw.

The association, a Community Chest agency, was incorporated here 11 years ago to "promote and obtain an efficient administration of criminal justice in the Nation's Capital." In the course of its investigations, it leans heavily on crime statistic reports it receives from the Police Department.

Last of 7 Million U. S. POWs Freed

Munich, Germany, July 1 (U.P.).—Former Major Walter Hartwich today had the dubious distinction of being the last of the seven million German war prisoners captured by the Americans to be released.

Hartwich received his "discharge papers" yesterday at Dachau.

Taylor Offers Resolution for Realty Probe

By The Associated Press

Responding to President Truman's appeal, Senator Taylor (D., Idaho) yesterday introduced legislation calling for a $50,000 investigation of the real estate lobby.

Taylor's resolution would authorize the Senate Banking Committee to conduct a "full and complete" inquiry into the "activities, connections, methods and financing of all organizations and groups, commonly known as the real estate lobby."

Mr. Truman made his plea for an inquiry in signing with reluctance the rent-control extension bill which permits 15 per cent rent increases. He said the lobby had shown a "ruthless disregard" of public welfare by its "brazen operations."

The Banking Committee would be required to report its findings by January 1.

Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) denounced Mr. Truman's lobby inquiry proposal as "the cheapest kind of political demogoguery."

But Senator Taft, Bricker's Ohio colleague and—like Bricker—widely mentioned as an aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, told reporters in commenting on the President's call for a full investigation:

"I wouldn't mind doing that myself."

Taft is one of the authors of pending legislation to set up a long-range housing program which Mr. Truman commended and which Bricker condemns.

Arthur H. Binns, head of the National Home and Property Owners Foundation, said his group would welcome an investigation.

However, Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, declared in another statement that "it is nonsense to talk about investigating us" because Congress has "the complete records of our activities as required by law."

Soviet Buys Mansion For N. Y. Consulate

New York, July 1 (U.P.).—The Soviet government today owned an imposing Park ave. mansion with 32 rooms and 12 baths, purchased as the permanent home of its local consulate. The property cost almost half a million dollars.

Jacob M. Lomakin, Russian Consul General in New York, bought the mansion at the corner of 68th st. and Park ave. last night, a few hours before expiration of the Russian lease on the Pratt mansion at 7 E. 61st st, which the consulate has been occupying.

The Russians were expected to move almost immediately.

Russian Reports 'KR' Remedy For Cancer Is 50% Effective

By Howard Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Reporter

New York, July 1 (AP).—The American Review of Soviet Medicine, published by the American-Soviet Medical Society of New York, reports today that the new Russian cancer remedy, KR, is dissolving the malignant growths on about half of the patients thus far treated.

Whether these people may be expected to remain cancer free is not predicted, but one of the patients now has remained well for two and a half years.

Today's report is the latest in a series describing better preparations of KR, greater dosages and more apparent effectiveness.

Wife Wrote Report

The report is written by Mme. N. G. Klyueva, wife of G. Roskin, who discovered the remedy. The name is the initials of husband and wife.

KR is a chemical extract from the bodies of South American trypanosomes, spindle-shaped parasites that get into human blood and cause Chagas disease. Bedbugs are the carriers.

Roskin discovered in 1938 that in otherwise healthy animals, trypanosomes concentrate in the heart, spleen, liver, bone marrow and lymphatic glands. But in animals with cancer, these parasites desert those organs and gather in the malignant growth. They destroy the animal cancers.

That fact led to search for the chemical compound in the parasites bodies that presumably attacked the malignant tissues. This compound is still chemically unidentified.

Mme. Klyueva states that KR is harmless to humans but causes fever, which is higher and higher as the dose is increased. But with purer preparations of KR it has been possible, she adds, to increase the dose up to 500 times the first one given a human being. Whether the cancer disappears she says depends both on how fast it is being dissolved and how fast the growth of healthy tissue (fibrosis) occurs to replace the cancer.

Treated so far are cancers of the larnyx, esophagus, breast, lip and cervix. Five out of ten larynx cancer cases apparently recovered. Three out of five breast cases likewise, and three cases of cervix cancer are getting better.

The consequences: 18 months in jail.

Paris, July 1 (U.P.).—A cordon of 2000 armed policemen surrounded the National Assembly Building tonight to prevent threatened demonstrations by Left Wing workers as the government pursued its investigation of a Right Wing plot to overthrow the Fourth Republic.

[National Security Police told the Associated Press a conspirators' plot to seize all of France's military airports and her fighter and bomber planed har been smashed.

[The plot evidently was part of an over-all plan by the Black Maquis to overthrow the Fourth Republic next month.]

Police, reinforced by special antiriot cars, erected 4-foot barriers around the building.

Fear of riotous demonstrations resulted from threats of leaders of 1,500,000 metal workers who held a one-day strike today in protest against the austerity financial program of Premier Paul Ramadier.

Strikers held mass meetings in many provincial cities to demand better food and production bonuses.

Bank Clerks Win Strike

A 12-day strike of bank clerks ended tonight when the government made concessions as regards wages. Banks will reopen tomorrow.

Ramadier announced that he would seek a vote of confidence—at the end of the finance-economics debate now in progress.

[A man who described himself as a leader in the plot said in an interview today that 25,000 armed men were ready to lead a "march on Paris at the appropriate moment."]

[The self-designated spokesman of the "Black Maquis" boasted that the plot would not be crushed by the arrests.

["For every one of us they arrest there are two to take his place," he told Mel Most, an Associated Press reporter.

[The interview took place at a busy corner of the Champs Elysees as the result of an anonymous note to the reporter.]

The son of a high foreign office official was arrested tonight in the plot.

The suspect, Claude Chauvel, 20, was identifed as the son of Jean Chauvel, secretary general of the Foreign Ministry.

It was reported that the Surete had arrested Air Force Capt. Andre Prat, on suspicion of being the liaison man between the Black Maquis and the Air Corps.

Authorities today announced the arrest of Col. Gilbert Renaud, who during the war was attached to the headquarters of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the new RFP—Union of French People—Right Wing party. Renaud was an audacious resistance leader under the nom de guerre of Remy.

Tonight the Surete denied officially that Renaud was under arrest.

Some newspapers laughed at the plot and hinted it was singular that news of it came just at a time when it might divert attention from the government's troubles in the finance and economic fields.

Rubber Embargo Queried

London, July 1 (U.P.).—A question for the Foreign Office was filed in the Commons today by laborite David Rees-Williams asking what representation are being made to the United States about "the embargo placed on the import of natural rubber by the U. S. Government with its serious effects on the economy of British Malaya."

Red Culture for Reich

Berlin, July 1 (U.P.).—The Soviet Army newspaper Taegliche Rundschau reported today that a "society for the study of Soviet culture" has been organized in the Soviet zone to help Germans along the road to democracy.

Near Roman Port

Italian Ship Explodes And Kills 68

Rome, July 1 (A.P.).—Sixty-eight persons were killed and several others were believed trapped below decks today when the Italian munitions ship Panigaglia exploded at Porto Santo Stefano, near the port of Rome, the Italian news agency Ansa reported.

The 643-ton vessel was unloading munitions which she had transported from the former Italian island fortress of Pantelleria when the blast occurred.

Ansa said that 55 crew members, 12 longshoremen and the marshal of the port were known to have been killed, Rome afternoon newspapers reported that the death toll was "more than 70."

Several hours after the blast, rescue workers reported that they heard tappings in the extreme after section of the vessel and divers attempted to cut their way into the hold.

Only four bodies had been recovered, Ansa said.

Allied military sources in Rome said the Italians were demilitarizing Pantelleria, under terms of the Italian treaty.

Allied munitions experts said explosives on Pantelleria had become "unstable." This might have caused the blast.

Ansa reported the ship was carrying 330 tons of munitions.

'Slave's' Room Unfit for Cat, Witness Says

San Diego, Calif., July 1 (A.P.).—Negro maid Dora Jones lived in a Boston Beacon Hill room now used for garbage, a witness testified at the slavery trial of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls here today as city police patrolled the Federal courthouse against repetition of a crowd disturbance.

The witness, Mrs. Olivia Ann Lynn, wife of a Boston investment counselor, also testified the maid, whom the Ingalls are charged with reducing to enslavement through many years of threats and drudgery, was a tiny woman "doing men's jobs."

Police were called when a crowd of several hundred, mostly Negroes, pressed against the courtroom doors in anticipation of admission. Only those who could be seated were admitted and the corridors were cleared.

Mrs. Lyman, who said she and her husband purchased the five-story, 60 Beacon st. home from the Ingalls last year, said the Negro maid in a bare-six-by-seven foot room next to the laundry.

"We now use it for garbage and trash," she said.

She declared she did not consider the room fit for her children's kitten.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Winters, owner of a tourist home at Fremont, Ohio, testified that the Ingalls stopped there Sept. 25 last year while moving to California.

The couple did not ask for a room for Dora Jones, the witness said, and explained that the maid would sleep in their automobile.

Jap Premier Asks Early Peace Pact

Tokyo, July 1 (U.P.).—Premier Tetsu Katayama today asked the Allied Powers to conclude an early peace treaty with Japan and emphasized that his country does not want territories, but wants moral and economic assistance to effect the country's rehibilitation.

Addressing the Diet in his first administrative speech since the April elections, Katayama pointed out that Japan was making smooth progress toward decocratization.

Film Actress Ordered Held In Kidnaping of Two Men

Hollywood, July 1 (U.P.).—Film Actress Madge Meredith, 26, was ordered arrested today on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery, and assault with intent to commit murder.

Barclay Thomas, 33, and Damon Klinkenberg, 32, were booked on suspicion of kidnaping and assault with intent to commit murder. Officers said Klinkenberg admitted the "plot," and implicated the others, including the actress, whose real name is Marjorie Massow.

Nicholas Gianaclis, 38, and Vern V. Davis, 32, restaurant supply wholesalers, charged they were seized and beaten yesterday as they drove to work. They escaped from an armed guard in Lopez Canyon, they said.

A woman identified by the victims as Miss Meredith swung her car just ahead of Gianaclis' machine to block the road. Another car pulled up behind.

Thomas and Klinkenberg emerged from it, allegedly slugged their victims with saps, covered them with a blanket and drove them to Lopez Canyon.

Klinkenberg remained on guard but Gianaclis and Davis overpowered him.

Gianaclis said he was being divorced by his wife. He had deeded some property to Miss Meredith to conceal his assets, but the actress didn't want to return the property, he charged.

Klinkenberg denied Gianaclis' charge that the actress hired the men.

Levee Workers Battle Rising Mississippi

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CARRY ON THROUGH THE NIGHT—Volunteer workers toss sandbags aboard a flat-bottom barge near Rockwood, Ill., as they struggle to strengthen levees protecting farm lands of Randolph County from the rising flood waters of the Mississippi River. Overnight rains made the river, already at a 103-year peak, continue to swell. New levee breaks forced thousands to flee in the Austrain-Yugoslav border area.

According to British reports the situation is aggravated by activities of "White Guards," bands of Slovene anti-Communists who, using Austria as a base, carry out raids on Yugoslovia, killing Yugoslav frontier guards and attacking shops and factories inside Yugoslavia as far south as Maribor.

Tito Still Demands Carinthia, London Source Declares

London, July 1 (U.P.).—Marshall Tito refused to budge from Yugoslavia's demand for Carinthia from Austria when the controversial question was discussed by him and British Air Minister Philip Noel-Baker a fortnight ago, a well-informed diplomatic source said today.

Noel-Baker's good-will mission was described as otherwise successful.

Diplomatic quarters said today that Yugoslavia's persistance was bound to complicate the situation

Fight of 3 N. Y. Bank V-P's in Bar Revealed

Rye, N. Y., July 1 (U.P.).—Vincent L. Banker, 47-year-old vice president of the Chase National Bank, fought with two fellow vice presidents at the country club party of the bank's officials, it was learned today at an inquest into his death on June 25.

Banker died of a cerebral hemorrhage almost three weeks after the party at the Senqrock Shore Club here.

Dr. Amos O. Squire, Westchester medical examiner, reserved decision.

Charles F. Puckhafer of Scarsdale, N. Y., one of the vice presidents involved, said Banker began scuffling with him in the barroom and broke his glasses.

Henry J. McTavish, another vice president, Puckhafer said, called to Banker to show more respect for gray hair. Puckhafer is elderly.

"Banker made a rush for McTavish and said 'I'll plant one on your nose,'" Puckhafer testified. He said McTavish landed two blows and Banker sat on the floor.

McTavish testified that when he saw Banker and Puckhafer scuffling he stepped between them.

"A few minutes later," he said, "Banker directed profane and obscene language at me.

"I had a definite impression that he was about to strike me," he said. "I struck him."

McTavish denied there had ever been any graude between him and Banker.

Seeks Freedom

Ten Called On Plea of Mrs. Durant

Charleston, W. Va., July 1 (A.P.).—Ten Army officers from every section of the Nation, including four WACs, have been summoned here as witnesses in a Federal Court hearing July 14 on former Wac Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant's application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Mrs. Durant is serving five years at the Federal Reformatory at, Alderson, W. Va., on an Army court martial conviction in the $1,500,000 Hesse family jewel theft. Mrs. Durant contended that, as a civilian, her trial by Army court martial was improper.

District Attorney Leslie E. Given said that among witnesses summoned is Major John D. Salb of Cheverly, Md.

The Government has formally asked the court to dismiss the habeas corpus writ awarded Mrs. Durant by Judge Ben Moore in Federal District Court for Southern West Virginia.

Mrs. Durant and her husband, Col. Jack W. Durant, formerly of Arlington, Va., were convicted for participating in the theft of the Hesse crown jewels from the Kronberg Castle in Germany. He was sentenced to 15 years at hard labor and dishonorably discharged from the Army Air Forces.

Uncerain 'Bride' Disagrees With Herself for Third Time

Chicago, July 1 (U.P.).—Rossana Peveri, the uncertain "bride," changed her mind for the third time today and her would-have-been groom, the Chicago police and the British government shuddered.

"Marriage," she said, as of 1 p.m., "is not even worth bothering about."

Miss Peveri, 24, and brunette, came here from London to marry Peter Vasquez, 26. He met her in London while he was with the Army.

At their wedding ceremony Sunday, she said "no," instead of "I do," when asked if she would take Vasquez for her ever-loving.

She changed her mind yesterday, but Vasquez said he wasn't interested.

Miss Peveri, who came into the United States under a $500 bond posted by her aunt, Mrs. Ida Mazaroni, Jersey City, N. J., has been staying at the home of Vasquez's parents.

She became upset about her dilemma last night and Vasquez summonded police. Hhe explained about the bond and that she was a British subject. He suggested that she be taken into protective custody.

The police said they couldn't lock up a British subject. They appealed to the British Consul, who also declined action.

The Consul and police suggested that Miss Peveri and Vasquez think things over, but Vasquez said it wouldn't do any good.

Miss Peveri said she probably would go to her aunt's home as soon as she had seen Chicago.

Warren Quits as Conciliation Service Head

The resignation of Edgar L. Warren, director of the United States Conciliation Service, was announced yesterday by Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach.

It will take effect on August 21, when the service is transferred to a new, independent agency created by the Taft-Hartley Act. It may be even earlier, it was indicated, if President Truman appoints the head of the new organization, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, before that date.

Warren, a former War Labor Board official, became head of the Conciliation Service on September 18, 1945. Recently he was under bitter attack by Representative Keefe (R., Wis.), on charges of being a Communist Party line follower.

Keefe, head of an Appropriations Subcommittee handling Labor Department funds, persuaded the House to approve a bill which would have forced Warren's discharge and that of about 100 other top officials.

The Senate, however, refused to agree to the provision, holding that Keefe's charges were unfounded.

Appropriations for the Service were stalemated for months in the controversy. The day before yesterday, however, the House receded from its position, appropriating funds for the Service until its transfer, with no strings attached.

Then, last night, conferees on the Labor-Federal Security appropriations bill, which had been held up by the Conciliation Service row, reached full agreement on the bill. The compromise measure carries one billion, 675 million dollars for the two agencies, including:

$200,000 to continue the Division of Labor Standards which the House had eliminated and for which the Senate allowed $400,000.

$4,974,000 for the National Labor Relations Board or the full amount allowed by the Senate when it increased funds $941,000. The new larger board set up under the Taft-Hartley bill will require more funds later.

$3,373,400 for the Bureau of Labor Statistics which is $1,000,000 more than voted by the House but $376,600 less than allowed by the Senate.

$14,500,000 for the National Cancer Institute. The House approved $17,328,200 for this public health agency but the Senate reduced this by $5,328,000. The compromise restores $2,500,000 with the provision that $500,000 be used for streptomycin treatment of tuberculosis.

$4,250,000 for mental health activities which is $250,000 more than voted by the House and $250,000 less than added by the Senate.

$3,500,000 for administrative expenses of the United States Employment Service, which compares with $2,656,800 voted by the House and $4,366,400 allowed by the Senate.

A Senate reduction of $14,345,000 in the USES grants to States to operate these agencies was retained. This left the fund at $57,382,400.

Warren apparently waited until he was cleared of the charge hanging over him before announcing his resignation.

Schwellenbach, writing Warren him highly.

Warren said yesterday he had made no decision on his future plans.

Boy on Bike Saves Family From Flood

Quincy, Ill., July 1 (AP).—A 13-year-old boy today pedaled his bicycle through flood water topping a levee in the Indian Grave Drainage District to warn neighbors and summon aid when a dike crumbled.

Mrs. Claus Kroenecke, whose home was just inside a levee which gave way to Mississippi flood waters today, said her 13-year-old son, Eugene, pedaled his way through the swirling water to get help for her and his five brothers and sisters. Mrs. Kroenecke and the children spent several hours marooned in the upper story of their home before the help summoned by the amphibian cyclist arrived.

who is right and who is wrong in the current negotiations.

If a serious strike should develop, he said, he believed that the President should invoke the "national emergency" provisions of the new law and appoint a board of inquiry, which the section prescribes, to determine the merits of the dispute.

As he has done before, Taft objected to the idea of further Government seizure of the mines.

"It is clear," he said, "that sooner or later the mines must be returned to their owners and that we must some time face the problem of a new agreement between miners and operators. It would seem that now is as good a time to meet that problem as any other time."

Promises "Sharp Teeth"

Hartley said his new legislation is being drafted by technical aides of his committee and has "sharp teeth in it." It would pick up sections of his original labor bill which were deleted from the Taft-Hartley Act when the measure was in a joint Senate-House conference commitee.

Among these are prohibitions against "monopolistic" strikes and industry-wide bargaining.

The bill will be held up, he said, until it is clear whether the present coal miners' annual vacation is continued as a full-fledged strike. He admitted he had not checked the bill with his committee but—as he has forecast before on other measures—he expressed confidence that the group would approve it and send it to the House floor in 24 hours.

But it was problematical whether that or any similar bill would be acted upon at this session of Congress. House Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) has expressed himself as opposed to passage of further labor law at this time, and Taft has been less than lukewarm to ideas of another labor law except in a national crisis.

Later in the day, Hartley offered a new idea. Speaking in New York, he demanded that President Truman at once convene a board of inquiry under the new law, and prepare to move for an injunction to stop a coal strike.

Vacation Ends Monday

The miners' vacation ends next Monday. Two days ago the mines were restored to their private owners after being held by the Government for 13 months. The question was whether a contract would be negotiated between the owners and Lewis before Monday, and if not, whether the miners would stay away under their "no contract, no work" slogan.

Developments were negative yesterday in the Nation's second most troublesome labor dispute, that involving striking East and Gulf Coast shipyard workers.

Of the 30 yards on the two coasts, 22 are shut down, with about 120,000 on strike. The key company in the dispute, Bethlehem Steel, met yesterday in New York with the CIO Marine and Shipbuilding Workers in a conference arranged by H. R. Colwell, regional director of the United States Conciliation Service. There were no immediate results, and another meeting is scheduled for today.

Meantime, in Washington, the AFL yesterday "reluctantly" told its member unions yesterday to stop writing "no strike" pledges into their new contracts with employers.

It said the ban imposed by the Taft-Hartley Act upon jurisdictional strikes and boycotts "leave us no alternative." The argument was that unions may be obliged to strike to obtain their goals, since the law no longer is of aid to them.

Cavalcade of Freedom Fireworks Include Picture of Truman

Fifteen set pieces of fireworks, including an outline map of the United States and portrait of President Truman, will highlight America's Cavalcade of Freedom, 1947, to be held on the Monument Grounds Friday night at 7:30.

Among fireworks set pieces which will go off from mounts to the rear of the Monument Grounds stage are portraits of George Washington and John Paul Jones and a reproduction of the American flag.

The program is under the joint auspices of the District of Columbia Recreation Board, the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade, the Motion Picture Owners of Greater Washington, and National Capital Parks.

15,000 Seats on Sale

Admission to the Monument Grounds for the celebration will be free. About 15,000 chairs are on sale at $1, including tax, for those who wish to be seated during the demonstration.

Tickets for such chairs are on sale at the ticket caravan trailer, 14th and Pennsylvania ave. nw. at most local hotels, at local automobile association headquarters and at People's Drug Stores.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Senator Henry C. Dworshak will be speakers for the event. Concert music will be played by the Army, Navy and Marine Corps bands.

Four local readers will recite poetry from Decca's album, "Our Current Heritage." The assemblage will be led in the ledge of allegiance by P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the executive committee sponsoring the celebration.

Also as a part of Washington's celebration of Independence Day, eight naval vessels will dock today in berths along the Anacostia River at the Naval Gun Factory.

The ships will arrive late this afternoon as part of the Navy's observance not only of Independence Day but also of the bicentennial of John Paul Jone's birthday. They will be open to the public all day on July 4, and during the afternoons of July 5 and 6.

Md. Sales Tax Goes in Effect

the Prince Georges County Independent Trade Association and operator of a gas station at 4802 Rhode Island ave., Hyattsville, said, "We just aren't able to absorb the penny. Our labor costs have doubled and our margin has stayed the same."

However, in Silver Spring, J. B. Wrathall, operator of Barrett's Service Station, corner of Colesville rd. and Georgia ave., began working on a sign indicating his pumps would deliver gas at the District prices.

Matches D. C. Price

A dealer across the street, the Washington Auto Auction of 8511 Colesville rd., announced that prices would be held at the District level, too.

Effect of the increase on gasoline sales was not clear. A Lord Baltimore gas station at 5355 Wisconsin ave. in the District held prices at 20 3/10 a gallon on regular and 23 3/10 on high test. Business was reported as "a little less than usual."

Several blocks away, across the District line in Bethesda, another Lord Baltimore station upped the price to 21 3-10 and 24 3-10 and found business was "about the same, although a few customers didn't fill 'em up when they found out about the tax."

Warns Motorists

Hartley warned Marylanders that "every gallon of gasoline you buy in the District will take 5 cents away from the State taxes, of which the road funds get the biggest part."

Informed of the Silver Spring price cut, Hartley said he felt the District would soon adopt an additional cent gasoline tax and the price discrepancy would be of "short duration." The District gasoline tax jump was approved by a House-Senate conference committee last week.

Many store customers complained the tax "sneaked up" on them. When informed of its presence, they reacted differently.

A salesman in the Chevy Chase Tire Co., 7029 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, said a woman became irate over a tax on a $10.95 sale, "but bought it anyway when I told her the tax was law." She informed him, however, that she would do her buying in the District in the future, he said.

Several Patrons Complain

At the Park Pharmacy, 33 Laurel ave., Takoma Park, the day manager, Mrs. Belle Weaver, said several patrons had complained about the tax. They had declared, "'You'll get it this time, but I'll buy down the street in the District next time,'" she reported.

In Hyatsville, the Peoples Drug Store at 5318 Baltimore ave. said there had been little complaint and that little change in business was expected, "People aren't going to travel 5 or 6 miles to the District just to save a few cents," the cigarette counterman predicted.

A few blocks down the street, however, another merchant, speaking from personal experience, differed. A woman entered the Hoffman Home Appliance Store at 5034 Rhode Island ave. yesterday morning and said she wanted to purchase a refrigerator before the tax began.

"Let Them Try"

Informed that it had already become effective, she said she was no longer interested and announced she would purchase the refrigerator in Washington. When told she would have to pay the "use tax," which would amount to the same figure, she replied, "Let them try and get it."

The head of the retail division of the Silver Spring Board of Trade, William W. Wright, predicted his firm would sustain a loss of 25 per cent to business in the next 12 months. He explained that on the sale of expensive items such as diamond rings, patrons would travel to the District since the saving would be large enough to make the trip worthwhile.

A branch store of Jelleff's located at 6836 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, reported sales about normal, but predicted a drop when the customers begin purchasing fur coats and expensive suits where the tax would be heavy.

Slower at Woolworth's

Already, patrons were complaining about the payment of a sales tax in addition to the present 20 per cent excise tax on luxury items such as leather bags, toilet articles and jewelry, according to Miss Helen L. Taylor, store manager.

Imposition of the tax "slowed up the sales" in the F. W. Woolworth store at 3 Laurel ave., Takoma Park, Charles R. Giben, manager, said. His firm was attempting to save a few pennies for patrons by issuing small tickets with each 10-cent purchase.

If the customer buys three other 10 cent items in the store, she merely detaches a piece of the printed slip indicating she has already paid, and is not obligated to pay a penny tax on the other sales.

In restaurants, customers were using a similar device to save a few pennies. In the Silver Spring Grille on Georgia ave., customers were pooling their luncheon checks and paying a tax on the total, rather than on individual tabs.

Hospital Plans Readied

Richmond, Va., July 1, (AP)—Final plans were being readied today on Governor Tuck's order for the construction of two dormitories and five doctors' residences at the Eastern State Hospital at Williamsburg.

Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, State Hospital Commissioner, said plans would be completed and construction started on the housing projects "early in 1948."

Jap Train Wreck Takes Heavy Toll

Tamaguchi, Japan, July 1 (U.P.)—Japanese police reported today that between 100 and 150 passengers were killed or injured when a train was derailed between Kudamatsu and Hikari stations along Japan's Inland Sea.

First reports said the locomotive jumped the tracks into the sea and that three coaches behind it turned over. The accident occurred in Yamaguchi Prefecture on the western side of Honshu Island.

A transportation ministry spokesman in Tokyo said three hours after the tragedy that 10 persons were dead and 50 injured.

Eight-Cent Subway Fare Favored in New York

Officials said the ship was in no danger and that all passengers were safe.

Don't Let Summer Sun Harm Your Hair

YOUR hair-growing structure is delicate and may react unfavorably to over-exposure to the hot rays of the mid-day summer sun. You owe it to yourself, therefore, to learn how you can help, rather than harm your hair, during the summer months.

Twenty years of success endows The Thomas' with the necessary skill and ability to correctly advise you. Consult a Thomas expert today (without charge, in private). He'll tell you when and how to expose your hair to the summer sun; when to wear a hat; what to do about excessive perspiration on the scalp—about salt-water bathing and shower baths. He'll show you, too, how the reliable proved Thomas method removes dandruff scales, and how it relieves the itch which local excrement may cause. Remember—consultation and advice without charge!

Parents Seek Girl Missing Since May 29

Mr. and Mrs. William Cissel of East Pines, Md., last night sought newspaper aid in searching for their 17-year old daughter, who has been missing since May 29.

Miss Barnes

The girl, Mary Ellen Barnes, was last seen by her parents when she left their home at 5707 63rd ave. that morning on her way to work at a Washington department store. She did not return home after work.

Her parents, both deaf mutes, said that they could not recall how she was dressed. They described her as having light blond hair, dark eyes and weighing about 117 pounds. She is five feet, one inch tall. They said that she enjoyed having good times and usually went out with other young people.

clear Congress. He said he expects all the Federal money bills to clear Congress and be signed by the President by July 15, but the District money bill will probably take "two or three days longer."

Meanwhile, Capitol leaders cleared the way for emergency action today to solve the District's fiscal new year cash crisis.

In the crisis, welfare payments for July, due to go out the first day of the month, had to be held up. All but two of the city day-care centers were shut down. One District official said no emergency request for day-care funds had been presented to Congress and they would have to stay closed until their future is decided in the regular District appropriation bill late this month.

Taber said special legislation might reach the President by tonight to give the District the cash for meeting relief and other payments for which the turn of the fiscal year yesterday cut off money.

Bridges Promises Action

After conferring with Taber, Senate Appropriations Chairman H. Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) said the District would be protected in the emergency appropriation bill.

Taber said an $800,000 list of District cash needs presented to his committee by city officials will probably be revised before being included in the special appropriation bill.

Jap Whaling Trip Held Not News to Britain, Australia

Tokyo, July 1 (AP).—A headquarters spokesman denied today that General MacArthur had authorized a Japanese whaling expedition and phosphate mining project on Angaur Island without "due discussions" with the A an and British governments.

Answering recent criticism, the spokesman said "it is patently ridiculous to charge that these temporary and Allied-controlled and supervised projects threaten the economic or military security of any of the Allies."

The spokesman said the American taxpayer would be saved approximately 21 million dollars through the second whaling expedition and fertilizer projects at Anguar.

Surgery Branded 'Publicity Stunt;' Burglar Jailed

Pittsburgh, July 1 (AP).—A judge who doubted that surgery could end a crime career today sent a confessed burglar to prison under a 2 to 12 year sentence after branding the defendent's brain operation a "publicity stunt."

After ruling that Millard Wright was sane when he robbed 10 homes in 1945, Judge J. Malcolm McDonald committed Wright to prison, saying:

"I hope he can be rehabiliated so that he can eventually get a parole, but I doubt it. This man is a habitual criminal.

"It (the story of the operation) reads like the story of a dime novel surgeon. I have no confidence in such surgery."

forcement activities of the bureau," adding:

"It will take years to restore the damage done by the failure of the Congress to support the current efforts of our tax-collecting agency."

The entire bill was cut 883 million below the budget, but the President singled out "the gross inadequacy" of Internal Revenue Bureau funds.

Taber retorted that the bureau has been operated "as political patronage . . . it is filled with people who are not performing the functions they are supposed to perform."

"Revenue will not be reduced by the cut," Taber added, "but many of the employes will have to get out or go to work."

A second big money bill meanwhile hit the road to final approval and the White House as conferees broke their long deadlock on the Labor-Federal Security bill.

State, Justice, Commerce Bill

Quick conference approval was predicted as well for the $551,813,000 State, Justice, Commerce and Judiciary bill approved yesterday by the Senate. The bill goes to conference today with the House, which voted $12,836,508 less. Taber predicted the bill will reach the White House Monday.

The second day's tie-up on emergency funds to carry Federal departments until their appropriations are cleared followed flat refusal of the Senate Appropriations Committee to accept the limited House authorization for specific programs and agencies. The Senate backed up its Appropriations Committee, and sent back to the House the same blanket spending authority for all agencies it approved last week.

Taber at first balked at even laying the Senate's plan before the House. Following a late afternoon conference with Bridges, however, he said "something will be worked out" today.

"We've agreed on the idea, but not the form," he told newsmen.

School Plan Is Approved

Revised building estimates for the proposed Oak Street Elementary School in Falls Church were approved yesterday by the Fairfax School Board, Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson said work would start immediately.

Original plans for a cafeteira and auditorium were dropped when the contractor estimated the job at $475,000. Woodson said the approved estimate was $338,000.

The school will be a 15-classroom building with a capacity of about 500 students.. Space originally planned for a playground will be used temporarily for the cafeteria.

The board also authorized plans to be drawn for new elementary schools at Simms Corner and Hollin Hall. Plans also will be prepared for additions to the white elementary school at Woodlawn and the colored elemeentary school at Vienna. The board started action to borrow $165,000 from the State highwal fund for additions to these two schools.

F. W. Robinson was reelected chairman of the board for the next year. J. H. Rice was reelected assistant superintendent of schools and N. C. Jacobs, clerk of the board.

Action Near By Conferees On OIC Fund

Senate and House Conferees last night were preparing for discussions of a $13,470,000 appropriation which the Senate yesterday added to the State Department appropriations bill for the Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs.

The House refused to appropriate anything for OIC on the ground it had no legislative sanction, but later passed on a three-to-one vote the Mundt bill to give the OIC program permanent status.

The Senate wrote legislative authority for the program into the State Department's appropriatio nbill and voted $13,470,000 to support it, less than half the 31 million requested by the Department.

Secretary of State Marshal will appear before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee today to urge permanent legislative status for America's foreign information program.

The Foreign Relations subcommittee will consider the Mundt bill.

Marshall Favors Fund

Secretary Marshall is expected to urge passage during this session of Congress. Little hope is extended, however, by Republican leaders that the bill will receive the necessary "must" tag to shoehorn it into the already crowded legislative calendar.

The Senate yesterday approved by a voice vote the bill carrying funds for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments in business for the next 12 months.

The Senate voted to give the State Department $234,724,703, as compared with a House grant of $219,128,058; $107,438,230 to the Justice Department, compared with $108,396,500; $192,384,834 to the Commerce Department, as against House figures of $194,305,484 and $19,048,165 to pay Federal judges, compared with $17,146,450.

The total in the Senate version is $145,192,656 below President Truman's budget requests. Reductions include $3,820,517 for Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman's department, $44,974,565 for various State Department functions, and $25,198,934 for the Civil Aeronautics Administration's program of air navigational facilities construction.

The Senate rejected a plea by Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) for increased funds for allocations to States for airport construction and runway expansions under the CAA. It voted to stand pat on a committee recommendation of $32,500,000 for this purpose.

The Senate, however, gave CAA an additional $2,439,000 to hire 355 more employes to help enforce its air safety regulations. But it denied a request for funds to enable the agency to purchase 30 additional aircraft instrument-landing stations.

Free Auto Program For Amputees Ends

By The Associated Press

The Government yesterday terminated its program of free automobiles to amputee war veterans.

The Veterans' Administration said that at last accounting 13,000 veterans had received automobiles and the applications of several thousand others had been approved. Seven thousand applications were rejected. The automobiles cost the Government up to $1600 each.

The program was started last August.

Australia Expects 400,000 Immigrants

London, July 1.—Arthur A. Calwell, Australia minister of immigration, announced in London tonight that he hoped to make arrangements for 400,000 British subjects to emigrate to Australia in the next few years. Calwell said Australia could find employment for 200,000 immediately.

Price Hike Seen

Natural Gas Bill Is Hit At Hearing

By The Associated Press

Anne X. Alpern, city solicitor of Pittsburgh, said yesterday natural gas and pipeline concerns "want to live in an unregulated field, with prices skyrocketing, in a paradise for pipeline companies."

Miss Alperne

Before a Senate Commerce subcommittee, she opposed a bill sponsored by Senator Moore (R., Okla.) which would limit the Federal Power Commission's authority over natural gas to the movement of the fuel in interstate commerce.

She asserted "the real desire" of the natural gas and pipeline companies is not to clarify the present law, but to make certain of increased rates and greater profits.

She said "the basic danger" is that the Moore bill would leave a gap between regulation by the States and the Federal government.

"You would have a never-never land where no control exists, but where everyone in the gas business could obtain profits out of all reason," she said.

Clay Denies Organized Exodus From Red Zone

Stuttgart, Germany, July 1 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay said today the number of Germans crossing illegally from Russian to American occupation zones had increased recently, but that there was nothing to substantiate rumors of an organized exodus.

Clay denied reports that American occupation authorities had questioned Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Hitler's former finance minister, about any plan to revive Germany's economy.

Text of Speech By Marshall to Newswomen

Following is the text of the address by Secretary of State George C. Marshall yesterday before the Women's National Press Club:

SOME people think they see, in the evolution of our political life, evidences of radical changes in our policy on international affairs. The past two years have been replete with allegations that with the coming and going of various public officials there has been an alteration of American foreign policy.

Actually, the attitude of our people and of this Government has shown a remarkable degree of continuity in the face of a complicated and rapidly changing international situation.

The American people emerged from this war with an abiding determination to lay the foundations of a world order in which more could turn their hands to constructive tasks and look with confidence to the development of better lives for themselves and their children. It was for this reason, I think, that they took the prominent part they did in the establishment of the United Nations.

They have been sorely disappointed and disturbed by the setbacks which the principles of international organization have received. They recognize that the conditions of the postwar world have not proved to be as favorable as they had hoped to the development of this concept. They know that the task will be harder than appeared to be in prospect three years ago. But nothing has changed, I am sure, in their determination to create a world in which the principles of the United Nations can have a chance to take root and to flourish.

It was on this determination that United States policy rested as the recent hostilities came to an end, and it is on this determination that it is based today.

IN A democracy no policy, whether foreign or domestic, has the slightest chance of being effective unless it enjoys popular support. This, I think, is especially true of foreign affairs where the remoteness of the events, and the strangeness of foreign national traditions, makes it very difficult for our people to get a clear understanding of even the elements of the problem. Under these conditions the only way in which general or popular support can be secured for any measure relating to foreign affairs is through the medium of the press and radio.

The more complete the public understanding of the issues the less the public will be swayed by the winds of passion and prejudice. The ideal that we could desire in this country would be a public opinion so well grounded that it would discount propaganda and would insure a steady and consistent support of the fundamental objectives of our foreign policy.

We cannot expect 100 per cent support for any particular measure. Our democratic system thrives upon diversity of opinion, and it is this very diversity which operates as a correcting and improving mechanism. With a free press, serious departures from fact or principle, however skillfully promoted, cannot survive very long.

In addition to the difficulty of comprehending the multitudinous factors involved in foreign affairs, there is the fact of a continuous propaganda of misrepresentation. It is regrettable, but perhaps natural in view of our position in the world today, that much of this propaganda is directed against the United States.

Our purposes are distorted, our motives impugned, our traditions and institutions decried and smeared. In countries where a free press operates, as I have remarked, such propaganda has a tendency to correct itself within a reasonable time. But this, unfortunately, is not the case where a free press is suppressed.

THERE has also been much of misunderstanding abroad of the degree and purpose of American economic assistance to other countries and of the conditions under which it has been extended. Much of this has been due to purposeful misrepresentation. Those responsible for this misrepresentation are doing a grave disservice to the suffering peoples whose future depends directly on the success of international cooperation in the economic field.

Historical records clearly show that no people have ever acted more generously and more unselfishly than the American people in tendering assistance to alleviate distress and suffering. The history of past decades records numerous examples of readiness to lend a helping hand in situations where there could not possibly have been other compensation than the satisfaction that comes from assisting those in need.

But it would not be entirely accurate to say that the efforts of this Government to constribute to the restoration of world economy since the termination of the recent war have been motivated solely by considerations of charity. Our people do realize, I feel sure, that a stable and prosperpus world is important to their own well being. They also recognize that a contribution has already been made by many peoples or nations to such a world in the way of tremendous sacrifices in life and property suffered in the course of military operations.

Since the United States suffered no such destruction on its own territory, although suffering heavy losses in lives and national wealth, our people felt it right that this country should make a direct contribution to reconstruction abroad. Accordingly, they offered and expended out of the fruits of their own labor the enormous quantities of American goods and services which have gone to other countries during the past two years. And they have voiced no complaint that for the considerable part of this contribution there has been little of favorable reaction from certain areas abroad, that in fact there has been more of criticism than of appreciation.

THERE could be no more fantastic misrepresentation, no more malicious distortion of the truth than the frequent propaganda assertions or implications that the United States has imperialist aims or that American aid has been offered in order to fasten upon the recipients some form of political and economic domination.

At the end of the war our Government demobilibed the greatest concentration of military power that the world has ever seen. Our armed strength was deployed from the Elbe in Germany to the islands of Japan. This great array was demobilized with amazing rapidity until only comparatively small garrisons of troops were left on the necessary occupation duty in the principal enemy countries. No conditions were attached to this withdrawal.

Since the termination of the war, American goods in the amount of some 82 million tons, valued at over nine billion dollars, have flowed into Europe from this country. No political parties subservient to United States interests have been left behind in European countries to attempt conquest of governments from within. No American agents have sought to dominate the police establishment of European countries. No joint American - European companies have been forced upon reluctant governments.

I do not cite this record as evidence of our peaceful intentions by way of indulging in national boasting, but merely because it is true and judging from some of the charges leveled against the United States it may be in danger of being forgotten.

It would be incorrect to say that the people of this country make no demands regarding the utilization of their contribution to world recovery. They emphatically demand that whatever they contribute shall be effectively used for the purpose for which it was intended; that it should not be expended to serve selfish economic or political interests; and that it should be employed specifically to assist in economic rehabilitation; finally, that it should serve a great purpose in restoring hope and confidence among the people, concerned that the world will know peace and security in the future.

Marshall Rebukes Soviet For Red Slurs on Aid Aim

ditions would mean, in effect, the relaxation of Russia's iron grip on the economic life of her satellites in eastern and southeastern Europe. Only the faintest wisp of hope remains in Washington that Molotov will agree, although his satellite governments are believed to be making strenuous efforts to persuade him to let them join in the economic recovery of the continent.

Secretary Marshall's speech yesterday had the subsidiary purpose of calling American attention to the misrepresentation of the United States by Soviet and other foreign propaganda. The Secretary and his department have been fighting a losing battle on Capitol Hill for enough money to conduct an adequate broadcasting and information program to counteract what he called yesterday, "a continuous propaganda of misrepresentation."

Hurt "Suffering Peoples"

"Our purposes are distorted, our motives impugned, our traditions and institutions decried and smeared," the Secretary said. Whoever directs this anti-American propaganda, he added, is only hurting "the suffering peoples" whose survival depends on international economic cooperation.

He conceded that the United States was motivated by self-interest in addition to charity in seeking to rebuild economic life abroad.

"Our people do realize, I feel sure," he said, "that a stable and prosperous world is important to their own well being."

Britain Seeks Food in South

London, July 1 (AP).—The British government is negotiating with Hungary and Yugoslavia, as well as with Russia, for large quantities of food, John Strachey, food minister, disclosed today.

Strachey said the government hoped to make agreements that would "fit in well" with the aid-Europe program of United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

He told the Commons that a British mission already had obtained "agreement in principle" with the Hungarian cabinet on a three-year contract covering export to Britain of bacon, eggs, poultry, lard, sunflower oil and other foodstuffs.

He added that similar negotiations were going on with Yugoslavia and said an agreement is "quite possible" within the next few weeks.

He also touched on the British trade mission now in Moscow.

"If toleration and moderation are shown by both sides," he said, something of great value to the economy of both countries might emerge."

The Treasury announced tonight the signing of monetary agreements with Norway and Spain to make sterling available from current transactions freely convertible after July 15 under terms of the U. S. loan agreement.

A similar agreement with Czechoslovakia will be announced within the next few days.

The Treasury also announced the signing of a payments agreement with Finland. Terms were withheld until it is laid before Parliament.

U. S. Motive Questioned

Moscow, July 1.—The Soviet Union today declared through its official news agency, Tass, that Britain and France sought to establish their control and the control of the United States over the economies of other European countries under the guise of aiding the latter.

That was why, explained Tass, the Soviet Union couldn't agree to the Anglo-French plan at the Paris Conference.

Tass dispatches from Paris took up four full columns in all papers today.

However, the Soviet press hasn't yet reported that if agreement were not possible at Paris then Britain, France and the rest of western Europe would proceed on their own account.

Germans Elect Red Foe

Nurenberg, Germany, July 1 (U.P.).—Dr. Kurt Schumacher, outspoken foe of German communism, today was reelected leader of Germany's Social Democratic Party by a ballot which would have been unanimous had he voted for himself. He received 340 of the possible 341 votes.

Sails to Visit Mother in Europe

Molotov Takes Day to Study Bidault's Last Aid Plan Offer

French sources to have insisted that Molotov bring in a definite "yes" or "no" answer tomorrow. Molotov, however, declined to commit himself. (It was believed he will consult the Kremlin on the proposals.)

British circles tonight were pessimistic and French sources predicted that tomorrow would be the conference's last session.

Bidault, this afternoon, told Molotov that Russia's proposal of yesterday limiting the plan to a simple declaration by European nations as to their economic needs, did not provide for European self-aid and hence it would never be accepted by the United States.

Bevin spoke up in similar vein.

Bidault then made the new French proposals to establish an international cooperation committee, with six technical subcommittees, to draft a report on European resources and needs before September 1.

This report, which would be the basis for aid under the Marshall plan, would be submitted "for observations" to the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe at Geneva. This provision seemed designed to allay Russian suspicions by giving the U. N. general supervision over the operation of the Marshall plan.

(In Geneva, Max Suetens, chairman of the International Trade Conference, said the Economic Commission for Europe could carry out the short-term reconstruction work under the Marshall plan and the International Trade Organization could handle the long-term project.)

Bidault's new proposals stressed that participating nations would furnish the general cooperation committee with information on their needs and resources of their own free will. The committee would determine how much productive development each nation could make from its own efforts and by intra-European exchange of available resources.

In the case of Germany, such information would be supplied by the Allied commanders-in-chief for the four zones. The development of German production would be required to conform with decisions of the Allied Control Council and the Foreign Ministers' Council.

Idea That Britain Form 49th State Sets Fire in Isles

Memphis, Tenn., July 1 (AP).—A young Memphis career woman who suggested that Britian solve her problems by becoming an "extra state" of the United States is busy combing angry English replies out of her hair.

Miss Doris Winn, medical technician, says she has received more than 200 letters from Britians, most of them protesting a letter she wrote to the London Daily Mirror last month.

"And most of them are very hostile," she said.

TWO OF TODAY'S BEST WINE BUYS!
Port, a rich sweet red wine, and golden-colored Muscatel are ideal and inexpensive to serve with fruit desserts or light refreshments

WHAT ARE DESSERT WINES?

✓ wines noted for their rich, sweet grape taste

✓ perfect with fruits, cakes or light refreshments

✓ an agricultural product of the vineyard

CERTAIN wines are unusually rich in grape sweetness and flavor. Since they taste particularly good with desserts and light refreshments they are known as dessert wines. The most popular are Port, Muscatel and Tokay.

To produce dessert wine, the grower picks his grapes when fully ripe and full of sugar. The grapes are crushed and the juice allowed to ferment naturally. After a time, the vintner usually adds a small amount of pure grape brandy to stop the fermentation and to keep a good amount of the grape sweetness in the wine. Nothing more is added. After the wine is aged in wooden casks, it is bottled and finally is ready for your enjoyment.

Try serving one of these wines—Port, Muscatel or Tokay—next time you entertain. Wine Advisory Board, 717 Market Street, San Francisco.

Hungary Reds Halt Debate In Parliament

Budapest, July 1 (AP).—The entire parliamentary membership of Dezso Sulyok's Freedom Party walked out of Parliament today after shouts and jeers of Communist Party members prevented the defiant Sulyok from speaking against "economic totalitarianism" which, he declared, would result from a Communist-proposed "three year plan."

During the great din created by the Communists, one of the last audible remarks of Sulyok was:

"After this, I consider freedom of speech at the Hungarian Parliament as abolished and, therefore, I refrain from my right to speak."

Amid jeers and catcalls, the Communists shouted, "When are you going to flee the country?"—an apparent reference to the action of other anti-Communist leaders who fled after the Communists seized actual control of the country last month.

The Sulyok party members started for the door and Sulyok, just before passing from the room, turned and replied:

"We will still be here when you have ceased to be."

The three-year plan is a Hungarian version of Russia's five-year plan and provides for nationalization of industry, a capital levy and, to a great extent, abolition of private enterprise. Parliament passed the enacting bill.

"Once Hungary accepts this bill," Sulyok said, "then the Hungarian state management gets off the road of democracy and takes the road to economic totalitarianism, which will result in the surrender of political liberty."

Communist Jozsef Revai leaped to his feet and shouted:

"This means there is slavery in the Soviet Union. That is what you said."

"I am talking only about Hungary," Sulyok replied. "But if you are accusing me in this way of making cracks against the Soviet Union then I have good reason to fear for my life," Sulyok retorted.

At this point, the Communists jumped to their feet and hurled charges of "treason."

When order was restored Sulyok said:

"You are giving the Russians a chance to arrest me."

With this he picked up his brief case and left.

London, July 1 (U.P.).—Great Britain has dispatched a third note to the Soviet government complaining against Russian behavior in the recent political crisis in Hungary, it was announced tonight.

Parties Split Over New Java Premier

Batavia, Java, July 1 (AP).—Leaders of the Indonesian Republic's "Big Four" political parties—Islamic, Nationalist, Socialist and Labor—informed President Soekarno tonight they were unable to agree on a new premier to succeed the ousted Sutan Sjahrir, a broadcast from the Indonesian capital of Jogjakarta said.

The breakdown of negotiations threatened a renewed outbreak of war between the Dutch and Indonesians.

The Jogjakarta broadcast said that Soekarno would announce tomorrow what steps would be taken to form a new Republican government.

Indonesian sources said that because of the Republican cabinet crisis, Soekarno had not begun to frame answers to the Dutch ultimatum concerning the makeup of an interim government or to a United States note urging the Indonesians to cooperate in setting up the interim government.

The official Republican News Agency Antara reported that Indonesian shore batteries and Dutch warships battled from Friday through Sunday in the Djepara area along the north coast of Java and that Dutch artillery had shelled Indonesian positions east of Modjokerto in East Java Saturday night.

Senate Unit Likes World Health Idea

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved yesterday legislation providing for American participation in the World Health Organization.

The organization would establish world health and drug standards, set up santitary requirements, and develop a uniform system of drug advertising and labeling.

The committee amended the measure to reserve to the United States the right to withdray on 90 days notice. The American contribution to the organization's financing would be about two million dollars yearly.

Kilian Sues to Force Truman To Nominate Him for Colonel

President Truman yesterday was named defendant in a District Court suit filed by Lieut. Col. James A. Kilian to compel the President to nominate Kilian for promotion.

Killian

The officer's name had been removed by the President last March from a list of names to be submitted to the Senate for confirmation of the rank of permanent colonel.

Kilian previously had been sentenced by a court martial to be reprimanded and pay a $500 fine for permitting "cruel" treatment of enlisted men confined to Litchfield, England, disciplinary barracks during the war.

The suit, filed for Kilian by Attorney A. R. Shipe, asserts that the President's act was illegal without the recommendation of a court martial.

The suit, seeking mandatory relief, further alleges that Mr. Truman's action was tantamount to "deprivation of private property without due process of law."

Attached to the suit was a letter from Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, military aide to the President, answering one sent by Shipe to Mr. Truman.

In his letter, Vaughan said in part: "I have opinions from both the solicitor general and the attorney general that the President was within his power in refusing to submit Kilian's name to the Senate and his action in this respect cannot be controlled by the courts."

Red Cross Gets U. S. Land for Headquarters

President Truman yesterday signed a Joint Senate-House Resolution authorizing use of Federal land for a new million-dollar chapter headquarters for the District Red Cross.

The new building will be built in the 2000 block of E st. nw., facing one of the smaller malls. Construction may not start for a year to a year and a half, the Red Cross said.

Present as the President affixed his signature to the resolution at 11:15 a. m. were Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and members of the District Red Cross building committee, Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. David E. Finley, Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d and John Clifford Folger.

The building, designed by Eggers & Higgins, New York architects, will be three stories and contain 30,000 feet of office space. National Red Cross is providing $700,000 toward its construction under an arrangement whereby the National headquarters will get the present chapter building at 1730 E st. nw.

Remainder of the needed funds is also already in hand, Folger, chapter chairman, said, but construction will be held off until building materials become more available and detailed plans are completed.

Episcopalians Increase Budget For Missionaries

Roanoke, Va., July 1 (AP).—An enlarged missionary budget of $64,798 for 1948 was adopted today by the executive board of the Episcopal Church Diocese of Southwestern Virginia, at St. Johns Church.

The churches will be asked to subscribe to the quota, which compares with a $40,000 missionary budget this year.

Bishop Henry D. Phillips made appointments for the following council year, including:

Christian Social Service—The Rev. W. Carroll Brook, Staunton, chairman; Dr. C. Clement French, Lynchburg; J. H. Morley, Roseland, and Mrs. Richard H. Lee and the Rev. Cornelius R. Dawson, associate members.

Scuttling Right Asked

Rome, Italy, July 1 (U.P.).—Admiral Franco Maugeri, commander-in-chief of the Italian navy, today asked that the Big Four allow Italy to scuttle its own fleet "as a final attempt" to preserve naval morale.

Green Replies To Rice Claims

Arlington Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green yesterday demanded that his Democratic primary opponent "put up or shut up" on a claim that thousands of county residents duck their personal property taxes.

He asked James E. Rice, jr., "as a good citizen", to report such evasion cases to the Commissioner's office.

Rice had stated that revenue for public improvements could be vastly increased without raising tax rates or floating bond issues, "simply by making a determined effort to assess everyone who should pay."

U. S. Joins World Refugee Organization

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday signed legislation making the United States a member of the International Refugee Organization, saying the IRO will give the world "new reason to believe that no problem is too difficult" for solution by cooperating nations.

Mr. Truman said he was "happy to accept membership" on behalf of this country as he signed the measure at a White House ceremony. The agency will operate through the United Nations.

Besides providing for United States participation in the IRO, the legislation authorizes a $73,500,000 contribution toward the care of Europe's 900,000 displaced persons in the next 12 months.

Mr. Truman also signed the necessary membership papers for deposit with Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations, by Warren R. Austin, United States representative to the UN.

The President said in a statement:

"This action constitutes an important step toward the creation of an operating specialized agency established by the United Nations.

"I am confident that, through the International Refugee Organization, we shall give the world new reason to believe that no problem is too difficult if the nations firmly resolve to cooperate in solving it."

The legislation provides for payments from the United States contribution on a month-to-month basis to the preparatory commission. The commission expects to take over administration of the displaced persons camps until the IRO itself is organized.

Under the bill, the United States will carry 45.75 per cent—or $69,110,000—of IRO's operating budget, and bear 39.89 per cent—or $1,915,000—of its administrative costs. The IRO activities will be directed by a nine-member executive committee.

Brazil Joins IRO

Lake Success, July 1 (AP).—Brazil became the twentieth member of the United Nations International Refugee Organization at a brief ceremony today.

COMMISSIONER PRESENTS CHECKS—Floyd D. Akers (right) accepts for the Christian Committee of the United Jewish Appeal checks presented yesterday by District Commissioner John Russell Young on behalf of himself and Commissioners Gordon Young and Guy Mason. The Christian Committee is working to raise $200,000 in Greater Washington as part of the over-all United Jewish Appeal quota of two million dollars. Washington church and civic leaders are supporting the drive, to which all Government workers are being asked to give. Contributions may be mailed to "Christian Committee, Washington, D. C."

Hagana Fears Arab Attacks Against Jews

Jerusalem, July 1 (AP).—The Jewish underground organization, Hagana, declared today that Arab propaganda had created a "dangerous trend of feeling in Arab quarters" and added that it was on guard against "possible attacks" against the Jews.

In a statement to the Associated Press, Hagana also announced an early end to its "temporary interruption of immigration which was halted for a time because of difficulties in ports of embarkation."

In London, the British government rejected a move by the U. N. Palestine Committee to halt the execution of three members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, convicted of terrorism in Palestine. Britain said the sentences had not been confirmed by the British commander-in-chief in Palestine and, if confirmed, could be commuted by the British high commissioner.

In Jerusalem, a 20-minute general alarm was caused by what police termed false reports of a shooting in Ben Yehuda street near the center of the city. Rigid security measures were clamped on the area during a search by police and troops.

Garsson Case May Be Given Jury Late Today

Justice Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday said he hoped to give the May-Garsson bribe-conspiracy case to a District Court jury late today.

Henry and Murray Garsson and former Congressman A. J. May have been on trial two and a half months. The Government claims the Garssons bought May's influence for $50,000 when he was House Military chairman and they were piling up 70 odd million dollars in war business.

Charles J. Margiotti, chief Garsson counsel, argued all day yesterday claiming May did his duty in helping the Garssons against the Army officers who would not give them orders because they were Jews.

Fated Aircraft Lost No Parts, Board States

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday said apparently no pieces fell from Eastern Airlines' plane at Port Deposit, Md., May 30 "until just before it crashed."

In a preliminary, finding-of-fact report on the crash which took a record-breaking 53 lives, the board said its investigation indicated "some unit or assembly" in the tail failed.

Refutes Early Reports

But the findings refuted widespread reports immediately after the crash that the tail had fallen from the plane while it was in flight or during its sharp descent.

Broken sections of the tail assembly of the big liner have been undergoing detailed structural analysis and metallurgical testing at the Bureau of Standards for the last two weeks.

CAB indicated that the evidence obtained in these critical studies may lead to the exact determination of the crash cause.

Under Allowed Weight

The DC-4 carried 48 passengers, one infant and a crew of four, along with 2100 gallons of fuel, when it took off from New York, bound for Miami. Its computed take-off weight was 67,968 pounds—3782 pounds less than the allowed maximum.

Further investigation into possible failure of "some unit or assembly of the empennage (tail assemly)" is under way and a complete report on the crash will be submitted," the board said.

Brazil Calls Ministers on Defense Pact

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, July 1 (U.P.).—The Foreign Ministers of the American republics were called today to meet here beginning August 15 to adopt a formal treaty for the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

Brazil as the host nation sent out invitations to all but Nicaragua, not invited because its government was established by a coup in May and has not been recognized by other American governments.

It will be the fifth special meeting of the American Foreign Ministers.

The Gallup Poll

Antilynching Law Favored By Majority in South, Nation

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 1.—In the wake of the Greenville, S. C., lynching trial, public sentiment throughout the country indorses the idea of a Federal antilynching law, judging by the results of an institute poll.

A majority of the voters polled in the 13 Southern States say they would approve having the Federal Government step in and take action if local authorities fail to deal justly with a lynching.

To measure the general public attitude toward the principle of Federal action, the institute questioned a true cross-section of voters in all the 48 States on the following:

At present, State governments deal with most crimes committed in their own State. In the case of a lynching, do you think the United States Government should have the right to step in and deal with the crime if the State government doesn't deal with it justly?

The vote:

Yes	69%
No	20
No opinion	11

Voters polled in the South showed a smaller vote in favor, as follows:

Southern Voters
Yes	58%
No	35
No opinion	9

The majority of voters feel that a Federal antilynch statute would serve to discourage lynchings and thus reduce their number. This belief is shown in response to a second question:

Do you think this would reduce the number of lynchings in the United States or would it make little difference?

Would reduce	60%
Little difference	24
No opinion	16

In the South, however, opinion is more closely divided about the effectiveness of a Federal law in reducing lynching.

Southern Voters
Would reduce	48%
Little difference	37
No opinion	15

In a companion poll, the institute sounded the reactions of all sections, including the South, to the recent Greenville lynch case, in which a group of 31 defendants accused of lynching a Negro were acquitted.

It was found that three out of every four voters had heard or read of the Greenville affair. When asked their opinion of the outcome of the case, voters in South and in the rest of the country expressed disaproval of the acquittal verdict.

	All Voters	South Only
Dissaprove of verdict	70%	62%
Indifferent	3	2
Approve of verdict	12	21
No opinion	15	15

Committee Approves Terminal Leave Cash

The House Armed Services Committee unanimously approved yesterday legislation allowing former service men to cash their terminal pay bonds starting September 1.

A subcommittee had approved the bill Monday. It is carded for House passage next week.

There are approximately nine million bonds outstanding with a face value of $1,800,000,000 and bearing 2½ per cent interest annually. Under the 1946 law authorizing them they cannot be redeemed until five years after their issuance.

Ga. Officer Defies Mob, Halts Lynching

Carrollton, Ga., July 1 (AP).—A determined peace officer, who locked himself in his own jail and threw away the keys, rallied police reinforcements against an armed mob for more than four hours last night and saved a Negro prisoner from lynching.

Chief Deputy Otis King, acting in absence of vacationing Sheriff B. B. Kilgore, said he barricaded himself inside the Carroll County Jail shortly after 9 p. m. when alerted that a mob was coming to get the prisoner. While an assistant parleyed with leaders of the mob, King said, he telephoned for help.

More than a score of city police, sheriff's deputies and State patrolmen were on the scene within an hour and formed a cordon around the jail.

King said Deputy Sheriff Russell Lambert and Chief of Police Rader Threadgill were bruised and scratched when they were "pushed around" but otherwise were unhurt. Five locked doors separated the mob from its intended victim.

The prisoner, 20-year-old Eddie Brown, jr., remained in his third-floor cell while the mob yelled outside. He was said by King to have confessed the shotgun slaying last weekend of Andrew Boyd, 28, but insisted it was accidental.

King said the mob—estimated at between 100 and 300, some with masks and some with blackened faces—dispersed about 1:30 a. m. State troopers later whisked Brown from the jail and took him along back roads to Atlanta for safety.

Mexico Mule Sales Rile U. S. Dealers

By The Associated Press

A delegation of irate Southern and Midwestern mule dealers called yesterday on Senate Minority Leader Barkley (D., Ky.) and other Senators protesting an exclusive contract for shipment of work animals to Mexico.

Their troubles center around proposals that up to 50,000 head of mules be rounded up in this country and sent to Mexico to replace oxen and other draft animals killed in connection with the hoof and mouth cattle disease control program.

Headed by W. R. Ross and Parker Jamieson of Fort Worth, Tex., and Cliff Ragsdale of Atlanta, Ga., the mule dealers declare they have bought 8000 mules at the suggestion of Agriculture Department officials for resale in Mexico, but now find they can not dispose of the animals.

While they were scouring the countrysides buying mules, they assert, an unidentified Kansas City, Mo., dealer went to Mexico and obtained an exclusive sales contract with that government.

Ross said that he alone had bought 1000 mules and that it is costing him about $500 daily to feed and tend them.

Approximately 48 dealers, from Minnesota to Georgia, are reported to have purchased mules for later sale to Mexico.

Half A Voice

If any further emphasis is needed, Secretary of State Marshall's appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this morning to urge passage of the Mundt bill should demonstrate the importance he attaches to the foreign information program. This is the fourth time Mr. Marshall has gone to Congress to plead for this arm of our foreign policy which the Senate has severely weakened. The temporary funds contained in the rider approved Monday at the behest of the Appropriations Committee are better than nothing, but they are pitifully inadequate for the work expected. The Senate's parsimony is strange at a time when we have invested so much in trying to stabilize our kind of world. Among other effects of the cut, nearly half our information officers overseas must be recalled, nearly half our libraries must be closed, our broadcasts must be curtailed, our film audiences decimated. Activities must cease entirely in 11 countries. We hope that the Foreign Relations Committee will see the damage of this sort of "economy" to our national interest. The Mundt bill in itself would not assure more funds, but it would dignify the information program by placing it on a permanent basis. If the committee makes an all-out drive for enactment of the bill in the Senate, it then will be in a position to return and ask for the money necessary to do a thorough job in telling the truth about America.

Beyond The Veto

The President's veto of the wool price support bill was due to the inclusion of a provision authorizing him to impose import quotas or import fees on foreign wool. The enactment of such a measure at a time when the United States is taking the lead at Geneva in a movement to lower trade barriers would, as the President says, be a "tragic mistake," "a blow to our leadership in world affairs." Since Congress was not prepared to override the veto, the Administration is rescued from a most embarrassing position that threatened to bring about the collapse of the Geneva conference.

The President has signified his willingness to accept a bill continuing wool support prices at 1946 levels until the end of 1948. Following this suggestion the Senate has repassed, with minor changes, the price support bill it originally approved which did not contain the offending import quota and import fee section. Since failure to act would leave the country without any wool support program, the pressure on the House to accept the modified program will be very strong.

While enactment of the bill just passed by the Senate would provisionally solve the international problems growing out of congressional efforts to support domestic wool prices, it would do so at a high cost to the consumers and taxpayers of this country. For, by keeping domestic wool prices at artificially high levels, above parity, the Government will either have to sell most of the huge wool stocks now held by the Commodity Credit Corporation at a loss, or else keep those stocks in storage and add to them, in order to support prices at the legislatively decreed level. Moreover, foreign wools entering the country over existing tariff barriers will be sold at ultra-high levels, thereby benefiting foreign wool growers at the expense of domestic users of wool and woolen products. In short, as Senator Saltonstall points out, the bill just passed by the Senate at the urging of the President would put and keep the Government in the domestic wool market, making it the sole buyer of the domestic wool crop unless the prices exceed the price of 1946. It also would compel the Government to buy wool at a price above parity, and maintain the price of clothing, so far as wool is concerned, at artificially high levels.

Although relieving the tension in Geneva, the presidential veto leaves the whole problem of price support just where it was. Indeed, his veto message emphatically indorses price support for wool growers at an elevated level, although the price support program is in final analysis the root cause of the maladjustments that led Congress to approve of import quotas for wool. Eventually we shall have to recognize the fundamental inconsistency between the Administration's foreign trade policies and our agricultural price support policies, as applicable to wool and other commodities. We can dodge this awkward issue for the time being, since wool presents an exceptional case of an important agricultural product in which we are deficient, while the world demand for agricultural products of which we have a surplus is so pressing that there is no need, for the time being, of governmental price supports. Even so, cotton export subsidies have been and are still being paid to facilitate export buying of American cotton. Such payments are in principle quite as inconsistent with the liberal trade program of the Administration as import quotas.

The real test will come when countries now heavily dependent upon us for foodstuffs and other agricultural raw materials have restored their economies and demand for our products declines. When that time comes, it will be necessary to review and revise our price support policies in the light of changed conditions. The great majority of our agricultural economists are opposed to the existing price support system for many reasons, apart from its effect on foreign trade. They regard the present parity price formula as outmoded, and claim that it distorts price relationships. High support prices also tend to freeze production patterns and lead inevitably to extensive governmental control over agriculture.

A limited amount of price support or other forms of aid to the farming population may be necessary in periods of depression and could be so managed as not to interfere unduly with competitive fixation of prices. But, to repeat, if we cling to a system of agricultural support prices that prevents the operation of competitive forces, we shall find our export outlets drying up, domestic market channels contracting, and Government-bought surpluses accumulating when the present abnormal demands are satisfied and inflationary forces begin to subside. Then the Government will no longer be in a position to advocate freer foreign trade while following domestic price support policies that create obstacles to free movement of goods. "America must choose," as Henry Wallace once said.

Before The Storm

The time is at hand for President Truman to translate into action his pledge to see that the new labor law is "well and faithfully administered." The first major dispute to which the law is applicable is that between John L. Lewis and the bituminous mine operators now in possession of their properties for the first time since the war. Unless a settlement is reached, the miners are not likely to return to their jobs next week when their paid vacation ends, and if that happens our national economy will be in dire straits once more. Surely the Government should act with all possible promptness and vigor to meet this danger before it is upon us!

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach is quoted as saying that he will study the situation and call a conference of the operators and miners when it appears to have a chance of success. Isn't he aware of the fact that the new legislation makes it the duty of his department to step into every major dispute threatening to interrupt the free flow of commerce? To be sure, this duty will ultimately be lodged in the independent Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. But for the next two months it falls upon the United States Conciliation Service in the Department of Labor. That service need no longer be a humble intruder seeking recognition from the disputants. It is now backed by statutory authority. It may offer its services in any dispute which threatens a substantial disruption of industry and commerce. And in every case employers and employes are charged with the responsibility of cooperating with the service and of exerting "every reasonable effort to make and maintain" agreements concerning wages, hours and working conditions.

It seems obvious to us that this machinery should be brought into operation now—not after the miners' holiday has ended and a strike has begun. The very purpose of this section is to bring about reasonable settlements before walkouts, with all their accompanying bitterness, get under way. Of course, this more positive approach to mediation does not guarantee success. But it could bring a strong and constructive governmental influence to bear upon parties to the dispute. If the mediators should fail, they could promptly report the dangers of the situation to the White House. President Truman could then appoint a board of inquiry, as provided by the Taft-Hartley Act in case of a national emergency. It is not necessary to wait until a strike has occurred to put such a board to work. Here again, no solution could be guaranteed, but the board would serve the purpose of focusing public opinion on the vital issues and its findings would doubtless point the way to further action, if necessary. The point is that the new law does offer the Administration some positive advantages in dealing with a critical situation. We think it should make the most of them. Even a perfect statute administered without initiative, energy and determination is likely to be a flop. If the Administration intends to make a fair test of this admittedly imperfect law, it will certainly have to move more energetically than it has done to date.

End Of UNRRA

It is not easy to assess the work of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration which has now come to an official close. Certainly the assessment cannot be made in the black and white terms of success and failure. At the time it was established, UNRRA seemed an apt instrument for dealing with an emergency occasioned by the war; its international character made it seem a useful projection of the nascent United Nations ideal. It distributed to the wrecked countries and uprooted people of the world aid valued at nearly three billion dollars—almost three fourths of which was contributed by the United States. There were errors and extravagances in its administration; but no doubt it gave much hope and help to desperate human beings. Unhappily there are parts of the world where the need for help remains urgent. But in the world's present state some other mechanism seems better suited.

The United States has already appropriated 350 million dollars to meet general emergency needs abroad in addition to the 400 million dollars to be expended for special assistance in Greece and Turkey. Moreover, the President has just signed legislation authorizing American participation in the International Refugee Organization which will take up the most tragic of UNRRA's uncompleted tasks—the care of the 850,000 displaced persons still waiting in European camps for liberation. The world will wait to see what meaning we shall give to our promises of aid—whether the money we have pledged is to be given in accordance with need or on the basis of political considerations, whether we shall open our gates sufficiently to admit some portion of the refugees. The problem of the IRO especially cannot be met with dollars alone. It can be met only by the offering of asylum and opportunity.

Lesser Evil

The Housing and Rent Act of 1947 which the President signed with understandable indignation means the relinquishing of all control over a large segment of the rental dwellings available in the United States, a sharp relaxation of control over the remaining segment and repeal of almost all the aids to construction of new housing contained in the Veterans Emergency Housing Act of 1946. Whether this proves actually to be a "lesser evil" than the outright abandonment of rent control which would have resulted if the President had refused to sign the bill depends on the efforts which may be made to enforce its inadequate provisions. Unless Congress increases the funds it has made available for enforcement, the measure will be an unadulterated hoax.

Some of the conditions which impelled Congress to establish rent control originally still exist. There is a demand for homes, particularly for low-cost homes on the part of veterans, far in excess of the supply. The only way to eliminate the need for rent control is to increase home construction. But Congress has been as delinquent in affirmative action as it has been hasty in lifting of ceilings on the homes available. The President took occasion in connection with his message on the rent measure once more to urge action on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. The urgency of such action is underscored by the rapid movement in the direction of decontrol. It ought to be taken before the current session ends. "One of the most stubborn obstacles in the way of any constructive housing program," Mr. Truman said forthrightly, "has been the opposition of the real estate lobby." This lobby has now had its way in bringing about decontrol. It should not be allowed to impose upon the country a continued housing scarcity which effective governmental efforts could overcome.

Police Investigation

A commendable show of activity has followed The Post's expose of hidden crime records and gross inefficiency in the reporting of crime within the Police Department. Commissioner John Russell Young has been called before the Senate District Committee for an explanation. Mr. Young himself has promised a thorough investigation, as the new superintendent of police, Major Barrett, had done before him. Some corrective measures will probably be promptly inaugurated. We doubt, however, that either Congress or the community will be satisfied until a thorough and impartial investigation has been made.

Whatever may be the motive, the concealment of crime reports is a matter of grave concern. Allowance has to be made, of course, for petty and false complaints to the police. Even petty complaints should not be concealed so as to give a distorted picture of the percentage of crimes solved. And the overshadowing fact is that many of the robberies our investigators found not to have been reported on the police teletype system were not petty. They point to the conclusion that the police have been trying to enforce the law by the strange and inexplicable method of withholding from most of the force information about a vast number of the crimes committed. It is not surprising that the existence of such a crippling device should stimulate our policy-making bodies into activity.

We take it for granted that Senator McGrath was only expressing his concern over this state of affairs when he introduced a bill to take the power to appoint the District's chief of police from the Commissioners and give it to the President. No legislator who gave the matter a second thought would seriously advocate loading this additional burden upon the overworked President. Nor would any person experienced in governmental administration, as Senator McGrath is, seriously suggest splitting off from the District government additional independent segments. The House District Committee has just begun an inquiry to determine how our makeshift system can be more closely integrated. One of the present difficulties is that the President appoints too many local officials who are thereafter left to operate as laws unto themselves because the President obviously has no time to supervise their activities. What we need is not less energetic and intelligent supervision of the police, but more. The Senate can quicken the sense of responsibility at both police headquarters and the District Building by a careful inquiry into police methods. We hope that no one will be diverted from this central objective by Senator McGrath's indirect way of throwing a brickbat.

Derogatory Information

Dismissal under the McCarran rider of 10 State Department employes, who are said to be "bad security risks," but who apparently have never been told the charges against them, raises certain questions in my mind.

What is this "derogatory information" which the department claims it has against them? If the employes have never been informed what the information is, or even asked to comment on it, how does the department know these "security doubts could not be disproved"? Is the evidence so flimsy that the State Department is afraid to tell even the victims themselves?

It is worth noting, I think, that when James Byrnes was Secretary of State, no one was dismissed without knowing why. As a former Justice of the Supreme Court, Secretary Byrnes respected the oldest principle of Anglo-Saxon law: no man may be convicted without hearing the charges against him and having a chance to refute them. That General Marshall personally reviewed these cases and indorsed such a procedure confirms the worst fears of those who feared a military man in a traditionally civilian job.

The fact that these 10 men leave the State Department under a cloud of suspicion, however vague the charges, may well make them ineligible ever again to serve in a position of trust under their Government. This seems a rather serious penalty for employes against whom, by the department's admission, no charges could be proved—against whom no charges have even been stated.

Could it be that some of these men once contributed a dollar to the Spanish Loyalists, or signed a petition against racial discrimination, or attended a meeting where Henry Wallace spoke? If so, maybe the Government should make this clear, so that the rest of us, for our future security, may know what, in this strange year 1947, constitutes subversion against the United States of America.

. . . It is possible that membership in any liberal organization, even one which is definitely anti-Communist, is considered undesirable. Both the employes of the department and the people of the United States have a right to know the standards which are being used in selecting and retaining personnel in the department and in Foreign Service.

It is a matter of public concern if the shapers of our foreign policy and our representatives abroad are to be drawn from a narrow ideological segment of our population; worse possibly than the practice of recruiting only from a moneyed aristocracy which we are now happily getting away from.

Civil Service Exams

The right to a Government job should be open to everyone, regardless of race, creed or color, but the right should be conferred only upon the successful completion of an oral or written examination. In addition, it should be mandatory that all Government jobs be listed locally at three places: with the Civil Service Commission, the USES, and the Veterans Information Center.

This would not only save the wear and tear on shoe leather and nerves, but would also insure a more equitable distribution of jobs to qualified persons. Under the present pork-barrel patronage system some agencies never inform Civil Service when there are vacancies, preferring to hand their needs over to some Congressman or farm them out to a private employment agency, which is a small graft in itself and works a hardship upon private citizen and veteran alike.

Force every Government employe who has not done so to take an examination for his job. If he has sense enough to do his job he should have sense enough to pass an examination based upon the demands of that job.

Revenue Bonanza

In all the recent controversy over D. C. taxes one tax revenue source has been sadly overlooked. In Canada all radio owners pay an annual license fee of $3. As this is about the only kind of a tax we do not have here, I suggest it could be applied to the District of Columbia, the fee varying from $3 to $25, depending on the degree to which the radio annoys the neighbors. This could be determined by placing a noise meter at a distance of 500 feet.

Additional revenue could also be obtained by taxing radio commentators who yell twice as loud as their programs; also all commentators could be taxed from $5 to $100, depending on the number of their inaccuracies over the year.

A bill of this kind, with an exemption clause for Congress, its staffs, and affiliates, should have no difficulty in passing. It would not only boost the D. C. revenue considerably but would also provide a few extra swivel chairs.

Military Training

Mr. John P. Everett (letter published June 25), in his rebuttal against military training, cites some troublesome strife the Dutch had in their territorial possessions. It was no declared warfare between international powers. Perhaps one might cite such mediocre incidents as the St. Valentine's Day massacre, or the strike fight at Republic Steel Corp. as "war" within the United States.

Mr. Everett gave no answer to my allusion to military training as a lightning rod. And apropos of that, I may suggest that exceedingly few insolent or stray characters would pounce upon Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney—knowingly, that is. It just isn't done . . . except disastrously.

Indeed, I am still for UMT. It appears that universal peace is as impossible as it is to breed a race without a soul, which—in turn—is the only possible solution to lasting peace. That or death by complete obliteration.

Segregated Playgrounds

In The Post of June 29, there is a letter on "Segregated Playgrounds" by E. B. Henderson. The writer lists a number of white playgrounds where colored children are not allowed to play.

He includes the Wilson Teachers College in this list. This is not the case. Colored youths play ball on the college playground. I have seen this myself within the last month. I inquired about this at the college, having read similar letters. I was told that they played there every day and had for years.

New Slate For NLRB

I should like to express my approval of what Walter Lippmann said in his column of June 26, entitled "The Veto Overridden," in which he suggested that the present members of the National Labor Relations Board resign as their general counsel, Mr. Gerhard Van Arkel, already has done, and that President Truman appoint five new members definitely known to believe in the new Taft-Hartley labor law and pledged to enforce it as written.

It might be useful and enlightening to allow Senator Taft and Representative Hartley and their colleagues and advisers who initiated and fought for this law to submit a panel of candidates. I have no idea whom they would nominate, but why should not a board of their choice determine by their conduct and decisions whether this is a good law or a bad law?

It may be said that a good deal will be lost, at least for several months, in the administration of the new law if the administrative experience of the present board is withdrawn. I am convinced that even on that score more will be lost if these officials remain. The two new members, whoever they may be, very naturally will wish to make many changes in personnel and procedure. Much of the latter will be required by the new law itself. All of them will have to adjust themselves to a new relationship to the general counsel and his arbitrary powers.

The old board and much of its personnel have been under bitter criticism for several years from the groups responsible for the new law. Will it not be natural for the old board and its battle-trained personnel to wish to defend its actions, especially in the light of so many favorable court decisions? Will it not be natural for the new members, under pressure from the sponsors of this law, to insist on what they interpret the new law to mean?

Is this not likely to be especially true if the congressional committee proposed to check on the conduct of the board is authorized to function? What will all this do to the morale of the staff and to the conduct of public business? In short, what a messy way to begin the administration of a complicated law that affects directly the lives and fortunes of perhaps 60 or 70 million working people when one includes wives and children. Though women and children are never mentioned in these discussions, they are directly affected, of course. Indirectly, this law and its administration affects every other citizen of the Nation.

Isn't it too late to modify, through the medium of diluted administration, what the President has called a bad law? I do not question the integrity of the three members of the present board. I know all of them. They are aware of my respect and my affection for them. As one of their predecessors—I was an original member of the National Labor Relations Board 12 years ago—I think I have some appreciation of the heavy responsibility they have carried in the face of loaded criticism.

They have said they do not believe this is a good law. In the light of the legislative history of the Taft-Hartley Act, subsequent pledges of fair administration made by the present board and by the President, do not in my view alter the intent of the act. These pledges are well meant but do not constitute a valid argument against the wisdom, in the public interest, of a clean slate. The Taft-Hartley Act is not a modification of the Wagner Labor Act; it is a radically different measure. Sweet words will not cure a sour act.

Why not select men (and women—millions of women employed in industry get short shrift in matters of this sort) who are known to believe in the new law so that workers and their representatives who maintain that it deprives them of their rights as workers and citizens will know precisely how it affects them in action?

Decision On—The Displaced

By Malvina Lindsay

"Me First" Threat

CONTROVERSY over the displaced persons bill gives warning of what may be expected when Americans in a few weeks or months have to face the facts of life concerning the state of the world and make their decision as to what to do about it.

That is the chief significance of what happened in New York last week when the General Federation of Women's Clubs first voted against indorsing the bill, then dramatically reversed itself.

The campaign against the indorsement, which swelled early in the convention among the well-dressed, well-fed delegates in the lush parlors of the Hotel Commodore, was a dress rehearsal for those likely to oppose any future peace program calling for national sacrifice. All the emotional catchwords of a new isolationism based on fear of national destitution were put in circulation.

The way in which these swept along, leading to a vote in the socially progressive federation that astounded its leaders, affords a lesson in how arguments appealing to prejudice, fear and specious self-interest can become a prairie fire.

HOWEVER the irony of this vote was not to stand. The 1973 delegates were not to return to their homes on the right side of the tracks in their communities with the record of having said "No" to a proposal that this country take world moral leadership in offering refuge to its share of Europe's lost homeless refugees—400,000 over a period of four years. The other side rallied, and many women who had voted in haste changed their votes after fuller investigation of the issue.

The rabble-rousing arguments, however, go on throughout the Nation as the Stratton bill lies in a House subcommittee—the first step of its long legislative journey—and the displaced continue to wait for a home and a country. These arguments repeat endlessly the smug, little alibi "Charity begins at home," and the crafty escapist warning "Keep out of Europe's messes." They try to stigmatize their opponents as "do-gooders" thus tritely falling in with a cheap, popular attempt to belittle one of the finest human impulses, one indorsed by both religion and psychiatry.

They wave the flag of anti-Semitism, though only 20 per cent of the displaced are Jews, and these are mostly bent on going to Palestine. They fall back on the menace of communism, ignoring the efforts the Soviet is making to have the displaced returned against their will to live under the Communist regime they fear.

THESE arguments drag in homeless veterans, though generally their opponents are doing nothing in a positive way to help get the millions of homes veterans need. They represent the displaced as "dregs" to be dumped on America, though most of those who came would be skilled craftsmen—also an estimated 22,000 domestics—and many have homes awaiting them with relatives or friends. (Ironically, three of the distinguished women who addressed the federation were first generation immigrants.)

They play to American vanity by saying that earlier immigrants were all strong, capable, adventuring people (lords and gentry supposedly) who came here voluntarily, and they fail to include the indentured servants, freed prisoners, debtors, political and religious exiles and the hordes of hungry from a Europe in deep want. They represent the bill as opening the floodgates to immigration though it is only an emergency measure, in no way upsetting immigration quotas, and designed to save Uncle Sam from appearing a moral hypocrite to the world. Most of all, they harp on shortsighted self-serving and panicky caution.

However two examples of the traditional American spirit manifested at the federation convention hold hope that the Nation may awaken to what this bill signifies. One was the vigor and courage with which the delegates reversed themselves when they realized the moral and international consequences of their first action. The other was the way in which federation leaders and many delegates recognized that a moral decision was at stake and had to be taken without regard for material results.

Law, Not Edicts

There is no question but that the tremendous margins by which the labor-control bill passed the House and Senate over the presidential veto was a distinct jolt to labor "bosses."

In Texas (and other parts of the country) in years gone by, the "six-shooter" was the arbiter between rivals. That is now almost entirely replaced by courts. In not many years to come, the great majority of people will accept other means for the adjustment of issues now allegedly "justifying" strikes.

The idea that things done by one group are sanctified and purified, as against the objectives of other groups, is entirely out of harmony with principles of democracy and equality. Too many labor czars have had Hitler complexes for the good of labor and industry. They may now, in their resentment against the inevitable that will in future minimize their individual powers, temporarily try to create friction and discord. But they will learn that law governs, and not edicts of individuals. Public opinion is against excesses by any individual and group—and labor leaders forced the law they now resent.

Crisis In Indonesia

By Sumner Welles

Case For The United Nations

THE SITUATION which the Dutch confronted in Indonesia at the close of the war was the most dangerous then existing in the Far East. The mistakes and delays resulting from the blundering British strategy of liberation encouraged the disruptive effects of the Japanese occupation. The entire political and economic structure collapsed. Anarchy raged long after the islands had nominally been freed.

The policy adopted by the Netherlands government was liberal and farsighted.

There was ground for hope that the Linggadjati Agreement signed last March 25 by the Netherlands Commission General and the government of the Indonesian Republic of Java and Sumatra would permit all of the component parts of Indonesia to participate as autonomous states in a federation in which the Kingdom of the Netherlands would become an equal partner.

The agreement provided for the establishment of a United States of Indonesia, composed of the Indonesian Republic together with West Borneo and East Indonesia. This sovereign state was to be united with the Kingdom of the Netherlands and the Netherlands West Indies in the new federation.

UNFORTUNATELY, the nationalists in Java and Sumatra have so far refused to implement this pact. A dangerous crisis has consequently arisen in the relations between the Netherlands government and the government of the Indonesian Republic.

On May 27 the Netherlands Commission General, in a note to Soetan Sjahrir, then Prime Minister of the republic, insisted upon the immediate establishment of an interim government composed of the representatives of all three Indonesian states. The Dutch demanded the creation of administrative agencies, arrangements for the conduct of foreign relations, agreement on defense preparations and prompt action to relieve the economic distress with which all of Indonesia is afflicted. The reply received was branded by the Netherlands government as "altogether unsatisfactory." There are now persistent reports that an ultimatum is in the offing and that this ultimatum envisages military action.

While Article 14 of the Linggadjati Agreement provides that foreign-owned properties are to be restored to their owners, no such restitution has yet been made. This fact, and the insistence of the republican leaders that the economy of Java and Sumatra has no connection with the economy of the other Indonesian states, nor with that of the Netherlands, have so far prevented the sale of the stocks of agricultural products held in the republic.

The Netherlands, as well as West Borneo and East Indonesia, have consequently been deprived of a large amount of desperately needed foreign exchange. The Netherlands Commission General points out that the position so far taken by the republican government is blocking the economic reconstruction of Indonesia, since Indonesia can only prosper as a major factor in the world's economic system if it operates as an economic unit.

THE EXTREMISTS in Java and Sumatra are demanding that West Borneo and Eastern Indonesia be placed under their control, while the inhabitants of these new states are altogether unwilling to be dominated by their neighbors in Java.

Sjahrir upholds the agreement with the Dutch. He is moderate. His capacity is unquestioned, but he has been unable to control the extremists and he has been forced to resign. Supreme power has now been seized by President Soekarno, whose chief claim to fame is that he accepted a high Japanese decoration during the war. He represents the most extreme element among the nationalists.

In view of the gravity of the impending crisis, the Dutch authorities have consulted both the British and American governments. If an actual conflict threatens, the arbitration or mediation of one or of both governments may be requested.

In that case, the United States would be well advised to have recourse to the Security Council of the United Nations. It is true that Moscow's agents have been exceedingly active during the past two years in Java. It is equally true that a Soviet veto within the Council might impede or delay a pacific settlement of the dispute which has arisen.

ON THE OTHER hand, the autonomy of the Indonesian Republic has been recognized by the Netherlands government. It can no longer be maintained that the questions at issue are matters "essentially within the domestic jurisdiction" of the Netherlands. By Article 34 of the Charter the Security Council is given the right to "investigate any dispute or any situation which might lead to international friction." The United States is empowered on its own initiative to bring the situation before the Security Council under the terms of Article 35.

Since the United Nations has conferred on the Security Council "primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security," the Council should be regarded as the appropriate agency to deal with the crisis should the Netherlands government be unable to obtain from the Indonesian Republic full compliance with the commitments into which it entered in the Linggadjati Agreement.

This would prove to be a further chance for the United States to strengthen the authority of the United Nations.

Power Companies' Bill

IT'S AN ANCIENT axiom of strategy that if you can't gain your objective by frontal attack, then take it from the rear by stealth. This is the maneuver the power companies are now undertaking through an innocent-sounding bill which thus far has almost entirely escaped attention.

Childs

What this measure does, in effect, is to repeal the most important provisions of the law creating the Federal Power Commission. At least three fourths of the companies now regulated by the commission would be exempted.

A parade of power company executives and lawyers have appeared before a House committee to urge immediate passage of the bill, which is sponsored by Representative William J. Miller (R., Conn). And while it has not been given the official stamp of approval by the Republican leadership, it might easily be slipped through in the last-minute jam that comes with the end of a session of Congress.

Witnesses for the Connecticut Light & Power Co., the Georgia Power Co., the Detroit Edison Co. and the Wisconsin Public Service Corp. were among those who wanted the bill adopted. There also were witnesses from several State utility commissions in favor of the measure, and this reveals the shrewdness of those promoting the maneuver.

THE APPEAL is made to States' rights and State authority as contrasted to Federal authority. This sounds very well until one looks at the State commissions responsible for local utility regulation. With honorable exceptions, they are pretty hopeless.

One reason is that most States pay such poor salaries that experts qualified to do the technical job of regulation are always being lured away by high salaries offered by the utility companies. Most commissions are so inadequately staffed that the private companies are put under little restraint. The private-utility lobby in a State capital is ordinarily well-heeled, and now and then shocking cases of wholesale bribery have come to light.

To understand the significance of the current maneuver, it is important to look at the origin of Federal regulation. It comes originally out of the conservation movement sponsored by such leaders as Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot. These men were concerned with protecting the water power sites that were part of America's great natural heritage from wasteful and destructive exploitation.

Then, in the '20s, the private power industry began to develop on a Nation-wide scale, with power lines linking generating stations across State boundaries. In 1928, Congress ordered a comprehensive investigation of the utility industry by the Federal Trade Commission. In his annual message in December, 1929, Herbert Hoover recommended reorganization of the Federal Power Commission as an independent agency to provide Federal regulation covering the interstate transmission of power which the State commissions were powerless to touch under the Constitution.

ONE OF THE sponsors of Federal regulation was the late Senator James Couzens of Michigan. The fiery Couzens frequently blasted at power company practices which he regarded as reprehensible. The Federal Trade Commission reported nearly a billion and a half dollars in overinflated values on utility company books—inflated values on which the average householder had his rates based.

A law was passed in 1935 extending the powers of the Federal Power Commission, which had been reorganized under Hoover. As a result, according to a statement made by the commission to Chairman Charles A. Wolverton of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, a vast amount of water is being squeezed out of utility rate structures. The commission puts the total at $1,234,186,786 already eliminated or in process of being squeezed out.

In recent months, companies have stiffened their resistance to commission orders, apparently anticipating a successful maneuver to circumvent Federal regulations altogether. The bill backed by the power companies has so many escape clauses that, according to the commission, "the public interest would come off second best when it conflicted with the private interests of the affected utility."

What is proposed is a major change in Federal policy going back to Hoover, and before. It should not be allowed to slip through in a time of distraction and confusion.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Crumbs In Truman's Bed

THERE IS a good chance that next year, for the first time in recent American history, an incumbent American President will have to face a convention deeply split on the issue of his renomination. For the signs are that Harry Truman will have to run a gauntlet to which even Herbert Hoover, at the low point of his political popularity in 1932, was not subjected. In a number of States the regular Democratic organization appears to be coming apart at the seams, making it probable that a considerable bloc of anti-Truman delegates will be in noisy attendance at the 1948 Democratic Convention.

The process of coming apart at the seams is most clearly visible in California. There a loud, three-cornered row is in progress. In the middle is James Roosevelt, the late President's oldest son, and presently chairman of the State Central Committee. On one side is Edwin Pauley, California national committeeman. On the other is the ebullient Robert W. Kenney, who lost his own party to Republican Gov. Earl Warren last autumn. Kenney has loudly announced his intention of capturing the party for Henry Wallace next year. He has called a mass meeting at Fresno for July 19, to choose a straight Wallase slate of delegates to the 1948 Democratic Convention. He has also announced that he hopes and believes that James Roosevelt "will be with us."

Thus it is peculiarly significant that Roosevelt, who is believed to hold the political balance of power in the Pauley-Kenney row, has telegraphed to Washington to suggest a meeting between himself and President Truman, Pauley and Gael Sullivan, now substituting for the ailing Robert Hannegan as the President's chief political quarterback. The purpose of the meeting is to find some way of settling the California row. Roosevelt and Pauley have never been particularly chummy politically. Yet one result of the meeting may be an understanding that some time in the future Roosevelt will supplant Pauley as national committeeman. Some such arrangement, it is believed here, might lead to a firm alliance between the two men to head off the Kenney assault. Both have personal followings and considerable power in the California Democratic Party, and Kenney can only be stopped if both men work together to that end.

IN ANY EVENT, Kenney will not be easy to stop. After he was snowed under in his own party by Warren (one of those California miracles incomprehensible to outlanders) Kenney took temporarily to the political storm cellars. He does not enjoy anonymity, however, and as chief barker for the Wallace third party, he is now again in the limelight. He is backed by former Representative George Outland, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, his chief brain trusters, and by the massive California lunatic fringe. He may well capture some, if not all, of California's big slate of delegates.

The same pattern holds elsewhere. In Oregon a pro-Wallace group called the Confederationists has captured the party machinery. The party organization is threatened in Washington, and there are pro-Wallace stirrings in Idaho, Colorado and even in Illinois. New York, with its American Labor Party, certainly pro-Wallace, is a special case. Finally Minnesota, too, shows signs of turning sour on the regular Democratic organization.

In Minnesota the Democrats and the Farmer Labor Party have somewhat tentatively joined hands. Former Gov. Elmer Benson, a leading light in the pro-Wallace Progressive Citizens of America, is also a leader of the Farmer-Labor Party. State Chairman Harold Barker, who holds some of the trump cards in the situation, is reported to be a Benson and Wallace man. Thus the distinct possibility of a Wallace slate looms in Minnesota also.

ONE KEY to the situation is Hubert Humphrey, Mayor of Minneapolis. Humphrey is probably the most popular Democrat in the State. He is also a vice chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, the anti-Communist, anti-Wallace liberal organization. Yet Humphrey was so pro-Wallace in 1944 that he held the Minnesota delegation for Wallace for Vice President to the bitter end. He is reported to have been disillusioned last autumn when Wallace visited Minnesota.

On that occasion Humphrey told Wallace that the Communists were heavily infiltrating the Democratic-Farmer-Labor organization. He appealed to Wallace to help them out of his hair by roundly condemning them in a speech Wallace was scheduled to make. Wallace is understood to have suggested quite seriously that Humphrey get in touch with Moscow, and put the matter squarely up to the Politbureau on a man-to-man basis.

Wallace then proceeded to do the usual stunt about "Red-baiting" in his speech. This fatuity so stunned Humphrey that he avoided Wallace on the latter's recent junket to Minnesota. Yet even if Humphrey holds firm, and fights the Wallace slate of delegates, the Minnesota position is by no means secure for the regular Democrats.

What all this adds up to, of course, is a sizable bloc of anti-Truman delegates at the Democratic convention in 1948. They cannot possibly hope to beat Truman. But they can march ostentatiously out of the convention amid loud cries of "Wallace for President," and proceed to set up a third party organization. In so doing, they will certainly succeed in wrecking the Democratic Party, at least temporarily. They will also succeed in electing the most stodgily conservative Congress in a great many years.

Macedonians Want U. S. Aid Used for Economic Recovery

By M. W. Fodor

(Post reporter, authority on the Balkans and the Near East, author of "South of Hitler," "Plot and Counterplot in Central Europe," and other works.)

Salonika, Greece—(By Press Wireless.)—Civil war, raging unabated in Macedonia, will stop if American money is used to put people to work, farmers and small townfolk in this area believe. Only a dissenting minority of government appointees and inkeepers favor military aid.

Economic reconstruction is the most urgent need of Greece, I was told by Macedonians, I visited on a jeep trip to 20 towns and villages in a 30-mile radius around Salonika. Nearly all thought the American loan should be used for seeds, livestock, farm machinery, fertilizers and rural credits.

"We need plows," the lank Macedonian peasants told me. They want American farm machinery like the UNRRA gave some of their rich neighbors. They complain such aid did not get to the poor. "Put us on our feet!" they cried, "and we will work, and if we work civil war will be over."

Strict Supervision Wanted

Every farmer added, "The loan must be strictly supervised by America; otherwise the poor will get nothing."

A few dissenting votes came from the government-appointed village presidents who replace former elected mayors; from village innkeepers or government officials whose opinion was that the loan be used for military purposes to end civil war.

We must keep in mind that Macedonians are different from other Greeks. The south is traditionally conservative, while the north, consisting mostly of uprooted people, is progressive and inclined to republicanism.

Macedonia, until 1913, was under the rule of Turkish sultans, while refugees were the sultans' subjects until 1922.

Extreme Individualists

In Turkey they suffered under the oppressive rule of the sultans, and, like Americans who suffered under a bad king, became republican. They lost faith in the monarchy because of their Turkish experience. These Macedonians, however, are good Greeks and are, therefore, suspicious of their Slav neighbors. They are wary of bolshevism because they are extreme individualists.

Communists, however, are aided by two factors: First, Macedonians believe they have been unjustly treated by Athens and, second—and the chief reason for dissatisfaction—is extreme poverty. Normally, Macedonia is Greece's breadbasket, but this year's harvest yielded only 40 per cent of last year's average crop.

Meanwhile, civil war goes on with unabated fury. Driving on the so-called "Berlin Road" leading toward the Yugoslav frontier at Ghevgheli, we repeatedly heard the booming of guns.

Oriental Acts of Cruelty

On Sunday, the American Near East Foundation bus returning from Florina toward Edessa ran into a pitched battle between the Andartes (guerillas) and the Greek army and was blown up by a mine. The occupants miraculously escaped. The Andartes apparently came from Yugoslavia, but were Greeks. The guerilla forces increased their coercive methods and are now driving away entire populations of the raided towns and villages.

Regardless of whether the populace consists of sympathizers or opponents, they enroll them into the so-called Democratic army. They torture resisting villagers and set communities on fire after leaving. Details of these extreme Oriental acts of cruelty are simply indescribable.

Unfortunately, the Greek forces often retaliate with the same methods, and I heard complaints of cruel treatment of the Andartes. Of course, the policy of an "eye for an eye" is as old here as in the Balkans.

Lost Child, 2½, Found in Hills After 48 Hours

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MOTHER TUCKS HER IN—Mrs. William Gale, jr., looks down on her daughter, Greta, 2½, in a hospital bed at Westwood, Calif. She was found after a 48-hour search Lassen National Forest, Calif., July 1 (AP).—Twelve hours after the shock of her disappearance caused the death of her grandfather, former Congressman John N. Tolan of California, Greta Mary Gale was found alive and unharmed early today.

The 2½-year-old Greta, shivering in just panties in the 25-degree mountain cold, was located barley a mile from the Tolan summer cabin on the slope of Mt. Harkness.

Rushed to a hospital near Westwood, she was apparently little the worse for the cold and 48 hours without food or water.

Dr. R. A. Greenman expressed surprise over her condition.

"I can't see how she could have been exposed as long as she was and still be in as good condition as she is," he said.

Montgomery Reported Gaining in Bug War

War on insects in Montgomery County is "progressing nicely," County Agent O. W. Anderson reported yesterday to the Montgomery County commissioners.

Anderson said a number of residents whose areas had been sprayed with DDT had complained that the insects did not die immediately. He said the solution was not strong enough to kill at once, but that the sprayed area would be deadly to insects for at least a month.

The county agent said that approximately 600 miles in Bethesda-Chevy Chase had been treated and that area was almost completed. The spray trucks will move to Silver Spring and later up county.

The program is designed to kill flies, mosquitoes, Japanese beetles and other pests, but the spray used is not strong enough to injure honey bees, he said. It is a front-line operation in the battle against Japanese beetles, he emphasized. Other long-term measures, such as inoculation of soil with milky white disease and parasitic wasps, are planned against the pest. These take more time, he said, and the spraying, meanwhile, has excellent effects.

The commissioners granted a permit for the operation of the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, Inc., on the Hamilton estate north of the Naval Medical Center on Rockville Pike. No opposition to the granting of the permit appeared at a public hearing.

Frederick Stohlman, attorney for the Sisters of the Sacred Heart, who will operate the school, said that approximately 150 students would be taught at the school by 25 instructors and 7 lay assistants. The Sisters operate 32 schools and colleges in the United States. The order was founded in 1800 to teach arts and sciences to girls.

Award of a contract for curbs and gutters and street improvement on Markham rd. near Four Corners, Md., at a cost of $2579.95, was reported to the commissioners by County Engineer Douglas Riggs and Roads Supervisor J. O. Harvey.

The commissioners adopted regulations prohibiting parking at any time on the west side of Highland dr. between Colesville and Fairview rds., Silver Springs, and to place stop signs at Mansfield dr. and Dale dr. and at Schuyler and Bradford rds., Silver Spring.

Suit Attacks Restrictions On Md. Dumps

Constitutionality of a law prohibiting licensing of dumps within three miles of an incorporated town enacted by the last session of the Maryland General Assembly was attacked in a suit filed yesterday in Rockville Circuit Court.

The suit, filed on behalf of Blake D. Merson, Rockville garbage collector, and his wife, Mabel, named the Montgomery County Commissioners as defendants.

Merson seeks to have the law declared unconstitutional on the grounds it is discriminatory in that it exempts Gaithersburg and Washington Grove, and the title does not state it provides for banning dumps within three miles of towns.

The petitioner said he has been in the refuse collection and disposal business in the county for years and that for 9 years he has collected the trash and garbage for the town of Rockville. He has used a dump about 1½ miles from Rockville to dispose of the refuse, he said.

Merson claims the law deprives him of his Constitutional rights. He asks the court to set aside the law and permit him to continue use of the dump.

Langer Blocks Bruce Nomination To Argentina

By The Associated Press

Senator Langer (R., N. Dak) blocked yesterday Senate confirmation of President Truman's nomination of James Bruce of Maryland to be American Ambassador to Argentina.

Later, Langer told reporters he intends to outline his objections to Bruce in a Senate speech. He declined to detail his views but Senator Tydings (D., Md.) told newsmen he thinks Langer has no disposition to oppose the nominee on the grounds of personel character of qualifications.

"If he is opposed," Tydings said, "it probably will be on the grounds that he has been idnetified with large business concerns."

One On the Aisle—

A Screwy Sitchyashun Dickens With The Hucksters

By Richard L. Coe

THE DOWNTOWN PICTURE sitchyashun has been kinda screwy lately, but don't go 'way. Here's some good news.

"Great Expectations" will open at the Earle Thursday, the 10th, and "The Hucksters" will come into the Palace a week later.

This is pretty remarkable midsummer booking. Both pictures are supposed to be great stuff, certainly not the sort of thing you once would have expected to find opening in this tropical paradise the middle of July.

"Great Expectations" is the British adaptation of the Dickens classic, now in its sixth week at New York's Music Hall, where the first five weeks chalked up a take of $640,000, topping, according to Variety, "anything done by a United States film since the Christmas holidays."

"The Hucksters" is M-G-M's version of Frederic Wakeman's satirical novel of the radio advertisers. Radio is raising hob about some of the film's treatment, threatening, even, to crack down on Hollywood in retaliation. Clark Gable has what should be a swell part; Deborah Kerr (so fine in "Colonel Blimp") has her first Hollywood role and Sidney Greenstreet plays Llewellyn Evans, the soap king who falls in love with the hero's brilliant platitude, "Love THAT Soap."

Both Metro and Universal (which is releasing the British film) take even more than their accustomed pride in these pictures and evidently with reason. We can't recall reading a caustic comment on "Great Expectations" and "The Hucksters" is getting terrific play such as only mighty Metro can give. The Gable film will open in a thousand theaters in this country, Canada, England and Australia during the month.

Even to these dewy, trusting eyes, arrival of 21-gun pictures in the depth of the summer suggests more than the simple fact of their opening. Business has been bad all over. Certainly in our town it's been erratic.

Take "Miracle on 34th Street," Thursday is the last day for this sweetheart of a picture at the Palace. It got rave reviews here and elsewhere, yet off it goes Friday to make room for "Fiesta." No matter how much you like "Fiesta," by the way, that will be limited in run to make way for Gable. And the Palace's previous film, "Sea of Grass," an unusually compelling Western, lasted only a week.

The Earle's bookings, too, have been erratic. How "That's My Man" got in shows the Fates must have been at work. And the Al Jolson revival, "Go Into Your Dance," has simply been dropped—after all we wrote about it, too!

Keith's audiences are as used to its unpredictable ways as are the town's drama editors to its titivating telegrams. Not since "The Egg and I" has the 15th st. house had a holdover. Perhaps "Ivy," the Joan Fontaine film opening this morning, may break the one-week jinx.

So "Great Expectations" and "The Hucksters" are more than welcome.

FOURTH OF JULY plans are at a boil... Matinees are scheduled everywhere . . . The K-B theaters, which means the Apex, Naylor, Senator and Atlas, will open at 1 and the Princess at 11 a. m. . . . The six Sidney Lust Maryland houses promise not only matinees, but have installed new screens—trade name: Nu-Screens—which have "three-dimension effect." They're made of woven one-piece sheets of fiber glass and use specially coated lenses. By acquiring six at a clip, Lust boasts a virtual monopoly on all such now in use in this country . . . The Little's holiday program switches "The Welldigger's Daughter" of France for "Storm in a Teacup" of England. Vivien Leigh, Rex Harrison and Sara Allgood are the stars in this bright comedy. Also on the bill will be three Academy Award winning cartoons, "The Ugly Duckling," "Mouse Trouble" and "Quiet Please." . . . The Open Air programs a midnight show Thursday with "Tom Sawyer" and a "Cartoon Carnival." . . . And the Capitol tops its stage show with a five-scene "Cavalcade of America."

SHIRT SLEEVE SHAKESPEARE will keep the Mount Vernon players busy for the summer . . . "A Midsummer Night's Dream" opens this Friday-Saturday night series of eight weekends on the 11th . . . These are one-hour versions of "Dream," "Macbeth," "A Comedy of Errors" and "Julius Caesar" prepared by Thomas Wood Stevens and B. Iden Payne, noted Shakespeareans both . . . Audiences will be seated on the steps of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church overlooking 9th st. at Mass. ave. . . . Subscription may be arranged by writing the players at 900 Mass. ave. . . . There's no specific charge; you simply make "a contribution" for the shows when you file your request . . . Series A and B will be held on alternate Fridays, C and D on alternate Saturdays.

WHERE DID SHE GET THAT HAT?—In Edwardian England. That's the setting for Joan Fontaine's "Ivy," opening this morning at Keith's. It's a murder yarn with Patric Knowles, Herbert Marshall and Richard Ney supporting Joan

The Trouble Was That Bess Farley Said It!

New York—Mrs. Jim Farley is quite pleased at her husband's story of his split with Roosevelt. Bess Farley's dislike of the President was undisguised. Time magazine once reported that when Farley was offered a job by an anti-Roosevelt man who had succeeded in hiring one of Roosevelt's children, Mrs. Farley told her husband, "Why didn't you tell him your name isn't Roosevelt?" . . . At the Cabinet meeting the President mentioned this Time article, and said to Farley: "How could they print these things? I know Bess wouldn't say such things" . . . Farley replied, "The hell of it is, she did."

Bess Farley

Anita Alvarez, of "Finian's Rainbow," was in Westchester last weekend. She was told of the theater and music people who live in the vicinity. Just then a car approached. In it sat Max Goberman, the bearded conductor. In the back of the car were two goats which the bearded conductor had bought. 'That's Max Goberman," said Miss Alvarez' host. Miss Alvarez asked, "Which one?"

A few days ago the United Fruit Co. repainted the letters atop the entrance to its Pier 9 on West Canal st. in New York. The painter made a mistake. After painting "PANAMA CANAI" and "CUBA" he painted "JAMACIA." A newspaper photographer took a picture of the misspelled word "JAMACIA and his paper published it . . . The next day a vice president of United Fruit sent to the editor a copy of the newspaper's front page, on which were circled two typographical errors.

An American industrialist went to Italy to buy an auto company there. He visited a major auto plant, and learned that it produces 42 cars a day, with 42,000 employes. "The law compels us to employ that many workers," the manager said . . . "What happens then?" asked the visitor . . . "Then we lose money," said the manager . . . "And then?" asked the American . . . "Then we go to the banks for a loan," said the manager . . . "And then?" . . . And then we lose more money," said the manager . . . "And then?" . . . "And then," said the manager, "comes foreign capital" . . . "Then what?" asked the American. The manager shrugged: You tell me."

Star Incognito As a Gardener

Hollywood—The swank Bel-Air Hotel has a new gardener who works not for sordid recompense but for sheer love of his work.

He is Michael Redgrave, the noted British actor who is a devoted gardener when at home on his revamped sixteenth century estate on the Thames near London.

He couldn't stand being divorced from the good earth while in Hollywood appearing in RKO Radio's "Mourning Becomes Electra," so he obtained permission from the hotel management to garden in his leisure moments.

No one thus far has recognized the lanky actor behind the heavy beard grown for his film role.

When Julius Collins, who was convicted in the Nickel-Mergenthaler embezzlement case, went to Sing Sing last week he started serving his sentence without having talked to the probation officers or to the psychiatrists. Collins merely refused to answer any questions . . . The district attorney's office made an independent check and found the link to Bugsy Siegel: Collins went to Hollywood to see Siegel. Collins had the Mergenthaler loot with him. And when, in a Los Angeles hotel, Collins made the deal for his investing in two Hollywood night clubs, it was Siegel—occupying a room next door—who did the negotiating for him.

Shortly before the school term ended there, a reporter visited the Finch School, where for many years the daughters of social registerites have been receiving their training. The reporter gasped when, in one of the powder rooms, he saw scribblings on the wall—phrases which would have brought nightmares to Miss Finch . . . He learned that this was a room set aside for former GI's who because of overcrowded conditions in all-male colleges were accepted for enrollment at Finch.

Erich Leinsdorf has been holding auditions these past few weeks for young American singers who had no operatic opportunities here. Leinsdorf was auditioning them for engagements at the Vienna Opera . . . One of them revealed remarkable talent in singing arias from "Tannhauser" and "Don Giovanni." Leinsdorf, who is one of the founding members of the New York City Center, sent for a staff membsr to listen to the singer—to Ellen Faull, 26, who lives in Saunders st., in Forest Hills. Miss Faull immediately was engaged to sing Donna Anna in "Don Giovanni" at the City Center this fall.

Tigers Win, 2-1, on Benton's 3-Hitter

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ANY BASEBALL MAN who might have suggested 10 weeks ago that the American League All Star team of 1947 would not include Mickey Vernon would have been regarded as a candidate for the violent ward.

POVICH

Hadn't Vernon outhit Ted Williams to win the league batting title with .353 last season? And wasn't he just reaching his peak at the age of 29? Who was a better first baseman? Certainly not George McQuinn, who had finished up the year hitting .243 for the Athletics and getting his unconditional release as a washed-up 36-year-old.

But that was 10 weeks ago, as the 1947 season opened, and look at 'em now. Vernon isn't on the All-Star team and McQuinn is, as the No. 1 first baseman. Vernon is hitting a mere .254, while McQuinn is the hottest article on the Yankees with a .320 batting average and exceedingly coltist around first base and on the base paths.

That's one of baseball's charms—the unpredictability of it all, and there are a few more cases to point up the whole business of how the game can fluctuate.

FOR INSTANCE, the man who might have predicted that Walter Masterson of the Nats would make the league's All-Star pitching staff could have been tabbed as a sheer looney character who couldn't read figures, or understand that Masterson never amounted to much in his six previous seasons in the majors.

In those six years, Masterson won a total of only 20 victories. He lost 35 games, and with a record like that he was lucky to be staying in the big leagues. But this is a new year. He's some shucks now as pitchers go. He rolled up that string of 34 consecutive innings; he has allowed only six runs in his last five starts, and All-Star Manager Joe Cronin says Masterson is one of his men.

It's a new and different year, all right. Look at the Red Sox, the club that won the pennant by 12 games last season. Only two of their guys—Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr— were deemed worthy of the All-Star team, with Williams the only one in the starting lineup. In contrast, the Yankees, who finished third last season, have placed no fewer than eight men on the American League All-Stars.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE'S top pitcher is a fellow who never threw a ball in the majors until last April. Last spring in the Yankees' training camp, the big noise was Rookie Don Johnson, who was hailed as a "can't-miss" guy, a veritable wonder. Johnson is still with the Yankees and doing all right, but the fellow who made the All-Star team was his roommate in Florida, Frank Shea, who has already pitched three shutouts, three four-hitters, a three-hitter and 10 victories.

It isn't one of the better American League All-Star teams, incidentally. There isn't a real good catcher on the squad, which contains the names of Buddy Rosar, Aaron Robinson and Jim Hegan. The Amercan League catching is a far shout from the long years that saw Bill Dickey, Mickey Cochrane and Rick Ferrell behind the bat in the mid-July classic, and Jake Early who did the catching in 1942 was better than the present lot.

There can be no quarrel with the selections, though. None of the better players missed out. The infield of George McQuinn, Joe Gordon, Lou Boudreau and George Kell is as fancy a fielding quartet as the league ever presented, and Gordon is the only man of the lot who isn't hitting .300.

BUDDY LEWIS is in the starting outfield along with Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio, but DiMaggio is the only man who is hitting better than .300. Lewis and Williams belong, though, ahead of any outfielders who might be out-hitting them. Williams is famed for his rise-to-the-occasion habits, and Washington fans will violently dispute any suggestion that there is a better clutch hitter in the league than Lewis.

The two managers reserved the right to name their own pitchers without respect to the fans' balloting, and Cronin has no pitching worries whatsoever. Bob Feller is not having his greatest year, but he is rough to deal with, and young Shea will probably see action, too. No American League fan is going to squawk if Cronin pitches Newhouser, or Chandler, or Masterson.

There isn't a manager in the league who wouldn't like to have Cronin's All-Star game pitching worries.

Bulla Leads 5 Yankees in British Open

By Glenn Williams

Hoylake, England, July 1 (AP).—Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., blazed over the Arrowe Park course in a qualifying round of 67 today to lead the five-man American contingent into the British Open golf championship. His 36-hole aggregate was 142.

Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, amateur, qualified with 73-71—144; Bob Sweeny, jr., California-born London broker and United States Walker Cup substitute, carded 70-79—149; and Vic Ghezzi, Kansas City, Kans., professional, turned in 79-72—151.

Charles Jennings of Medford, N. J., now a staff sergeant in the United States Air Corps stationed at Wiesbaden, Germany, had a 73 today for a 149 total.

It wil be up to one of this quintet to keep the championship in American hands. Sam Snead won it last year, but he is not defending it.

Misses Chance for Record

Bulla said after his brilliant round today that he was dissatisfied. One stroke less and he would have tied the course record established yesterday by British Professional Bert Gadd; two strokes less and he would have set a record.

Bulla's outgoing nine was two strokes better than any round ever played over the trap-filled municipal course.. Up to the fourteenth hole, Bulla stood eight under level fours, but at that point trouble overtook him. Then he three-putted.

Again at the sixteenth, Bulla's drive was in the rough. An iron shot took him to the rough on the other side of the fairway and he wound up with a 5.

Norman Van Nida, tiny Australian, led the way for all qualifiers by tacking a 69 to his first round 70 for a 139 that was three strokes better than Bulla's total and two blows less than that registered by Art Lees, little known British pro.

Bert Gadd, an Englishman who holds the French Open title and who set the Arrowe Park course record of 66 yesterday, zoomed to 77 today, but his 143 left him in a fifth tie with Dai Rees, stubby Welshman who had 71-72—143.

Henry Cotton, British pro who ended 10 years of United States domination in this meet in 1934, came in with 74-72—146 that assured him of a place in the championship field and furthered his avowed intentions of regaining the trophy.

Duncan at 63 Misses Out

The two days of qualifying cut the field to exactly 100 golfers for the 72-hole championship which begins tomorrow morning. The figure of 155 was the magic score.

Every British winner of the open since the First World War was entered in the tournament and all except one—63-year-old George Duncan who won in 1920—came through. Duncan shot a 78 today for 167.

But Bulla was the day's sensation. He attracted almost all the galleryites who saw the Arrowe Park phase of the eliminations and when he made the turn in 30 there were murmurs he might finish with a 61 or a 62. Johnny, however, could carry the pace for only 13 holes.

Lewis Heads Nats on All-Stars; Masterson Named to Pitching Staff

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—Three New York Yankee hurlers and naturals Bobby Feller of Cleveland and Hal Newhouser of Detroit dominated an eight-man American League pitching staff chosen today for the fourteenth All-Star baseball game at Wrigley Field next Tuesday.

The mound corps was picked by Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox, who will direct the American Leaguers and whose other personnel already has been selected in a poll of 1,973,493 fans conducted by the Chicago Tribune and associated newspapers, radio stations and magazines.

The American League All-Star pitching nominations, besides Feller and Newhouser, include Freshman Hot-Shot Frank Shea, Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler and Joe Page of the Yankees, Paul (Dizzy) Trout of Detroit, Jack Kramer of St. Louis and Walt Masterson of Washington.

In addition to the eight starters named in the fan balloting, Manager Cronin also followed poll sentiment in rounding out the 25-player American League squad for the battle with the National League squad bossed by Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals.

One Restriction on Cronin

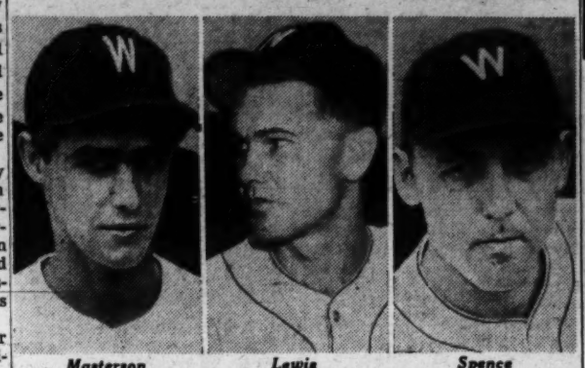
President Will Harridge of the American League, in announcing Cronin's selections, pointed out that the manager would be unrestricted in handling his team, with two exceptions—the eight regulars who topped the fan poll will start the game and play a minimum of three innings and no pitcher will toil longer than three innings, unless there is an overtime.



Masterson Lewis Spence

The Yankees, thanks to Cronin's three mound picks and fan sentiment, will have the biggest All-Star representation—eight players, including Shea, Chandler, Page, Catcher Aron Robinson, Outfielder Charley Keller, Third Baseman Bill Johnson, McQuinn and DiMaggio.

Four Tigers and Indians

Cleveland and Detroit have four players each. The Indian quartet will include Feller, Boudreau, Gordon and the only other catcher, Jim Hegan. The Tiger foursome is Trout, Newhouser, Kell and Outfielder Pat Mullin.

Washington has three representatives, including Lewis, Masterson and Outfielder Stan Spence. Only Williams and Second Baseman Bobby Doerr were nominated from the league champion Red Sox. The Chicago White Sox also placed two players, Shortstop Luke Appling and First Baseman Rudy York, recently acquired from the Red Sox.

Kramer was the only St. Louis nominee, while starting Catcher Rosar was Philadelphia's lone representative.

It was the ninth All-Star selection for the Yankees' DiMaggio, who has played in every game from 1936 through 1942 and was named to the 1946 team, but did not play.

Gordon on Six Teams

Gordon has been named to six previous teams, playing in five, while Appling has played in three of the six games in which he was an All-Star squad member. York previously was picked on six squads and played in five.

Feller, who was the winning pitcher in the 1946 All-Star game, has performed in four of the mid-summer classics, yielding only one run and five hits in 11 2/3 innings.

Making their first All-Star appearance will be eight players—Shea, Page, Masterson, Kell, Johnson, Mullin, Hegan and Robinson.

.350 Will Win Batting Title, Opines Ted

PORTLAND, ME., July 1 (AP). Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugger, gave it as his "guess" today that the American League batting championship this year "will go to somebody hitting under .350."

Williams

"That's the kind of a year it is," said Ted in a brief interview at Portland as he winged into Maine for a fishing trip. What did he think he'd wind up at?

"Gosh, I don't know," said Ted who is currently batting close to the .300 mark.

"The first year I came up I was hitting at about my present speed at about this time and I wound up at .327. I'm not going to do any bragging that I'm going to wind up there or at that .350 I spoke about as leading the league."

Pros May Compete

BALTIMORE, July 1 (AP).—Commissioner Fred Crosby of the Maryland Softball Commission said today that progessionals would be allowed to play in this state despite a National Amateur Softball Association ruling barring Mickey Owen from playing.

Owen, former Brooklyn Dodger catcher wsa was barred from organized baseball for five years after jumping to the Mexican League, played one game for a Springfield, Mo., softball team. He then was suspended by A. S. A. President, Raymond Johnson.

Chisox Lose On Unearned Run in 8th

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—Big Alton Benton allowed only three hits today in earning his fifth triumph of the year as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Chicago White Sox, 2 to 1, for a split of their two-game series.

Detroit broke a 1-1 tie with an unearned run in the eighth inning. Jimmy Outlaw walked with one out, Pat Mullin struck out, but Outlaw went to third when Cass Michaels lost Eddie Mierkowicz' pop single in the sun. Mierkowicz stole second and when Skeeter Dickey threw over Michaels' head for a throwing error, Outlaw scored.

Chicago scored its run in the third. Floyd Baker drew one of three Benton walks with two out. Dave Philley lined his seventh triple of the season into right, scoring Baker.

Thereafter Benton allowed only two more hits, two singles by Luke Appling.

Detroit scored the tying run in the fourth on two hits. Roy Cullenbine opened with the first of two singles. Outlaw singled him to third and Cullenbine scored as Mullin forced Outlaw.

Phillies Clip Dodgers, 5-3

Philadelphia, July 1 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies collected only six hits today but two of them, along with five walks in the sixth inning, produced five runs and enabled the Quakers to nip the second place Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-3.

Southpaw Joe Hatten had the Phils blanked, 3-0, going into the fatal sixth when he walked the first three batters and was lifted in favor of Clyde King.

Jim Tabor greeted King with a two-run double. After Del Ennis was purposely passed to refill the bases, Al Lakeman popped out but King passed Pinchhitter Johnny Wyrostek to force in the tying run.

King got Emil Verban to bounce into a force out at the plate but Pinchhitter Don Padgett then came through with a single that sent Ennis and Wyrostek home with the winning runs.

Ennis' consecutive hitting streak was halted at 19 games as he grounded out in his first two trips to the plate and was intentionally walked in his final two appearances. The streak is the longest of the major league season so far.

Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson extended his consecutive game hitting skein to 18 by singling to center in the seventh inning.

Gifford Splits With Johnsen Before Rains

By Al Costello
Post Reporter

What could have been an upset of more than mere eyebrow-raising importance among local tennis followers possibly was averted yesterday in the District of Columbia net tournament at Kenwood as a torrential thunder squall threw too much water on proceedings to continue.

When the heavens opened, they caught Dr. Davey Johnson, seeded No. 2 in the city's biggest tournament of the season, deadlocked and struggling for survival against slight Bill Gifford as they fought to gain the quarter-finals.

The good Doc had been forced to rally from a 2—5 deficit in the first set to win at 7—5 and it seemed he was on his way to the victory that pretourney form called for. But Gifford stormed back in the second set, ignoring what the charts called for and, in amazing and convincing fashion, outstroked his harder hitting opponent to win, 6—2.

Then the rains came. Today, starting at 4 p. m., Gifford, Johnsen and a dozen other assorted matches in the men's and women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles, which scattered completely at the young cloudburst, will be resumed.

In the only other matches threatened to run afoul of the form sheet, Barney Welsh, top-seeded Bethesda Barrister, and Alex Keiles, the Baltimore veteran, had their troubles before advancing to the quarter-finals.

Welsh was taken to extra games in the first set before finally wearing down Fred Dunham for a 7—5, 6—2 victory. Keiles, whacked convincingly by Fred McNair in the first set, rallied gamely to pull out the victory, 2—6, 6—2, 6—4.

Rixey Reaches Fourth Round

Montclair, N. Y., July 1.—University of Virginia's Jack Rixey advanced to the fourth round of the Eastern collegiate tennis tournament by outclassing Ed McGrath of Brooklyn's St. John's College, 9-11, 6-4, 6-4, here today.

Rixey then teamed up with Joseph Vasmonds of Virginia to survive the second round of the men's doubles, defeating Fred Krais and Caleb Oakley of Fordham, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1.

Other results:

Girls' second-round singles—Betty Ruth Hulbert James, Miami, defeated Martha Stockton, Randolph-Macon, 6—2, 6—0; Barbara Wilkins, Finch Junior College, defeated Adrienne Goldberg, Goucher, 6—2, 6—2.

Girls' first-round doubles—Rosemary Buck and Norma Deppeman, Rollins, won by default over Adrienne Goldberg and Barbara Cunningham, Goucher.

Girls' second-round doubles—Rosemary Buck and Norma Deppeman, Rollins, defeated Ann Long and Martha Stockton, Randolph-Macon, 6—0, 6—2.

Glendale Boys Win

Glendale Boys Club defeated St. Francis Xavier, 14-2, yesterday in an Independent League game at Glendale. Franz Dressler was the star as he fanned 20 over the 9-inning route and made two singles and a double in four trips to the plate.

Bogley Wins In 3rd Round

Charlottesville, Va., July 1 (AP).—Gilbert Bogley, Washington's national junior champion, today won a third-round match in the National Interscholastic Tennis Championships.

Bogley defeated William Long, Elmhurst, Long Island, in two hard-fought sets, 6—4, 8—6.

Charles Devoe of Park School, Indianapolis, sprang an upset by defeating sixth-seeded Walter Dockerill of New Rochelle, N. Y., 9—7, 6—4.

Buddy Behrens, the No. 1 seeded player from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., continued his stellar play in winning from Gerald Montsalvatge of Coral Gables, Fla., 6—3, 6—1.

Sidney Schwartz, Brooklyn, defeated Walter Schnyder, Oakdale, Long Island, 6—3, 6—2.

Ahearn Starts Boxing Classes At Liberty Gymn

It couldn't have been thunder because the rains had subsided an hour earlier, so it must have been the voice of Goldie Ahearn that boomed into the telephone.

"I'm no longer in the beer business," said the one-time prince of pilsner. "I'm now devoting full time to the Liberty Athletic Club on Ninth st. and here's the pitch.

"From no on, starting as soon as I get up in the morning (at the crack of noon), I'm devoting full time to the fight club. Any kid between the ages of 16 and 20 who wants to become a fighter is invited to enroll. We have everything in the gym, rub tables, bags, gloves, shower rooms—everything—and want to develop fighters. I'll be in charge and Yancy Henry (retired Washington heavyweight) will be my first lieutenant.

"I want to develop local fighters and there's no better place than my club," said the high-man on the Liberty A. C.'s totem pole concluding his soliliquy.

Pat Todd Bows At Wimbledon

By Bill Macklin

London, July 1 (AP).—Blond Mrs. Sheila Summers of South Africa upset Mrs. Pat Todd of Hidden Valley, Calif., in the Wimbleton tennis championships today, but three other American aces gained the women's singles semifinals on schedule.

Favorite Margaret Osborne of San Francisco was the last American to write her name into the final four, beating the sixth-seeded Briton, Mrs. Kay Stammers Menzies, 6—2, 6—4.

Earlier Doris Hart of Miami, ranked third, had eliminated eighth-seeded Mrs. Jean Bostick of Britain, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2 and second-seeded Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., had overwhelmed Mrs. Nancye Bolton of Australia, 6—2, 6—3. Mrs. Bolton was seeded fifth.

The only unscheduled survivor was Mrs. Summers, ranked seventh and by past reputation due to bow to Mrs. Todd, who had been seeded fourth by Wimbledon officials.

Women Steal the Show

Mrs. Summers, 28-year-old Johannesburg entry, triumphed 7—5, 6—4 to become the first South African ever to reach a singles semi-finals round in this tournament.

The women's matches stole the show, but small crowds turned out in the face of threatened showers and the prospect of an all-American sweep.

Miss Brough will meet Miss Hart in the semi-finals, probably on Thursday, and Miss Osborne will get a chance to avenge Mrs. Summers' triumph.

Bromwich and Pails defeated Pierre Pellizza and Yvon Petra of France, 6—4, 11—9, 6—4, and Goeff Brown and Long, ranked third, ousted South Africans Eric Sturgess and Eustace Fannin 9—7, 5—7, 6—3.

Sidwell and Tony Mottram of Great Britain beat Jimmy Mehta and Sumant Misra of India, 2—6, 9—7, 6—4, 6—4.

Matches will be televised weekly, starting at 9 o'clock, with Bob Wolff as the announcer.

Other bouts show Stu Hart against Chick Garibaldi, Joe Montana against Jim Sziskay and Billy Darnell against George Bruckman, the erstwhile local bartender.

N. Y. Race Crowds, Betting Fall Off

Albany, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—Parimutuel wagering on horse races at New York tracks has dropped 12 per cent and 20 million dollars under comparable 1946 bets, the State Taxation Department said today.

Attendance fell about 5½ per cent during 67 days of racing in three spring meetings at the Jamacia, Belmont and Aqueduct tracks in the New York City area.

The total betting handles for the three meetings was $148,994,199 as against $169,208,930 in 1946.

Kansas City Opens Heart To 'Perfect' Game Hurler

Kansas City, Mo., July 1 (AP).—Pitcher Carl DeRose will put on his Kansas City Blues' uniform Friday—perhaps for the last time—and it is almost certain to be a bigger moment for him then when he wore it the last time and pitched a perfect no-hit game.

For Kansas City opened its heart today to the big fellow who hurled that first perfect no-hitter in American Association history against Minneapolis last Thursday night despite an arm that was so lame that he knew he probably would never pitch another game with it.

The fans took up a collection for DeRose, who is definitely through with baseball this season and who will never return to the game unless a successful operation is performed on his arm.

They've earmarked the Fourth of July doubleheader as "Carl DeRose Apreciation Day." Between the games, there will be a litle gathering out near the white slab he toed through nine perfect innings in which he retired 27 men in order.

And then they'll give DeRose a check. No one knows yet how big it will be. The way the money was pouring in today, it may be $5,000. It might be higher.

DeRose can use the money. Out at Somona, Calif., his wife needs surgery but can't have it now because she ix expecing a baby, and if he is going to be through with baseball, he'll need a little nest egg.

The idea of a DeRose Appreciation Day was developed by Ben F. Weinberg, a hotel man, when he heard a midnight newscast after watching the game.

'Hot' Nats Launch 17-Game Swing in New York Tonight

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats hit the road today, first stop New York for a game in Yankee Stadium tonight that launches a 17-game swing through six league cities.

They're not being run out of town. The Nats are in somewhat high favor with Washington fans after winning four out of their last five against the three top clubs in the league—Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

Tonight in New York, little Mickey Haefner who, when last seen on the mound, was shutting out the Red Sox, will oppose the Yankees. Spud Chandler, longtime engima of the Nats, is expected to do the Yankee pitching. The night game promises to draw a whopping 60,000 crowd.

Manager Ossie Bluege is featuring a new face in his infield—Cecil Travis, who has come off the bench to take over the shortstop job in the last two games and is holding it until he slumps, at least.

Travis went into the lineup originally to give the veteran Mark Christman a rest, but not only has his fielding been on the brilliant side, but his hitting has perked considerably, and Bluege is enthused at Travis' presence.

"He's a better shortstop than he was a third baseman anyway, but what I like about Travis is the way he is getting his bat around. Even when he hasn't been getting his hits, he's been meeting the ball, and his timing is like the old Travis'."

Bluege is elated, too, by the improved hitting form of Mickey Vernon and Gerry Priddy, and views the Nats as better equipped at this time to make a strong first division bid than at any other point since the season started.

"We're only a game and a half behind third place," he points out, "and the club looks ready to move. There's nothing wrong at all with our pitching, and I'll be let down if we don't have our best road trip of the year."

Deal Folks:

Apprentice Jimmy Baird becomes a full fledged jockey after the eighth race on the Wednesday program. He rode his first winner on July 3, 1946, aboard Intelligentsia and, by coincidence, that is scheduled to be his final mount as an apprentice. So it is possible that he will ride his first and last winner of his apprenticeship on the same horse. President-General Manager A. J. Boyle, announced that the July 4th and Saturday programs would be nine races, instead of the usual eight. The features on both days will have $1500 purses. In addition there will be two races at $1200, four at $1000 and two at $800. This is an all-time high for purse money in this state. Jockey Willie Kelly who rode with success here last year came down from Delaware Park today to ride two horses. Bobby Shirey is coming right along in his career as a jockey. He is a dead earnest youngster. I asked him if he likes riding and he smiled and replied, "It's a lot of fun and, besides, I get paid for it." He's a little gentleman from the button on his cap to the thin soles of his riding boots. More power to him. See you on the rail.

Williams, Bakhsh in Hospital

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 1.—Two jockeys were hurt in a spectacular spill that marked the running of today's second race. Apprentice Kenneth Williams suffered a broken right arm and possible spine injuries while Jockey Linwood Bakhsh broke several ribs. Both were taken to the Charles Town Hospital immediately after the accident.

J. C. Crider's Cornelia Bell and Fred Morrison's Bob Cat went down in a cloud of dust at the clubhouse turn soon after the start of the six and one half furlong test.

According to the patrol judge's report, the pile-up was caused when M. Gilbert, sr.'s Duke-O-Balu, with Jockey Johnny Tammaro up, came over on Cornelia Bell, causing that mare to stumble and fall. Bob Cat crashed into Cornelia Bell and went down.

Stewards later absolved Tammaro of all blame, contending the horse lugged in abruptly.

This race was won by A. M. Hine's Miss Economy, a $4.60 favorite. The stewards lighted the "Objection" sign and questioned riders before the result was made official. This mare won by five lengths wtih E. Mae Beale's Tunie second and Duke O'Balu third.

The Daily Double paid a mere $11.20. Apprentice Jimmy Baird rode the first winner, bringing Mrs. M. H. Everhart's Road Scraper home ahead of the pack at a $4.20 mutuel. A. M. Hines Miss Economy completed the Double, with R. Shirey up. Miss Economy paid $4.60.

Favorites Score

It was another "Favorite day" at this course. The featured Wildwood Purse went to Rebline, owned by N. S. P. Stitt, of Baltimore, and ridden by Jockey Danny Scocca of Washington.

Scocca, however, did a nice job of getting the big colt back into action and the pair went into the wire three lengths in advance of Miss Virginia McKenney's Ariel Gift with Mrs. P. G. Simms' Lady on at a $3.20 mutuel and was Romery third. Rebline was odds-clocked in 1:48 2-5 for the mile and a sixteenth over at fast track.

The day's secondary feature, the fifth race, proved a romp for E. A. Nicodemus' Double Duty with Jockey Palumbo up. The mare coasted into the wire ahead of J. W. Fraser's Butterscotch and Martin and Early's Spikery. The winner paid 3.40 and was timed in 1:15 3-5 for the about six furlongs.

Eagles Trade Zimmerman To Lions for Two Linemen

Philadelphia, July 1 (AP).—The Philadelphia Eagles today traded veteran Quarterback Roy Zimmerman to the Detroit Lions for the outright services of a tackle and the draft rights to a center.

The tackle is 280-pound Jim Kekeris, University of Missouri standout who once ran 100 yards in football uniform in 13.7 seconds.

The center is Charles Hoover, 240-pounder from Vanderbilt.

Earle J. (Greasy) Neale, Eagles' coach, said he was parting with Zimmerman, 29-year-old veteran of seven seasons in the National Football League, to "strengthen the weakest part of my team, the line."

Zimmerman, a standout passer and punter, has been the main passing threat for the Eagles for four years since he came to Philadelphia from the Washington Redskins where he served for three years as understudy for "Slinging Sammy" Baugh. He came to the Eagles in exchange for Ken Hayden, center from Arkansas, and Jack Smith, an end from Alabama, each of whom played with the 'Skins in 1943.

Neale has two reserve quarterbacks available, Tommy Thompson and Al Sherman, but he has been experimenting with Neill Armstrong, nominally an end, acquired in the draft from Oklahoma A. & M., and Pete Pihos, onetime star Indiana University fullback.

Bays Sign Tar Heel

Green Bay, Wis., July 1 (AP).—Baxter Jarrell, 240-pound tackle from the University of North Carolina, was signed today by the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League. Jarrell, a veteran of five years in the Army Air Forces, attended William and Mary College and Southwestern (Okla.) before transfering to North Carolina.

Triple Play Helps Newmarket Win

Newmarket, Va., July 1—Newmarket walloped the Front Royal nine here today by a count of 14 to 2.

A triple play was pulled by the locals in the opening inning. Reynolds singled, Kingley followed with another single then Hockman hit a fast grounder to M. Driver, playing close to second base, who tossed to Blosser to L. Driver to E. Driver to complete the triple.

Black Fishing Season Opens For Marylanders Today

By Jack Bell

MARYLAND'S black fishing season opens today. With this opening and fish in a biting mood in Chesapeake Bay, the angler now has his choice of fishing. Bass streams and the Potomac are in good fishing condition and barring any heavy rain legions of fishermen will be on Virginia and Maryland bass waters this weekend. If it can be arranged the angler will fare much better on either salt or fresh-water if he takes his fishing during week days.

Black bass and mountain trout fishing in Virginia over the past weekend was excellent. Streams are running clear and not too high.

Ocean City, Md., is coming into its own. For the past two weeks, porgies, weakfish, bluefish and flounders were being taken in large numbers. Now, with tuna reported and six being caught last week, and white marlin sighted on the "Jack Spot," the big game fisherman has something to go after.

Last season Gibson L. Wright, Washington sportsman, was the first to land a white marlin. A prize valued at $200 awaits the fisherman who this season brings in the first marlin and valuable prizes await the angler who catches the first tuna at least 40 pounds. While six tuna were caught last week none weighed over 20 ponds.

Reports from North Carolina fishing ports at Oregon inlet, Maneteo, Southport and Morehead City are that bonito, spanish mackeral, bluefish and weakfish are to be caught in the Sound.

Offshore in the Gulf Stream, the few boats that have ventured out returned with record catches of dolphin, one of the most colorful and fastest fish that swims the deep blue waters of the gulf stream. Thursday a party of four fishermen with light tackle returned with a catch of 53 dolphin. The fishermen said never before have they found dolphin in such a jumping mood. Best catches of the fish are reported from Morehead City.

Bud Jackson, at Green Run Lodge on Assateague Island, reports that many channel bass are in the sloughs and the surf at Fox Hills Levels.

Sandlot Pitching Stars Will Clash

Two of the best sandlot pitchers in the Washington area will put their skill Saturday evening at Griffith Stadium in a benefit game between the Aztecs and the Cameo Furniture team.

Belzona Corbett, former Duke University star, will pitch for the Cameo club, opposed by Eddie Lawson, crack southpaw of the Aztecs.

The Silverman Rockets will meet the Francis Bugs in a preliminary game. These teams are members of the Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball leagues.

All proceeds will go into funds to send underprivileged children to summer camps. Saturday's games are sponsored by the Metropolitan Athletic Association.

Three Horse Shows Listed

Local horse-folk are facing a busy holiday schedule after catching their breath during last week's comparative lull in horse show activities. On Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5, the 43d annual Culpeper (Va.) horse show and races will be held at the Culpeper grounds.

Also on Friday, July 4, the 5th Annual Kiwanis Club of Alexandria (Va.) horse show will be held, starting at 1:00 p. m. at the Alexandria Municipal Stadium.

On Sunday, July 6, the Cremona Farm horse show will take place at Cremona Farm, Mechanicsville, Md., beginning at 10:30 a. m.

As in previous years, the Culpeper show is predominantly a hunter event, with the hunter championship the only tricolor awarded. Thirteen classes are scheduled for each day. In addition to the hunter classes several events are listed for jumpers and there is a class for walking horses. A five-race card including steeplechasing as well as flat racing is offered each day.

The Kiwanis show, licensed by the Virginia Horse Shows Association, lists thirteen classes and championships will be awarded to high score winners in the jumper, hunter, five-gaited and pony divisions. The Cremona Farm horse show is a newcomer to show ranks and offers an excellent 14-class card with good cash prizes and $100 jumper and hunter stakes. Championships and reserves will be awarded in the hunter and jumper divisions.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Another Sharp Layoff Faces Sugar Rationing

AGRICULTURE: Another sharp layoff faces its sugar rationing employes. Also, the layoffs of employes now on notice will be speeded. The House cut its proposed budget by about 35 per cent.

The unit had 2500 employes two weeks ago. About 1400 were fired in one group. July 15 notices were given to 361 others. Now some of the 784 remaining also will be fired. Most of the firings will be in the field.

VA: Fifty-eight employes in the regional office here of the Veterans Administration were handed 30-day notices yesterday.

LIBRARY: A hundred or so employes in the Library of Congress face furloughs under the House-approved budget. However, the agency will wait to see what the Senate does before taking action.

LOYALTY: A hearing on the Rees Federal employe loyalty bill will be held today before the House Rules Committee.

REVENUE: Forty deputy collectors and clerks in the Baltimore regional office will be fired. As reported here yesterday, no employes at headquarters here will be laid off.

OHE: Several hundred career veterans who have been laid off in the Office of the Housing Expediter are organizing for a mass protest. The group will meet this afternoon.

INTERIOR: Wesley R. Nelson was sworn in yesterday as deputy director of the Bureau of Reclamation.

FPHA: This agency is in the switches. It's gambling on the Senate restoring budget cuts made by the House. Also, on the Senate killing that vicious rider which would compel the agency to fire and downgrade about half of its employes who are paid $4500 and more. If the gamble is lost the agency will be compelled to fire even more people than the 1700 proposed by the House.

STATE: Senator Smith (R., N. J.) said yesterday its overseas information office could retain only 787 of its 2852 employes if Senate Appropriations Committee recommendations are written into law. Only 387 of those employes would be retained in this country. The office has about 600 in this city.

CAPITOL HILL: The Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday took these steps:

Approved the Cain-Rees bill which would require veterans to get at least a passing grade of 70 before preference points were added. Opposition from the American Disabled Veterans caused the committee to strike out the other provisions.

Killed a worthy bill to create a mechanical service in Government.

Decided to take up the Flanders-Baldwin bill next Tuesday. This bill would raise the salaries of Cabinet members and other Federal officials. It's badly needed. The committee is expected to okay it.

Approved a bill to help employes who are unjustly fired and reinstated after appeal to Civil Service. It would require the Government to pay for all lost time.

TURMOIL: In all the confusion over delayed appropriations, Representative Cannon (D., Mo.) has come up with a good crack. He says we have "Government by telephone." Cannon said in a House speech yesterday:

"Agencies are being called up over the telephone and told to go ahead and pay no attention to appropriations, or the lack of appropriations, and we will make it all right.

"In other words, we have Government by telephone. It is an astounding way of running the Government, but nothing should surprise us these eventful days. Why bother to pass the appropriation bills when we can settle the whole matter by dialing the right number and reassure the dazed bureaucrats at the other end of the line without authorization from the subcommittee, from the committee, or from the House, much less the Senate and the President. We live in a wonderful age."

MARITIME: All I can say is "Amen to this letter from a Maritime employe whose initials are J.T.R.:

"Last week I lauded your reference to swinging the meat-ax in the dark, but today, I find it was the understatement of the week. On June 23, I reported for work as usual and was told to take a week's furlough beginning that morning. During this payless furlough, registered mail brought a termination notice—my office was to be abolished as of July 1. This left eight short hours (June 30) to wind up the year's work and put my house in order.

"In effect, it represented a one-day notice for a permanent employe, 13 years service, veteran with an excellent efficiency rating. In the wake of the Taft-Hartley Act in an organization where the strike is unlawful, in an environment where security, not pay, is the selling point—this is just too preposterous for human comprehension."

PS: One pot-bellied official had the unadulterated gall to play upon the loyalty (of all things) of some timid sleeves in an effort to force them to work during the lockout.

Arnold Rents Lots at $3100 Worth Less

Major Stockholder In Arlington Bus Company Receives Monthly Sum Now

The W. V. & M. (Arnold) Coach Co. is paying $3100 monthly rental for property and buildings for which Arlington County officially says $2523 would be a "fair return," The Post learned yesterday.

Majority stockholder Manuel J. Davis now receives the $3100 monthly rental for the property, he told the Interstate Commerce Commission in a rate hearing last week.

Assessed at $100,940

The $2523 "fair return" rental is based on figures released yesterday by Arlington County Treasurer John Locke Green.

The 1947 assessed value on the five Arnold lots owned by Davis was set at $100,940. Since all Arlington assessments are at 40 per cent of value, the Arnold property should be worth $252,350 by county figures.

Arlington businessmen and realtors generally agreed that one per cent a month was a "very fair rental" on the property.

Rent Formerly $2500

Davis yesterday said that under an earlier three-year agreement with Leon Arnold, former property owner, the monthly rental was set at $2500.

Later, when two properties were added, the rental was increased by $600 to $3100, he added. When Davis became the owner "the rental seemed a fair one and I had it continued," he said.

Fare Increase Asked

According to Arlington County figures, the Arnold Line property was assessed at $73,360 in 1946 against this year's $100,940. Taxes last year were $2200 compared to $3280 for 1947.

The ICC held hearings last week on the Arnold Line plea for a boost in interstate fares from 2½ to 5 cents per ride. The move was opposed by the Arlington Public Utilities Commission, the Falls Church Town Council, the Arlington Civic Federation, and the Arlington Bus Riders Association.

Kuck Is Appointed To ABC Post in Va.

Richmond, Va., July 1 (AP).—The appointment of Charles F. Kuck as superintendent of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's division of stores was announced today by the ABC board.

Kuck, who joined the ABC staff in its early days in 1934, was named to head the stores division as successor to John W. Hardy, who last month was appointed by Governor Tuck as board member for the unexpired term of the late John N. Sebrell.

3 Convicts Stroll From State Farm

Richmond, Va., July 1 (AP).—Three convicts who strolled away from the State Farm yesterday were still at large today.

The penitentiary reported that the men, who walked away from a wheat field, were George Townes, 30, and Harry Armstrong, 27, of Richmond, and Junius Taylor, 17, of Petersburg. They ere missed about 4:30 p. m., when a checkup was made of a threshing crew.

Va. Gasoline Tax Revenues Near Record

Richmond, Va., July 1 (AP).—Virginia's gasoline tax revenues soared to a near-record level of $3,120,515 during May, the Division of Motor Vehicles announced today and indications are that total receipts for this year may be more than 25 per cent ahead of last year's, officials said.

Byrd Measure Asks York River Bridge

By The Associated Press

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) introduced legislation yesterday to authorize Virginia to construct a bridge across the York River in Colonial National Historic Park near Yorktown, Va.

2 Battle, 4 Stories Up

The participants were Edward Jones, 41, who suddenly fell ill while chipping bricks on a downtown building yesterday, and Warren Catherman, 64, who swung himself up to the rescue on a boatswain's chair.

When Catherman attempted to steady the dazed man on the wooden perch, Jones started frantically to struggle. Catherman said he finally tried to knock Jones out to quiet him, and needed the help of Jesse Walker, 38, to hold him while firemen raised a ladder to take them all to the ground.

Jones received hospital treatment for face contusions. Catherman broke a knuckle in the skirmish.

Md. Clinging To Current Buying Plan

Report to Gov. Lane Says Price Situation Makes Short Period Purchases Practical

Annapolis, Md., July 1 (AP).—Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman reported to Governor Lane that in view of the general price situation the State would continue its purchasing policy to cover relatively short periods.

In reporting on State purchases for April and May, the budget director also remarked that at the recent meeting of the Association of Purchasing Agents at New York, there was an expectation of a price drop of 13 to 20 per cent within six months or a year.

"Prices considered too high," Kirkman said, "were for hides, leather, cotton goods, textiles and vegetable oils."

His letter to the Governor also said, "It is gratifying to note that the basing point price will probably be permanently eliminated. Under the basing point price, this department could purchase steel for automobile tags from the Bethlehem Steel Co. at Sparrows Point.

"In all probability the steel would be made from imported ore. After the sheets were rolled, they would be delivered to the Penitentiary for fabrication into automobile tags. Nevertheless, we were required to pay the freight on these steel sheets from Pittsburgh to Baltimore, which was the basing point. This has always seemed unfair in view of the fact that no part of the steel sheets was manufactured in Pittsburgh or shipped therefrom."

State purchases for April totaled $585,275 and for May $665,591. Among the purchases for May were four ambulances, three for the State police and one for the Department of Health, costing a total of $26,000.

The State bought during the same month $77,023 worth of yellow and white traffic paint.

2 Witnesses Favor Perlman

man Ferguson to say whether Perlman was considered a "political lawyer." Sobeloff said he regarded that expression as "an epithet" with little meaning. Perlman had been active in politics, he said, but declared he felt that activity to be the recent result largely of his affiliation with the majority (Democratic) party in Maryland.

The hearing, tenth since Perlman was nominated by President Truman last January, was enlivened by McKeldin's reading of an exchange of acid telegrams between himself and Governor Lane. In one of these the former mayor referred to Perlman as "solicitor general for the transit company" and protested his appearance before legislative committes "in the guise of an adviser and spokesman for your administration."

McKeldin denied an assertion by Perlman that he had told the nominee "the attack was only a political matter and nothing substantial should be attached to it." He also denied telling Perlman he had expressed the same view to Ferguson and asked the subcommittee chairman to pass it on.

Ferguson set July 8 as the date for the next hearing and announced that officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and a voting machine company would be called to testify. Perlman served as counsel for both firms.

Virginia Beach Expects Record Fourth Crowds

Virginia Beach, Va., July 1.—Resort officials predicted today that the Fourth of July weekend will bring one of the greatest throngs in history to Virginia Beach.

However, they said some last-minute reservations could probably be accommodated. Virginia Beach attracts a large number of visitors from the Washington area.

Many of the holiday visitors will reach Virginia Beach by air. Two airlines have stops at Norfolk, only a short distince from the beach, and an airport is operated at Virginia Beach for the convenience of private and charter planes.

Three Large Estates In Kent County Sold

Chestertown, Md., July 1 (AP).—The sales of three large Kent County estates have been completed within recent days by recording of deeds in the office of the Circuit Court clerk.

Great Oaks, near Fairlee, comprising more than 1000 acres, was sold by Russell D'Oench to Frank C. Russell of Baltimore.

Don A. Loftus sold his historic Huntingfield estate near Rock Hall to Grellet W. Collins of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Sparks have bought the large Parsons farm from Goldey M. Jones of Wilmington, Del.

Draft Records Moved

The war has finally come to an end for Fairfax County clerks and draft board members. All Selective Service records were cleaned out of the courthouse yesterday and carted off to Richmond.

Housing Plan Urged by VFW At Va. Session

Recognition of Armed Services in Seniority Rights Is Advocated

Norfolk, Va., July 1 (AP).—A banquet and speechmaking occupied Virginia Veterans of Foreign Wars and their ladies' auxiliary tonight at the end of the third day of their annual State encampment.

After a sweltering day of business sessions, committee meetings and a service officers' school, the delegates—the registration desk reported an attendance of 800 men and 500 women—assembled to hear talks by Representative E. Van Zandt of Altoona, Pa., thrice VFW national commander, and Virginia's Lieut. Gov. L. Preston Collins.

The bulk of the business before the encampment is expected to be cleared tomorrow, with adjournment slated for Thursday, after officers are elected.

The encampment adopted resolutions today urging:

Industry and labor to establish seniority rights for veterans for time spent in the armed forces in World War II.

Establishment of national cemeteries in every State.

W. I. Woodel of Staunton, department adjutant, said he expected the encampment at tomorrow's business meeting would adopt a resolution endorsing compulsory military training in the United States. This resolution was introduced today and assigned to a committee for study. Woodel said he expects little opposition to develop during debate on the resolution tomorrow.

The auxiliary will honor Gold Star Mothers at a reception tomorrow.

Md. Postmistress Retires After 20 Years on Job

Edgewater, Md., July 1 (AP).—When Mrs. Alice L. Eaton gets a job, she sticks at it.

Although tn assiduous postmistress, Mrs. Eaton says she is really a farmer and hopes in her retired role to get in more licks at gardening.

Mrs. Eaton took up her post-office duties at 6:30 a. m. daily and was busy until 7 p. m., and during her service saw her post-office area population grow over 75 per cent.

Tuck Inspecting Virginia Roads

Winchester, Va., July 1 (AP).—Governor Tuck and State Highway Commissioner James A. Anderson, who are making an inspection of State roads, especially the secondary highways, spent today in Shenandoah, Clarke and Frederick Counties and left Winchester this afternoon for Fredericksburg.

They wkere accompanied by C. S. Mullen, chief engineer, and were joined here by Fred M. Yellott, resident engineer for several counties, and George Felix, district engineer for the Staunton district.

Governor Tuck said virtually all of his five-day tour would be on secondary roads.

Nearly Misses Out

Ex-Envoy Of Austria Now Citizen

Prof. George Marie von Alexich almost missed out on his American citizenship yesterday in District Court.

It seems Professor von Alexich, who comes from Autsria and teaches at Georgetown University, didn't know what we mean by the word, "renounce."

It was all straightened out finally when the professor explained to Justice David A. Pine he didn't "quite" understand the question. He was then allowed to renounce his title and become a citizen.

Professor von Alexich was for 21 years an Austrian diplomat. He said he was ambassador to the Netherlands when Hitler took over Austria in 1938.

Of his narrowly-won citizenship, the professor said, "I was always an enemy of the Nazis and that is why I left Austria. Perhaps it has had its reward. I am now an American citizen."

He teaches international administration and international economics at Georgetown University. He is 53 years old and resides with his wife and 12-year-old child at 3726 Van Ness st. nw.

The word, "abjure" was the stickler for Mrs. Enid S. Gabriel, 23, of 612 Croissant pl. se.

A small blonde who hails from Cuba, she was unable to pronounce the word the first time, brushed over it on the second attempt but satisfied Justice Pine she knew its meaning in the oath of allegiance.

C.&P. to Spend 3 Million More In Maryland

Projects Include $528,000 Building In Cumberland

Baltimore, July 1 (AP).—The spending of an additional $2,956,000 for construction and expansion of facilities throughout Maryland has been approved by the board of directors of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore.

The new action increases to approximately $26,924,000 the total authorized to date for expenditure this year, the company announced.

A major project is the expenditure of $528,000 for construction of a new three-story central official building in Cumberland, part of a plan to provide more service and improve existing service.

Installation of additional equipment and switchboard positions at Arbutus, Frederick, Havre de Grace and Sykesville will cost $78,200.

More than $77,000 will be spent to expand cable facilities and for rural extension in the Golden Hill area. The project calls for the placing of 886 poles, 13 miles of aerial cable and 183 single miles of wire.

The board also authorized expenditure of $6300 to set up additional dial central office equipment at Willard. This will provide 100 additional subscriber lines to take care of 40 service applications being held because of equipment shortages.

Lane Appoints Apple Commission To Boost Sales

Annapolis, Md., July 1 (AP).—Governor Lane announced today the appointment of a seven-member Maryland Apple Commission.

Under terms of a General Assembly enactment, the Commission will be charged with the task of conducting educational and sales promotion campaigns designed to open a wider market for apples grown in Maryland.

The commissioners also will direct rescearch for possible new uses for the State apple crop.

Members of the new commission, all apple growers, are:

Joseph G. Harrison, Berlin; Marshall T. Heaps, Cardiff; John P. Caspar, Hancock; Eugene W. Scott, Rockville; E. D. McCain, Frederick; W. Lee Allen, Salisbury, and D. Eldred Rinehart, Smithsburg.

Permit Record Set in Fairfax

The issuing of building permits and the recording of deeds and trusts reached an all-time high in Fairfax County last month.

County records show that 325 building permits totaling $2,945,913 were issued in June. Permits issued during the first half of 1947 came to $12,822,419. This compared to $12,386,384 during the whole of 1946. The 1460 deeds and trusts recorded in June exceeded May's previous high mark of 1347. Total for the first half of 1947 was 7209.

3 Fairfax Men Added To County Police Force

They were: Charles E. Eldridge, Falls Church; Stanley H. Dodson, Burke; Charles E. Norfolk, Vienna, and William L. Durrer, Rt. 3, Alexandria. The new men will break in with experienced officers during the summer and attend training school for six weeks in the fall.

Boyd Takes Over As Police Chief

Winchester, Va., July 1.—J. Thomas Boyd, a veteran of 23 years on the city police force, became chief of police today, succeeding C. W. Hollis, retired.

Hollis, who has been an enforcement officer for half a century, 16 years as head of the local department, went about his duties as usual yesterday. He had no immediate plans except "to take things easy."

Hollis was 73 last month. The new police head is 44.

3 Carnivals Authorized

Carnival permits were issued by the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners to three volunteer fire departments. They were Oxon Hill, August 4 to 9 in the 4900 block of Livingston rd.; College Park, July 7 to 14, at Knox rd. and Baltimore blvd., and Laurel, July 21 to August 2 on the high school playground.

Mercury Hits 91

Children Hail Showers of Fire Hydrant

Kids have got something.

At least they had something yesterday, when they shed everything but the barest essentials and doused themselves thoroughly in water showered from fire hydrants on 50 Washington streets. The mercury rose to 91 degrees at 4:02 p. m.

Every day, Monday through Friday, from now until the end of August, the kids will get opportunities for more daily dousings. And judging by the shrieks which went up yesterday at one sometime spa—8th and Ingraham sts. nw.—cooling off should be something for grownups too.

Recreation Department employes were on hand yesterday to turn the water on at Ingraham st., and even before 2:45—the appointed time for the half-hour dousing to begin there—they were being begged, nay, urged, by the neighborhood kids to —"Ah, gwan, we can't wait to cool off."

While the sun blazed down, they stood around in bathing suits or trunks, some with bathing caps on, all in their bare feet.

Some youngsters lay flat on their backs in the street gutters, with water gushing over them. They kicked their feet or splashed their arms in the coolness.

At least yesterday wasn't as bad as another July 1, back in 1901, when the temperature went up to 102.

Maryland Postmaster Confirmed by Senate

The Senate yesterday confirmed these Marylanders for postmasterships:

Harry R. Ringler, Bishopville; Frank A. Beachley, Braddock Heights; Milton T. Holt, Brandywine; Mary R. Schmidt, Eccleston; Vera M. Gordon, Fork; Gertrude S. Chapman, Lanham; Anita G. D. C. Board Raises Tax Rate to $2 From $1.75

Order Ends Delay In Preparation of Bills to 150,000 Property Owners

Assessor Edward A. Dent immediately ordered his staff to begin preparation of approximately 150,000 real estate and tangible property tax bills for District residents.

New Bill Sets Minimum

Dent said the new tax bill would not deny the Commissioners this right to set tax rates. "It merely sets a minimum," he said. "If it's passed, the Commissioners will not be able to set a tax rate lower than $2 per $100 assessed value."

They would still retain authority to raise the rate above $2, however, if they wanted to, he added.

Dent said he hoped to have the 150,000 tax bills in the hands of taxpayers by September 1. Deadline for first half year payments is September 30.

20% On Improvements

Home-owners will have a flat 20 per cent assessment increase on improvements, Dent pointed out.

Home-owners wishing to figure amounts of their new taxes, should follow this procedure, he said:

1. Multiply last year's land assessment by two per cent.

2. Multiply last year's assessed home value by 2.4 per cent (which includes both the rate increase and the assessment hike).

3. Add the results to get the total tax bill for both land and house.

New Third Party Sweeps Elections In 'Boys' State'

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 1 (AP).—A spontaneously organized third party, advocating an embargo against oil shipments to foreign countries and equal economic opportunities for all races, swept every major office in today's elections at the American Legion "Boys' State" for Maryland high school students.

Campaigning under the newly formed Progressive Party platform, 18-year-old William Poorbaugh of Boys' Latin School, Baltimore, was elected governor by a landslide.

His unsuccessful opponents were Raymond Bellamy (Federalist of Bladensburg), 17, and Robert Bacon (Constitutionalist of Towson), 16.

23 Gaming Defendants Demand Early Trial

Leonardtown, Md., July 1 (AP).—Declaring that any delay would be "oppressive, capricious and a denial of due process of law," 23 persons named in 24 indictments for gaming by the St. Marys County grand jury June 4 have again demanded immediate trial.

A written request was sent to the three-judge bench of Maryland's Seventh Judicial Circuit to recall the March petit jury to try the cases before the regularly scheduled September term. It was presented to Chief Judge William M. Loker.

The petition was submitted by State Senator Paul J. Bailey (R., St. Marys), representing some of the defendants, and Attorneys Joseph D. Weiner, Philip H. Dorsey, Jr., and W. O. E. Sterling, all of Leonardtown.

One attorney said Judge Loker had taken the request under advisement and would announce a decision within the next few days.

A previous request for advancing the trial date made June 6 was denied. The court said it would work an undue hardship on petit jurors who were engaged in planting crops.

Curator Seeks 'Empties'

Williamsburg, Va., July 1 (AP).—James L. Cogar, curator of Colonial Williamsburg, will tour England, Ireland, and Scotland this summer in search of wine casks and bottles with which to equip the cellar of the reconstructed Governor's Palace here as it was two centuries ago.

In addition to doing research in the Victoria and Albert Museum and other institutions and seeking out articles for the palace cellar, he will also hunt out small accessories for the exhibition buildings here—small items designed to create a "lived in" atmosphere. Eighteen of 56 persons injured Monday night when the Baltimore & Ohio streamliner Columbian was derailed near Westville, Ind., were from Greater Washington.

A diesel locomotive pulling the wrecked train (including a sleeping car and a lounge car which did not leave the rails) arrived at 12:40 p.m. yesterday at Union Station.

It arrived only three hours late, having picked up extra coaches in Akron and a diner in Cumberland, Md., to replace the cars derailed when it struck an open switch, traveling 78 miles an hour.

Most of the injured by last night had left the hospitals in Michigan City, Gary, La Porte and Valparaiso where they were taken after the wreck.

There were no fatalities, and only a few of those injured were believed seriously hurt. Relatives expect many of the injured from the Washington area to arrive back here today.

Operation Sneeze

Washington Drive Opens On Ragweed

Hay fever sufferers here can look forward to a season of somewhat less suffering.

That's practically a guarantee from National Capital Parks, which has already launched its "Operation Sneeze" project.

Power sprayers loaded with 2, 4-D, a weed-killing chemical, have already completed anti-ragweed campaigns on Columbia Island, southern terminus of Memorial Bridge, and the area around the National Guard Armory, Dr. Fanny-Fern Davis said yesterday. She is turf consultant and weed control specialist for NCP.

Park Areas Next

The battle against the common and giant varieties of ragweed, whose pollen causes 85 per cent of hay fever misery, will continue in Rock Creek Park and other park areas where the weed keeps popping up.

Last year, although used to some extent, 2, 4-D arrived too late in the hay fever season to be used on a large-scale basis. NCP depended mainly on cutting crews armed with mowers and scythes.

Hayfever Season Too Late

If 2,4-D, formally known as dichlorophenozy-acetic acid, it used now ragweed will not mature and send out pollen to allergic Washingtonians. Action when hayfever season begins would be too late for effective control, Dr. Davis said.

She urged private property owners and garden clubs to start their own campaigns against the noxious weed in vacant lots and abandoned victory gardens.

Frank C. Davis

Frank C. Davis, 60, sales director for the Elite Laundry Co. for about 28 years, died yesterday at his home, 5008 Jamestown rd., Yorktown Village, Md., after a long illness.

Mr. Davis was a member of the Washington Board of Trade, Lions Club, Knights Templar, Brightwood Commandary No. 6, Almas Temple of the Shrine and the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church. He was also a past president of the Linen Supply Association of Washington.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gwendolyn Buckey Davis; two sisters, Mrs. F. P. Wilcox of Bethesda, Md., and Miss Minnie Lee Davis of Montclair, N. J.; and his stepmother, Mrs. Harry S. Davis of Baltimore, Md.

His father is the author of "Inside U. S. A." and his mother of "Revolution in India," published in 1945.

Appointed by Hoover

Mr. Lewis' articles on public utilities led to his appointment as chairman of the Public Service Commission of Indiana. In 1921 President Hoover appointed him to the Interstate Commerce Commission and in 1929 he was named chairman.

Four years later Mr. Lewis became director of the Bureau of Valuation, a poistion he held at the time of his retirement in 1943. During the Roosevelt Administration he also served on the Federal Anthracite Coal Commission.

An interest in transportation brought Mr. Lewis the honor of being one of the first two passengers to make a round trip transcontinental plane trip. He also helped to lay out the Lincoln Highway.

Headed Citizens Group

As president of the Georgetown Citizens' Association in 1938 and 1939 Mr. Lewis campaigned for highways by-passing Georgetown to retain the original character of the old port city. Mr. Lewis also served as treasurer of the Travelers Aid Association of Washington.

Summerlin Dies; Arbiter Of Protocol

George Thomas Summerlin, 74, who rolled his own cigarettes, but was America's No. 1 authority on diplomatic protocol, died yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital after an illness of more than a year.

A one-time Army cavalry captain, Mr. Summerlin was the State Department's Chief of Protocol from 1937 until his retirement in February, 1946, a month after suffering a paralytic stroke.

During his reign as arbiter of protocol, one of his principal assignments was to greet heads of foreign states visiting this country.

Welcomed Royalty

At various times he extended welcome in the behalf of the United States to the King and Queen of England, the Duke and Dutchess of Windsor, Crown Princess Juliana of The Netherlands, members of the royal families of all of the Scandinavian countries, and presidents of many Latin American republics.

His was also the job of deciding who would sit where at state functions and dinners. But there were other details to his job. He had the not easy task of keeping foreign diplomats from abusing their immunity from arrest. He was also called on for advice on State Department appointees to overseas posts.

Secretary of State Marshall expressed "the deepest regret" upon learning of Mr. Summerlin's death. He said Mr. Summerlin's "great loyalty to his country, his high sense of duty and his faithfulness in carrying out the policies of this Government had set an example for all men in the (foreign) service to emulate."

Burial in Arlington

Mr. Summerlin will be buried with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery following services in the Fort Myer Chapel at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

A native of Rayville, La., he attended Louisiana State University before obtaining an appointment to the Military Academy at West Point. He was graduated from the Military Academy in 1896 and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Sixth Cavalry.

The young Army officer was sent to Puerto Rico during the Spanish-American War and later to the Philippines. He retired from the Army in 1903.

Mr. Summerlin was in private business for six years before accepting an appointment with the State Department as a special clerk in 1909. In 1911, he went to Peking, China, as second secretary of the American Legation there, and in 1914 he was transferred to Santiago, Chile.

Minister to Mexico

His next assignment was to the American Embassy at Mexico City in 1917 as secretary, and there he was named counsellor the following year.

From Mexico City he went to Rome in 1924, and the following year he was elevated to the rank of Minister. During the next 12 years, he also served as American Minister to Honduras, Venezuela and Panama.

Mr. Summerlin was within a few months of the retirement age of 65 when the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt recalled him from his ministerial post at Panama and placed him in charge of the State Department's Protocol Division.

One of Mr. Summerlin's personal trademarks was his preference for home-made cigarettes, a habit formed during his cavalry days. He rolled them deftly while chatting with kings, queens and presidents.

His Washington residence was at 1718 H st. nw. He was married before the turn of the century to Miss Henrietta Virginia Vandergrift Loomis of Washington, but this marriage ended in divorce in 1915. Two sons, both now dead, were George Thomas Summerlin, jr., and John Vandergrift Summerlin.

He is survived by three grandchildren, Mrs. Virginia Summerlin Stevens, 21, of 2800 Woodley rd. nw., daughter of George, jr., and Miss Harriott Page Summerlin, 16, and John Vandergrift Summerlin, 14, children of the other son, both of 941 Park ave., New York.

Two half-sisters, Mrs. Hugh Watley and Mrs. Van W. Robinson, both of Monroe, Va., also survive.

Wed 10 Years, Wife Leaves Husband and Two Children Every Few Months to Wander About The Country, Coming Back When She Chooses

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My wife and I have been married 10 years and have two children, a boy aged 9 and a girl of 7. When we got married the country was still in a business slump and we felt the effects of the general depression.

We hadn't much money and always needed lots of things we couldn't afford. But we always got along well together; that is, almost always. Finally I got a pretty good break and started earning a much better salary. Then all of a sudden my wife started taking vacations from family life.

I would come home from work at night and she would be gone with all her clothing. I wouldn't hear from her again until she was ready to ask if I'd take her back, and I always did. Then she would say she had found out she really loved me. Things would go along swell for a while and then she'd be off again.

During the past year she has left us four times. At present she has been gone since April. Our son had a birthday card from her in May, mailed from a distant part of the country, which says she misses us all and wishes she had stayed home.

Man Is Stymied, Holding the Bag

I'M SURE I don't know what to do. I've applied for divorce at least four times; but these matters move so slowly that usually she is back before the court is ready to act. My lawyer says, "Refuse to let her enter the house." But that's impossible when we really all love her so much.

It's awfully hard for me to "mother" the children, do cooking and housework and still take care of my salaried job. I am doing my best to keep up the home we've built, but the children need much more attention than I can give them and it's very discouraging to be tied down this way, day after day, waiting for I don't know what.

I can't go out and have any fun, as I'm still a married man and also have to act as "sitter." If I did anything wrong and got into trouble I'd run a big risk of losing the children. In fact it looks like I'm stymied from every angle,—unless you can figure out a solution. Please advise. B. J.

Why Give Blank Check to Tramp?

DEAR B. J.: This situation is not entirely of your wife's making. You are contributing equally by giving her a blank check to do as she pleases, regardless of the damage done to your life and the children's.

I suppose we must give you some credit for standing by the children in a negative way; but your attitude toward their renegade mother is disgustingly mushy.

What you need primarily is psychiatric help in pulling yourself together, so that you can bring a reasoning attitude to bear on the problem. From the angle of realistic thinking, your lawyer has given you sound practical advice.

Wife Is Making Monkey of Man

BUT HE CAN'T cure your slavish infatuation for this woman who has always kept you in the pursuit-stage of fascinated desire to have and to hold her. And neither can I. Yet it is this emotionally sick attitude on your part which makes a monkey of you in relation to her.

It's no service to the children to open the door when she chooses to blow in. Rather this is fostering emotional illness in them, by keeping them always in heartsick suspense, awaiting her return and dreading her departure. Action should be taken to help them forget her, in favor of some warm-hearted mother-substitute who would show loyal consistent interest in their welfare.

Thus the solution, as I see it, is to get yourself emotionally in condition to legally excommunicate her from the rights and privileges she has long since and many times forfeited. M. H.

Veteran Flier Sees Colored Planes, But They're in Wall Paper Design

By Eva Hinton

ADMIRAL AND MRS. JOHN TOWERS are back in the Capital again. The admiral was recently appointed to head the Navy General Board.

Charmingly vivacious Mrs. T[illegible]ers recently invited friends to a party in their spacious "Quarters A" on the old Naval Hospital grounds.

Their huge, high-ceilinged drawing rooms and dining room are done in white with touches of color here and there. One magnificent grandfather's armchair is covered in ruby satin. Mrs. Towers has more of the same rich material which she is planning to swirl across the tops of her transparent white curtains this winter.

The wide halls are papered with a pattern of green leaves on white. But on being shown over the house after dinner, the ladies discovered that the admiral's bedroom was done in a gay red, white and blue design of airplanes. "He didn't think he had enough planes in his life," said Mrs. Towers of her husband, who was one of the early transatlantic fliers and has scarcely been out of a plane since.

The admiral shares his room with the family pet, a black Scotty, Mr. Mc Tavish, whose bed is covered with an elegant white sheet marked, "Mr. McTavish." The Filipino boys who care for the house, cut out and marked the sheet.

IN THE drawing room, Mr. McTavish himself walked gravely among the guests, wearing a stiff, white evening collar and a black bow tie exactly like his master. In fact, Admiral Towers says, Mr. McTavish (and don't forget the Mister) shares his neckwear whether the occasion be white tie, black tie, or yellow and red spotted tie (the latter for informal afternoon affairs and cocktail parties).

Among the guests paying their respects to Mr. McTavish that evening was pretty Capt. Joy Hancock, who took the place of Capt. Mildred McAfee Horton as head of the WAVES when the latter returned to Wellesley.

Representative Sterling Cole of New York was a guest of the Towers the other evening as were Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Col. Jasper Du Bose, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, and Robert Joyce, who will soon leave to take up the post of United States Consul General in that hot spot, Trieste. Joyce was accompanied by his pretty wife.

Gen. Marshall Honor Guest At Press Club Installation

DIPLOMATIC, official and residential Washington society, plus newspaper editors and bureau chiefs, were among the 400 members and guests who turned out at the Women's National Press Club's inaugural luncheon yesterday when the Secretary of State, Gen. George C. Marshall, was guest of honor and speaker. Here Miss Ruth Cowan, newly inaugurated president of the club, and the Secretary of State get together for a brief chat at an informal pre-luncheon reception in the Statler Hotel. One of the highlights of the event was the exchange of bowls between Mrs. Alice Rogers Hager, retiring president, and Miss Cowan. As a symbol of the passing of the old regime, Alice turned over the Cora Rigby Bowl to Ruth. In turn, Ruth presented Alice with the past president's silver bowl

Farewell Fete Held but Envoy Is Not Leaving

Although a "farewell" party was held yesterday, Jean Beliard will not be going west to the consulate at St. Louis, Mo. Word was received at the Embassy Monday that it has been closed, possibly as an economy measure.

As he will probably be going to some other post in the near future, the party was not ill-timed.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were among the guests, and the Ambassador of Italy and Signora Tarchiani and their two daughters, Signorinas Dora and Letizia Tarchiani. From the British Embassy came Col. G. E. Prior Palmer, Military Attache, and Lieut. Col. Peter G. Molloy, Assistant Attache. And from the French Embassy, Gen. Maurice Mathenet, Military Attache, Francois Charles-Roux, Counselor, and M. and Mme. Henri Claudel.

The Under-Secretary of War and Mrs. Kenneth Royall, Richmond Fearing, and Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler were also guests.

Polish Embassy Party Honors UNRRA Members

Another party was held at the same time at the Polish Embassy. The Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz entertained at cocktails in honor of UNRRA members of the Washington office who have dealt specifically with Polish problems. About 150 guests were invited.

Dr. Ludwik Rajchman, who has been Poland's permanent delegate to the UNRRA council, and Mrs. Rajchman received with the two hosts. Cocktails were served with a cold buffet. Mrs. Halka Morrill, well-known soprano, sang several American songs.

Among the guests were Dr. Lowell W. Rooks, Director General of UNRRA, and Mrs. Rooks, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. A. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Bright, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rand, P. W. Kuo, Deputy Director General of the Secretariat of UNRRA, and Mrs. Kuo, and Phil H. Stitt, Chief of the Office of Public Information of UNRRA, and Mrs. Stitt.

Valencia; the Second Secretary and Mrs. Tomas Benitez; the Assistant Commercial Attache and Mrs. Jose Teodoro, jr., and Lieut. Senador Valeriano.

Your Questions on Homemaking

Will you please tell me how to remove red stamp-pad ink from a printed rayon dress and from a checked wool dress? Is it safe to use carbon tetrachloride on printed rayon? Also, is there a rust remover on the market which you can use on clothing?—M. B.

Try working lard or vaseline well into the stains made by stamp-pad ink, then sponging with carbon tetrachloride, gasoline, or other grease solvent. Carbon tetrachloride is perfectly safe to use on printed rayon. If this treatment doesn't take out all the ink stain, try commercial ink removers. Be sure to test such removers first in a place that won't show on your dress.

A large local drug chain carries iron rust soap in tubes, and at least one of the Washington department stores has a rust-removing powder than can be used on clothing.

I have a white straw hat that I would like to clean. Can you tell me how to do this? Also is it possible to dye a straw hat black? C. J.

Cleaning straw hats at home is a good deal of trouble, so the simplest and most satisfactory thing would probably be to take your hat to an experienced hat cleaner. However, if you want to try your hand at home cleaning here are a few suggestions:

Closely woven straws such as leghorns, Panamas, or Milans, can be scrubbed lightly with suds made of lukewarm, soft water and neutral soap. Rinse thoroughly and lay in the shade to drain for a short time before blocking. For coarse and loosely woven straws, follow the same methods, but use water very sparingly.

A round bowl or deep saucepan which is the correct headsize can be used as the basis for home blocking of straw hats. Stretch a clean cloth over the bowl and pin corners underneath. Then pad the mold to the right size and shape with cotton batting and cover smoothly with a piece of muslin. Place the damp hat over this mold and allow to stand until thoroughly dry.

Cornmeal is sometimes an effective cleaner for closely woven straws and using it is easier than washing the hat. Rub the cornmeal well into the hat and let it stand overnight. Brush out thoroughly in the morning.

Straw-hat dye is extremely difficult to find in stores at the present time and apparently not many hatters go in for dyeing women's hats. Your best bet would be one who specialized in the cleaning and renovation of women's millinery.

Please explain the difference between tartrate, phosphate, double acting and combination baking powder. Can you tell me how to distinguish between them as some brands do not designate on the label? How much baking powder of each kind is the right proportion to one cup of flour in making cakes? What is the right amount of baking powder to one cup of corn meal in making batter bread or all meal, no flour? How can I remove smears of shellac from white painted base boards? Will you publish again your formula for polishing jewelry. Would it be practical to use on flat silver? "INEXPERIENCED"

The combination type or double acting baking powders are the same and are so called because they start the rising process before the product is placed in the oven and continues in the oven. Thus two types of leavening, one which works when the product is cold and another which works when heated are found in double acting powder. If a baking powder is not clearly marked "Double Acting," it is a tartrate or phosphate baking powder, neither of which have the so-called double action.

Most recipes, which differentiate between types of baking powders, call for less of the double acting powder than the other types. It isn't possible to make a general rule for the amount to use for each cup of flour in cake making because that would vary with the kind of cake. For instance, eggs have some leavening power. If there are many eggs in a cake, less baking powder would needed, or none at all. The best rule is to follow accurately a tested recipe in a reliable recipe book or a recipe put out by one of the many commercial firms who are doing such an excellent job of providing well-tested recipes.

For one cup of corn meal in making batter bread, use 2 teaspoons of tartrate or phosphate baking powder or 1¼ teaspoon combination or double acting type.

Dampen a cloth with alcohol and apply to the shellac on your base boards. This might remove it.

If the jewelry is platinum you can clean it by putting it in diluted laundry bleach for half an hour. Rinse and dry. For other jewelry, dip a damp brush in bicarbonate of soda and scrub it. Boiling jewelry will work if these above methods don't. Use a mild, white soap and add a little ammonia to the water. Silver jewelry can be placed in an aluminum pan, add 1 teaspoon of salt and 1 teaspoon of soda and a quart of water. Bring to a boil and remove from water. Dry and polish. This last method is practical to use for flat silver provided it does not have an oxidized or French gray finish.

Can you please tell me what I can use on a brick fireplace to clean it? It is made of what you would call white brick, I believe. Thank you very much. J. S.

If your fireplace is smoked, it should be scrubbed with a strong tri-sodium phosphate solution. Use a scrubbing brush and rinse thoroughly. For more stubborn smoke stains, use steel wool and scouring powder or a mechanic's hand soap containing sand. Thorough rinsing is essential.

Will you please give me a punch recipe for a wedding. We need enough to serve about 50 people and would like something that isn't too expensive. M. H.

The following recipe will make enough punch to serve 50 people:

Boil 1¼ cups of water and 2½ cups of sugar together for 10 minutes. To this syrup, add the following: 1 cup of lemon juice, 2 cups of orange juice, 1 cup of strong tea, 2 cups of grapefruit juice, white grape juice, pineapple juice, or crushed pineapple, 1 cup maraschino cherries with juice, 2 cups of fruit syrup, preferably raspberry or loganberry.

(Canned berry juice can be used if it is sweetened and boiled down to make a heavy syrup. Strawberry jam may also be used if diluted and strained.)

Let the mixture of fruit juices, tea, and syrup stand for about 30 minutes. Then strain and add sufficient ice water to make about two gallons of liquid, or 1½ gallons, adding a quart of charged water at the last minute.

A simpler punch is Ginger Ale Cup. Here are the directions for making enough to serve 50 people:

Combine four cups of water and four cups of sugar and boil for 5 minutes. Cool the syrup and add to it the juice of 24 oranges and 24 lemons. Chill these ingredients. Immediately before serving, add four quarts of chilled ginger ale.

10-Day Diet Series Ends

Slim Enough?—Then Stay Calorie Conscious

This is the last of a series of 10 articles on summer slimming.

By Ida Jean Kain

NICE to have taken off three to five pounds, isn't it? And better yet to have lost that bulky feeling through the middle. This minor trimming gives a glimpse of how really wonderful it would be to get your weight and waistline back to normal. Then why not stay with the pattern of eating that will clip off one or two pounds a week? You can be gloriously slim, come Labor Day, and buy all the gay clothes in town!

Scientific slimming isn't an off again, on again, 10-day diet process. It's a pattern of eating, based on physiology of hunger and the science of nutrition. Well-planned, low calorie menus include all the nutrients essential to safe reducing, and squelch that big appetite by taking advantage of the part chewy foods and space fillers have to do with satisfying hunger; and the fact that a warm food with each meal imparts a feeling of comfort; and the part protein plays in satiety and more rapid reducing.

Corn Okay

EATING should be fun, even while you are losing weight. It can be . . . just make a game of cutting calorie corners. Once you acquire the knack, it becomes habit to choose only one starch food with a meal. If you love corn-on-the-cob, have it. Sure, with butter. Two ears are only 100 calories. The trick is to delete bread at that meal, and of course no rice or potatoes should be used, for they are starchy foods. And dessert with that meal should be fresh fruit.

But there are people who can't seem to get through a meal without bread. Then their choice should be two thin slices with a meal, or a roll, or cornbread. In that menu the choice of vegetables should be string beans, beets and tomatoes, or three other vegetables low in calories. No potatoes, corn or beans.

Others would rather have dessert than all the rest of the meal. A dinner of lean meat, low calorie vegetables and a salad without dressing, can include a delicious dessert without exceeding the calories.

Stick to It

THIS is the last day of the 10-day summer slimming series. You may be wondering how long to stay with the diet plan. The answer is all summer if your weight is above normal. Of course you wouldn't want to stick with these same ten menus, but keep the same pattern, and you can live happily slim ever after.

For the complete set of 10-day menus, entitled "Summer Slimming Is a Breeze" write to Ida Jean Kain, Room 408, The Washington Post.

FAR EAST TEMPOS. The Chinese national anthem, "San Min Chu I," was played by Al Shea's trio for the Chinese Trade Mission dinner at the China Clipper—thanks to the all-inclusive music library of Organist Carl Parker. They were also able to oblige with "Bamboo Flute," a slumber song said to be the Chinese equivalent of Brahms "Lullaby" . . . This sets up a record in fulfilling unusual requests.

Kurt Hetzel, noted pianist and conductor, will open at the Ted Lewis restaurant in about two weeks.

He'll probably be at the Metronome Room for three months." All this info came from Publicity Gal Lois Soare in one long thrilling sentence—then she took a deep breath, started to pack for a Rehoboth vacation.*

'Nearly Broke,' PCA Asks for Mail Pay Hike

By S. Oliver Goodman

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, in a brief filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board, appealed for retroactive mail pay at a rate of 18.12 cents a mile for every plane-mile flown between June 1, 1942, and December 31, 1946.

In its petition PCA, which flies under the name of Capital Airlines and whose headquarters are in Washington, pleaded the company "is now on the threshhold of bankruptcy."

"Petitioner now has no working capital," the brief stated. "The equity of its stockholders has been completely wiped out." Reflecting this statement, PCA common stock on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday hit a new bottom for the year at 6¼ in heavy selling. It closed at 6¾.

PCA has been seeking increased mail pay for some time. It said the prime reason for its financial troubles was the general airline fare cut in August, 1945, which it had strongly opposed. The company lost $3,400,000 from October, 1945, through last December, the brief said.

The line has been on a 60 cents a ton-mile pay rate. Recently the CAB acted to help it through a capacity feature which guaranteed a minimum amount of mail pay for every trip designated by the Post Office Department to carry mail.

United Air Lines yesterday asked the CAB for a substantial increase in air mail pay to be made retroactive to January 1. Trans World Airline, also in serious financial difficulties for a year, has had pending a request that its domestic operations be paid on a plane-mile rather than a ton-mile basis.

Bell Resigns Airline Post

J. Raymond Bell has resigned as director of advertising and public relations for Capital Airlines (PCA), a position he has held for nearly five years, it was reported yesterday. Bell was silent on his future plans.

Hospital With Empty Beds Rejects Sick; Can't Get Help

Roanoke, Va., July 1 (AP).—Lack of adequate staff caused Catawba Sanitorium to end its fiscal year with a waiting list of persons in an advanced stage of tuberculosis but with only 285 of its 400 beds occupied.

Many of those awaiting admission are capable of infecting others.

The Catawba superintendent, Dr. J. R. Nichols, said only nine graduate nurses are now employed at the hospital, the largest of Virginia's three state-supported hospitals for tuberculosis patients, compared with a normal staff of 75. There are three physicians when six are desired. The kitchen and other hospital facilities are also understaffed.

Dr. Nichols said the staff was depleted by employes leaving to take better-paying jobs during the war.

Governor Tuck has ordered an emergency construction program in mental hospitals, especially Eastern State Hospital at Williamsburg, in an effort to provide suitable accommodations for employes and thus attract more to the institution. The governor asked Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, superintendent of hospitals, to seek an immediate improvement of conditions in the state hospitals.

That the shortage of employes is virtually as serious in the hospitals for tuberculosis as in the mental hospitals is brought out in Dr. Nichols report. The hospital at Catawba has 134 bed patients and 150 ambulant cases who can, to some extent, care for themselves. Aiding the nine graduate nurses available are five student nurses taking training, ten inexperienced nurses, aides and eight women patients who work from two to four hours a day helping to care for fellow patients.

Patients have to get up from their beds and walk to the central dining room to eat because there is no one to carry food to them. Some are not in condition to do this.

The hospital today is admitting ambulant cases—those persons in an early stage of the disease or in whom it has been checked—but is denying it to the most serious cases because they can't get proper care.

Miner Loses Life Plea in W. Va. Court

Charleston, W. Va., July 1 (AP).—The Supreme Court today upheld the conviction and death sentence of Mark McCauley, 30-year-old strip miner of Davis, for the slaying of State Police Sergt. Joseph Horne last September 9.

McCauley was convicted last October in the slaying, which occurred when State Police and County officers attempted to arrest the miner on a truck theft charge.

Tucker County Sheriff O. Gay Hovatter also was fatally shot in the affray, and the sheriff's son was wounded.

McCauley was captured shortly afterward during a widespread manhunt and was lodged in the Harrison County Jail for safekeeping prior to his trial.

The opinion affirming the Mineral Circuit Court conviction of the miner was written by Judge W. T. Lovins.

The Supreme Court granted the appeal from the conviction on January 13, five days before his scheduled execution as set by the Mineral Circuit Court.

It will be up to the Circuit Court to fix the new date of execution during the Supreme Court ruling.

U. of Virginia To Entertain Truman July 4

Charlottesville, Va., July 1 (AP).—President Truman will be the guest of the University of Virginia for luncheon on July 4 after his address at Monticello, the home Thomas Jefferson built for himself on top of his "Little Mountain."

On his arrival in Charlottesville, the President will be greeted by a Main Street flag-lined from Seventh st., east, to the top of famed "Vinegar Hill." Boy Scouts will distribute small American flags to spectators along the street just before the Truman motorcade leaves Monticello following the President's speech there.

Immediately following his address at Monticello, the President will be presented a gavel made of wood from a tree planted by Thomas Jefferson, with a silver band suitably inscribed. The gavel will be presented by Frank K. Houston, president of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation.

Governor Tuck and members of the General Assembly are among guests invited to the luncheon, to be served in the Colonnade Club, the university's oldest building, the cornerstone of which was laid in 1817, in the presence of three Presidents of the United States—Jefferson, James Madison and James Monroe. All were members of the university's first board of visitors.

Colgate W. Darden, jr., the university's new president, with Rector Edward R. Stettinius, jr., will take President Truman on a short tour of the gorunds and of the buildings designed by Jefferson, before the buffet lunch is served.

122 Seeking Md. Licenses As Embalmers

Annapolis, Md., July 1 (AP).—Applications from 122 persons seeking embalmers, licenses were on file today with the State Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers.

Yesterday was the deadline under a 1947 legislation act for filing the applications by persons who had 10 years or more practical experience in embalming but could not meet other requirements for licensing.

As a legislative measure, the bill was pounded around, first at the 1945 General Assembly session and then at this year's.

It was up for discussion three time in the House of Delegates at the 1947 session and was opposed strongly by organized embalmers.

As finally passed, the act permits qualified applicants to come into the fold within 30 days after it went into effect. It was dubbed a "super-grandfather" law from the fact that it permits a group to be licensed without examination after an earlier group was admitted in the same way.

Sections in legislative measures which permit persons practicing a trade or profession to continue in it after new applicants are to be admitted upon examination or certification are called "grandfather clauses."

The board will meet sometime next week when it is expected to act on the applications.

Mrs. Cornelia Dillard

Fredericksburg, Va., July 1.—Funeral services were held here today for Mrs. Cornelia Dillard, one of Fredericksburg's oldest residents, who died Sunday at her home at 93. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Dan Pitts, Mrs. George Baker and Mrs. Preston Payne of Fredericksburg, and a son, Lee Dillard of Stafford County.

Garber Renominated

Luray, Va., July 1 (AP).—Republicans of the twenty-fourth Senatorial District have unanimously renominated State Senator James A. Garber for the General Assembly's upper body.

At a meeting at Shennandoah River Lodge, about five miles from here, the GOP leaders chose Garber as their candidate after Page County Chairman J. Everett Will placed his name in nomination.

Garber has served in the Senate since 1945. Previously, he had been in the House of Delegates for one term.

Last Company Of Va. Guard Is Disbanded

Richmond, Va., July 1 (AP).—For the first time in six and a half years, Virginia today was without a State Guard. The body, in which 17,000 Virginians served at one time or another during the wartime emergency, passed out of existence yesterday and the National Guard resumed its role as the State's organized militia.

As the State Guard folded up, Governor Tuck wrote the Guard's commander, Brig.-Gen. E. E. Goodwyn of Emporia:

"I want you, the officers and the men of your command to know how much I appreciate the fine, patriotic and unselfish service which has been rendered in these terrible years. You and your organization have enriched the military history of Virginia.

"I am confident that my predecessor, Governor Darden, as well as the people of Virginia generally, will approve 100 per cent the above statements."

The Guard has been in the process of disbanding for several months and yesterday the last unit—Company 71 of Lynchburg—was disbanded.

When it was first organized, the body was known as the Virginia Protective Force. It was formed to fill the place of Virginia National Guard units, which went into active Federal duty in late 1940 and early 1941.

Meanwhile the Virginia National Guard announced that boys who have passed their seventeenth birthday are now eligible for enlistment.

Md. Employment Gains

There were almost 39,000 more persons employed in nonagricultural pursuits in Maryland during mid-May than there were at that time in 1946, the Maryland State Department of Labor and Industry estimated yesterday.

The department placed the total of Marylanders engaged in nonfarm work ot 545,000, or 5.6 per cent more than the 516,000 in May 1946.

Of the 545,000, a total of 229,000 held manufacturing jobs, while 316,000 were engaged in nonindustrial work.

The average weekly pay check for an industrial worker was $48.41, the department estimated, basing that figure on statistics furnished by 663 manufacturing establishments. The average worker put in 40.7 hours a week on the job.

The highest average pay check, $59.46, went to workers in the printing and publishing industry.

The department's figures showed the lowest average weekly pay, $33.50, went to employes of leather and leather products manufacturers.

The magazine's board of editors includes Alman R. Coleman, Charles B. Flow, J. Snydor Mitchell, A. Frank Stewart and Westphal. Calkins is technical editor, Ala S. Donnahoe, business editor, and T. Grayson Maddrea, assistant business editor.

Mimosa Wilt on March

Richmond, Va., July 1, (AP)—Mimosa wilt is marching steadily through Virginia and the shutterleafed trees that are in bloom this week are in danger of extinction in another generation unless science learns to check the disease.

The division of plant industry of the State Department of Agriculture says that the disease has been in evidence for about 10 years and that trees are dying steadily. Complaints from homeowners here have brought the sad advice that no known preventive exists to control the fungus.

The wilt disease works under the bark of the tree and cuts off the movement of sap and water.

Elias A. Summers

Frederick, Md., July 1.—Elias A. Summers, 74, well known Thurmont business man, died yesterday after a three weeks' illness. He was a member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church, the Holy Name Society and Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Frederick Man Low Bidder On Ocean City Highway Job

Baltimore, July 1 (AP).—E. C. Valentine of Frederick submitted a low bid today of $203,077 for a State Roads Commission contract calling for resurfacing of 8.20 miles of the Salisbury-Ocean City road and widening of 9.17 miles of U. S. Route 213 from Berlin to the Delaware line.

The only other bidder was the Bituminous Construction Co. of Baltimore, which offered to do the jobs for $219,656.

The Salisbury-Ocean City road would be resurfaced on the stretch between the Worcester County line and Parsonsburg.

NLRB Resignations Refused by Truman; Vinson Instructs New Judge on Decorum

By Drew Pearson

The White House kept it quiet, but Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, and his NLRB Associates, John M. Houston and James J. Reynolds, offered their resignations privately to President Truman last week.

Herzog

However, despite a vigorous demand from GOP Senator Martin of Pennsylvania that the entire board resign, the President refused to listen. Herzog told Truman that it might prove embarrassing to the three old board members to remain on the job under the Taft-Hartley labor bill which the NLRB must now enforce.

"Under the circumstances, we feel we should step aside and enable you to appoint others to our places," Herzog explained.

"Can you administer this act fairly and in the public interest, even though you recommended a veto?" Truman asked

"Certainly we can,"

"I know you can," agreed the President. "And for that reason I am refusing to accept resignations from any of you. We've got a tough job ahead and I will need your help and experience to make a go of it."

"I was against this bill, also—so much so that I vetoed it, but I'm not quitting," Truman added brusquely. "Under our constitutional system, it is my duty to veto a bill if I do not think it is a good bill, but it is equally my duty to enforce a bill if it becomes law over my head, like the Taft-Hartley Act.

Judicial Decorum

Popular Chief Justice Fred Vinson descended from the marble Supreme Court building last week to the granite halls of the Department of Justice to administer the oath of office to Oklahoma's former Congressman Jed Johnson as a judge of the United States Customs Court.

Various friends of the former Oklahoma Congressman were on hand, including Washington lawyer, Roy St. Lewis, once a Federal attorney in Oklahoma City.

After he was sworn in, Johnson was introducing guests who did not know each other, and started to present St. Lewis to another friend.

"Apart from being a Republican," Johnson began, "Roy here is—"

Suddenly he stopped. The Chief Justice of the United States had plucked at his sleeve. Johnson and Vinson, a former Congressman himself, whispered for a moment, then Johnson returned to finish his introduction of Roy St. Lewis.

"Let's start all over again. I forgot that I'm a judge now!"

Two-fisted Senator Owen Brewster of Maine smells a rat regarding the Midwest oil shortage.

Brewster, who is one of the keenest probers in the Senate and inherited Harry Truman's old committee, has been conducting a thorough investigation of the Arabian oil situation and suspects that the so-called oil shortage, which has prompted some oil companies to reinstate gasoline rationing, is purely a fake.

Brewster has reason to believe that the big oil companies have whipped up the oil-shortage story for the purpose of convincing Americans that oil must be imported from the Middle East. The big oil companies, he finds, plan to bring in half a million tons of Arabian oil this summer, just to convince the American public of the urgency for spending hundreds of millions of dollars to protect American oil interests in the Middle East.

Courts-Martial Issue

Working behind closed doors, an armed services subcommittee patched together a bill that will require no less than one third enlisted men to sit on military courts which try fellow GIs if the defendant requests it. A two thirds majority is necessary before punishment can be handed down. The bill also will remove the Judge Advocate's section, the Army's arm of justice, from the regular chain of command.

However, the subcommittee hasn't taken up Navy justice, recently the cause of many gripes because of the secret little court-martial. Navy courts-martial will be studied next.

Not many realize it, but when Congress extended the life of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation before the June 30 deadline, it left out an important power affecting veterans—the authority to buy up veterans' loans. This will seriously reduce the ability of the homeless veteran to finance new housing, since from now on the Government no longer can guarantee the banks on veterans' loans 100 per cent.

There was a tough closed-door battle between House and Senate conferees before this important provision was finally dropped. It lasted for two days.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

♠ Q J 9 8

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♡
Dble	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: (????)

West sets the hands by underleading his ace of trumps. The bidding indicates that South has about four hearts and dummy is short in the suit, so declarer will wish to ruff hearts on the board. West's plan is to remove as many of dummy's trumps as possible. If he leads the ace and a small spade, he will account for two of them, but he will have no way to get in again to remove another trump.

It is quite likely that East holds two trumps and an entry card so the small spade lead has a better chance of taking off three trumps. Declarer wins the spade lead and leads a heart. East takes the king, returns a trump, and West now plays ace, small, reducing North's spades to one.

This limits declarer to one heart ruff and he goes down one trick, losing three hearts and a spade. Without West's low spade lead, declarer would be able to ruff two hearts, losing only one spade and two hearts.

Especially Now

As surely as there is a night . . . For every day we spend . . . I love yau, darling, with a love . . . That will not ever end . . . And when the stars go out and as . . . The darkness disappears . . . I always have my dream of you . . . To overcome my fears . . . You are my inspiration and . . . The better part of me . . . And you are all the meaning of . . . The word "especially" . . . Because you are the reason, dear . . . For everything I do . . . Indeed I even live my life . . . Especially for you . . . I love you under every moon . . . And constantly I say . . . I love you always, darling, and . . . Especially today.
